TOOK DESPERATE CHANCE.

Heroic Operation May Yet Save His Life.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 29.—John Galvin, 285 Selden avenue, went through a remarkable operation in Grace hospital yesterday. About four years ago Galvin, who is a member of the firm of Blazzen & Galvin contractors, was standing under a scaffold superintending work on St. Mary's accidentally struck a heavy plank which struck Galvin in the chest, just over the heart. Several days later a small lump appeared, but Galvin paid no attention to it.

The lump grew until recently it became about as large as a two-quart measure. He consulted a physician, who diagnosed the trouble as aortic aneurism. The lump was filled with blood, its only covering being the skin. An artery leading from the heart had been ruptured and the blood flowing from the heart formed the aneurism.

"To have lanced the growth would have meant sudden death," said Dr. H. Oberz, who concluded that the only safe treatment was electrocution.

A specially prepared insulated hollow needle was run through the skin at the weakest part of the lump. A fine silver wire, about 15 feet long, was then inserted. This was attached to a battery and 80-milliamperes of electricity were turned on. The current was half strong enough to blow out the artery, causing it to clot. Thus the danger of the blood breaking the skin and causing instant death was lessened, and to day Galvin's chances of recovery are good.

The physicians who assisted Dr. Oberz in the operation were J. B. Hodge, resident physician of the hospital; George Duggan, and J. B. Kennedy. Many other physicians witnessed the operation.

The Man On Watch.

The Lampman does not go to church with regularity, but when he does go he wants to hear a simple gospel message something that brings peace to one's troubled mind after six years of business cares. His conscience is not troubled, he says, like some of his neighbors, who do not give sixteen ounces to the pound, but the stress of business weighs on his mind. Therefore, when he goes to church and is forced to listen to scientific and philosophic sermons, he comes away from church without having his cares removed.

"If the preachers would only give us a little of the old-fashioned damnation and hell-fire preaching it would be well for us," he says. "It's the old kind of pulpit teaching we need in these days, something that brings peace to one's mind, and nothing else. The church should also speak out against the wickedness of this generation. I like men of the stamp of the late Dr. Grant, when some of his Halifax congregation protested against some of his utterances he got up in his pulpit one Sunday morning and told them that in this they did not know what they were doing."

He would like to see the members of this church encourage like that.

If they had me a better preacher, and if you know we need to be corrected once in a while," he says.
