THE PARAGRAPH PULPIT
Unitarian.
REV. C. W. CASSON

Two Christs.
There are two distinctly different views of Christ. There was Christ, the divine failure, the God who died for the world that after twenty centuries of life still refuses to be saved. And there was Christ, the human success, the man who lived for a world that after twenty centuries of death still remembers and reveres his name. It is for you to choose which one you will accept as the more probable, the more worthy, the more glorious. As a Unitarian, I definitely reject the first and accept the second. To me Jesus was the man, living nobly, teaching truly, dying bravely, dying heroically, —a man worthy of my justest honor and reverence.

Address, Rev. C. W. Casson, at 25 Beacon Street, Boston, Mass., for the literature.
