

THE 5 P.M. EDITION

CITY AND VICINITY.

Blueberries! Blueberries! Edwards & Jenkin. Phone 775.

Saturday, September 5th. Steamer America makes the last tour of the Thousand Islands, 2:30 p.m. Supper on board. 50c.

Has Record Attendance. There is a record attendance at the model school this term, fifty pupils being registered. This is the largest class in many years.

Some Petty Thieving. Several cases of petty thieving have been reported recently. A local hotelman says that he has had cakes of soap stolen from the public wash room. A couple of men were caught with the goods last night and reprimanded.

America's Special Trip. Labor day, 10:30 a.m., for Clayton, passengers may remain there all afternoon or else take the America for tour of the islands, remaining one hour at Gananoque, or the steamer New Island Wanderer, returning 7:30 p.m., meals on board. Only 50c.

Thrown On The Street. An old man, perfectly helpless from liquor was thrown bodily from a down town hotel, this morning, after he had spent his last cent there. The old man lay on the street for a while, and was then taken home in a carter's truck, dead to all the stirring events around him.

Regarding Road Paving. The Board of Works will meet next Wednesday and City Engineer Craig hopes to be able to present a report on the canvass of the business section regarding street paving. It is not yet known how the majority of the property owners view the question of improvement for paving. If the majority are favorable there is no reason why a beginning in paving certain blocks should not be begun in October.

Death Of A Child. On Thursday morning, Clarence Dinwiddie Sawyer, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Sawyer, 154 Division street, was called to the last rest, after five years on earth. The little fellow was around in his usual good health until on Monday morning, taking suddenly ill. Death was due to brain trouble, caused, the doctors think by a slight blow on the head, that jarred the brain. The death is felt very much by his many playmates, as he was the brightest and littlest man of all his friends. Mr. and Mrs. Sawyer have the sincerest sympathy of hosts of friends. The funeral services will be conducted on Saturday morning by Dean Farthing.

Would Prohibit Sale. Lying on the deck of the Columbian hotel at Thousand Island park is the following petition which is signed by river guides, guests and cottagers: "To the governor, senate and assembly of the state of New York: Your fellow petitioners, all old fishermen of the St. Lawrence river, pray for an enactment of a law forbidding the sale of small mouth black bass, covering the territory from Kingston to Prescott, and from Cape Vincent to Ogdensburg, which comprises the international reservation." During the ensuing winter an attempt will be made to get a bill passed embodying the foregoing restriction, which will result in the gamey fish not becoming extinct in the islands.

Disgrace In Streets. A hot fight was waged in the lower part of the city on Thursday evening between three soldiers and two civilians, arising out of remarks by the city chaps as the soldiers passed by. The latter retraced their steps to the city hall to get an explanation and received instead a severe beating, as was remarked "as good a licking as was ever dealt out to any person." One of them had to be aided home by his companions. One of the soldiers used his belt to good advantage, over a civilian's head, inflicting a severe gash. The insult to the volunteers was unprovoked, and the fight one of several recent disgraces to the city. There have been a number of street conflicts within a week, without a prosecution. It is time for a change.

"Beautiful new tooth brushes." The kind that wear so long. Sold at Gibson's Red Cross Drug Store. Phone 230. Wark & Son's safe at Belmont was blown open, but the burglars only got $12. Tokay grapes, Malaga grapes and Red Roger grapes, at Carnovsky's. All the latest styles in men's hats, $2, at Bibby's.

DID THE PRINCE LAND

WHEN HE VISITED KINGSTON IN 1860.

Several Say He Did—Capt. Hamilton, Who Commanded the Steamer, Says He Did Not—This is the 48th Anniversary of His Coming.

It is just forty-eight years ago today since King Edward, then the young Prince of Wales, visited Kingston, in charge of the Duke of Newcastle and the Duke of Norfolk. The anniversary revives the dispute as to whether the prince really landed at Kingston or not, after the Duke of Newcastle refused to allow the son of Queen Victoria to go ashore and be received by the Orangemen. At Quebec during the ter-centenary celebration, six weeks ago, the Duke of Norfolk, who was a guest of the Ancient Capital, is alleged to have said that the prince had landed in the evening in company with himself and several others, in a small boat and that they had driven around the city and as far as Fort Henry.

HAIL TO THE KING.

ing referred to. His royal highness and party were to have dined at Mr. Morton's house that evening, and special silver had been bought for the occasion. This silver is still retained by the Morton family. Another who declares he saw the prince, is James P. Gildersleeve, who told a Whig representative that he saw the prince stand in front of S. P. White's cigar store on King street, in company with two of his staff. Gildersleeve says he had a good look at him in front of the lighted window and says he recognized him at once.

Clark Hamilton, collector of customs, who commanded the steamer which brought the prince to Kingston, was interviewed this morning, and asked if he thought the prince had landed. He replied emphatically that the prince did not land. "If he had landed, I would have known it," Mr. Hamilton said, "for I was aboard and around the steamer all the time. The talk about a party having landed in a small boat after dark is ridiculous. Before darkness fell, I landed the steamer at the wharf at the foot of Princess street. A strong wind and heavy sea had come up, and though the royal party aboard wanted to remain out in the harbor at anchor, where we had been lying, I concluded it was safer to run into shelter, for we had only a light anchor, and the vessel was only 175 feet long. So there was no occasion for anyone landing in a small boat, when we were already at the wharf. However, as I said, the prince did not land, as he could not have done so without my knowledge."

A Wedding At Parma.

A very pretty event took place on the morning of September 2nd, at Maple Grove, Parma, when Miss Wilhelmine Fitchett and Herbert Buck, "The Pines," were united in matrimony by Rev. W. S. Beeve. The bride entered the parlor on the arm of her father, Ephraim Fitchett, who gave her away beneath an arch of evergreens and flowers. She was becomingly attired in a gown of white Persian lawn trimmed with Valenciennes lace, and was unadorned. The conclusion of the ceremony the guests repaired to the dining-room, where they were served with a sumptuous and tasty luncheon. About forty guests were present, including some from Napanee, Belleville, Syracuse and Essex, Washington. The bride was the recipient of many handsome and useful presents, among them being a gold chain from the groom and $125 in gold from other friends. Amid hearty congratulations and best wishes the happy couple started at once on their trip to Toronto, Buffalo and Syracuse, the bride travelling in a navy blue chiffon broadcloth suit, with white silk blouse and white hat, trimmed with ostrich tips. On their return home they will reside at Mr. Buck's home, Bay View, "The Pines."

Late Marine Notes.

The steamer Kenirving passed this afternoon on her way from Oswego to Smith's Falls, with coal. The steamer Keewatin arrived this afternoon from Oswego, with coal for the city waterworks. The schooner Ford River will clear to-night, for Charlotte, with feldspar. A delay in the loading of the vessel was caused by a mishap to the hoist.

A CANADIAN ROBBED

BAGGAGE AND MONEY STOLEN IN CINCINNATI.

M. D. Boland of Stirling Left $100 and Moving Picture Apparatus While Having a Drink With a Polite Stranger.

Cincinnati, Ohio, Sept. 4.—M. D. Boland, of Stirling, Ont., a photographer and dealer in photographic supplies, was leaving Cincinnati, Wednesday night with the paraphernalia for a moving picture theatre. He was in the waiting room at the Grand Central depot when an affable stranger accosted him and invited him to have a drink. Several acquaintances joined the stranger in the bar-room. Boland left his baggage in the train shed while he went in to quench his thirst at the expense of the polite stranger, and when he returned to find that a thief had appropriated the baggage and moving picture paraphernalia during the brief time that he was gone. He also discovered that about the same time that his wallet, containing all his money, was stolen. He had about $100 in cash, and the baggage and picture machine were worth $300 more. Boland, fortunately, had his ticket home in an inside pocket. He had not time to remark in Cincinnati to trace the thief, but had ten minutes before train time in which to report his losses to the police. In the loot were included some valuable lenses, and the police are watching the pawnshops for them.

A MILITARY COURT.

Held in the 9th Brigade at Barrieffield.

One of the features of camp life, yesterday morning, in the lines of the artillery, was the military court conducted by the brigadier of the fine fighting 9th. Prompt on the hour the military magistrate was in his seat, and adorned in all the fine lace and accoutrements of an officer high in rank and mighty in valour. Verily "Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of these." The immaculate dress of the colonel was in keeping with the perfect environment of the court house, and this, by the way, was on the order of the one used by tent; but, of course, a much better Moses in the peninsula of Sinai—and, perhaps, cleaner one than Moses owned. The preliminaries were brief, for the commanding officer of the 9th Brigade has a marvelous knack of getting directly at everything without any waste of precious time. "Sergeant-major of the 9th, bring in your prisoners!" rang out in the clear clarion tones of one accustomed to command, until the call, like the echo of a thunderbolt, rolled out over camp and cornfield until lost in the dismal depths of Farley's Swamp. "Yes, sir—r" was the prompt reply of the sergeant-major, and in a moment was heard the command, "Prisoners, left turn, forward march," and in a moment they stood in the presence of military majesty.

Whenever confronted by anything serious, the brigadier of the 9th has a way of scrutinizing it with one eye, and a good straight stare, and the eyes are sufficient to make the knees of a military offender rub each other vigorously. There was severity in the colonel's voice on this occasion, and great fear fell upon all the company.

"What's the charges, sergeant-major?" "Just two, sir, absent without leave," "Prisoners, what have you to say?" "Guilty, sir," came from both men, and then, such a lesson on military ethics and moral law poured forth from the lips of the brigadier, until the prisoners were awed and the attendants stood in amazement, and then came the verdict, "Discharged, but don't do it again," and out they filed. The court was over and when the tent was cleared a loud hearty laugh was heard within, and it came from very much like the voice of him who sat upon the bench but a moment before in such a stern and austere manner. The drunk has promised never to have the prefix "plain" to his charge again, and the recipient thought it would hardly tempt the maximum penalty from the good-natured brigadier of the 9th, if he took another free chance on a visit home.

This ended the court of yesterday in the delightful lines of the 9th Brigade.

At Barrieffield Camp. This afternoon, Mrs. W. D. Gordon gives a tea from 4 to 6:30 o'clock, at the staff headquarters.

Service on Sunday morning has been changed from 9:30 till 11 o'clock, for the benefit of civilians who may wish to attend.

LIGHT FOR PORTSMOUTH. City May Supply the Village With Electricity.

The city light department is figuring upon the electric lighting of Portsmouth, and there is a possibility that arrangements will be made with the village council about ending the city system into the village, providing the service will pay. All depends on that. The churches in the village will take electricity and so will a number of residents. Besides this the village council will likely want some arc lamps for the dark corners.

The other night the village lamp lighter evidently forgot his duty, as none of the coal oil lamps on the corners were lit. A Kingston lawyer was seen wending his way to his home on Union street, and every ten yards he went he lit a match in order to view the pathway. And this in progressive Portsmouth, where Councillor Michael Kennedy is chairman of the streets' committee!

Peaches, Plums, Grapes, Pears. Edwards & Jenkin.

The Ontario cabinet has authorized the signing of the contract upon between the Hydro-Electric Power Commission and the F. H. McGuigan Construction company, for the building of the power transmission line from Niagara Falls.

Miss Lalonde, formerly of Steacy's, has started dressmaking at her home, 33 Brock street.
