IN HOT FIGHT

Russians and Chinese in Desperate Conflict.

SOLDIERS VS. POLICE

CHANGED RELATIONS BETWEEN NATIONALITIES.

A Dramatic Story is Published in St. Petersburg Papers of Set- to in Siberia—Some of the Chinese Passengers Thrown From a Ferry Boat.

St. Petersburg, Sept. 15.—A dramatic story of a conflict between Russian soldiers and Chinese police is told in the Blagoveshensk newspapers received in St. Petersburg to-day. The conflict is a striking comment on the changed relations between the two nationalities occupying the banks of the River Amur.

The ferry-boat—one of the enormous platforms common on the great rivers of Siberia—was preparing to leave the Chinese side to cross to Blagoveshensk. It had on board, as well as passengers, a large number of Russian soldiers armed with rifles, and was in charge of Chinese police equipped with modern revolvers.

A fight began among the passengers in which several Chinamen were thrown overboard, and a number of Chinese passengers fled in a panic. They took courage when they landed, and began to bombard the ferry with stones, injuring many persons.

The Russian soldiers thereupon drew their rifles and attacked the Chinese. The Chinese police replied with fire from their revolvers, and order was restored.

The ferry started, and all was calm as it crossed the river, but immediately it broke out again, and seven men—three Russians and four Chinese—were thrown overboard. They were rescued by the police boats but the craft that contained the Chinamen was attacked and sunk by the Russian crowd on the bank.

Meanwhile the Russian soldiers were slashing right and left on board with their rifles, injuring their own countrymen as well as the Chinese police.

Robbed and Murdered.

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 15.—W. H. Rogers, Milwaukee, a travelling representative of the Sholl & Rogers Co., brokers, was robbed at Ontonagon, Mich., Sunday morning, and so severely beaten that he died yesterday, according to telegrams received to-day. He was attacked with a black knife when on the way to the hotel. He was killed by a blow on the head, and he did not recover consciousness before death.

HEROINE IN POVERTY.

Woman Who Carried Dispatches in Campaign.

Paris, Sept. 15.—At Le Mans, where Wilbur Wright, the American aeronaut, is now carrying out his experiments, a Mme. Imbert, a heroine of the Franco-Prussian war, has been discovered, living in very straitened circumstances. She is sixty-four years of age and was born at Le Mans. When the war broke out she was living at Metz.

The courageous woman served on the French intelligence staff, and, disguised in male attire, repeatedly penetrated the German lines, bringing back much valuable information to Bazaine, chief of staff. On one memorable day she covered fifty miles on foot. Entrusted with despatches for the French general at Thionville, then invested by the enemy, she was captured and the secret of her sex revealed. While the Prussians were searching her, Mme. Imbert, under their very eyes, calmly swallowed the incriminating despatches. She was tried and condemned as a spy, but the Prussian commander, as a tribute of admiration for her bravery, commuted the death penalty. Three days later she escaped to the French lines.

Hitherto an ungrateful country, has ignored Mme. Imbert's existence, but now the government, by way of tardy recognition of her services, has contributed to a fund which is being raised on her behalf.

BIG DECREASE IN MILK.

Cattle and Dairy Industry in a Bad Way.

Brookville, Ont., Sept. 15.—Brookville being the largest dairy section in the world, the drought that has prevailed for the past month is seriously affecting that industry. The supply of milk has fallen off at least thirty-three per cent. The pastures and meadows are in a very poor condition. Everything is burnt brown, and unless rains fall soon the farmers in this section will suffer beyond estimate, as the rivers and creeks are mostly dried up.

Dairymen near this town having large herds are conveying water from town and it is a constant sight three miles north of here to see cattle in great distress because of the lack of water. The immediate vicinity of Brookville suffers most as the many lakes further north give a good supply of water.

A concrete evidence of the drought was shown last week, when the number of these registered on the Brookville board was 1,500 less than a week ago, and right in the heart of the September make, usually the best of the season.

ACCUSED OF MURDER.

Man Said to Have Cut Up His Wife.

Seattle, Wash., Sept. 15.—Leonard Johnston, a promoter, thirty-five years old, living at 1962 Fourth avenue, was arrested yesterday, charged with having murdered his wife, formerly Bella Gilechrist, of Cornwall, Ont., in Nome, on October 31st, 1905, for her money. It is also alleged that he cut up and buried the body under his which she left. The arrest was made six months, concealing the crime. Johnston admits having cut up and buried the body, but denies the murder charge. He says the woman committed suicide and that he buried the body as she directed in a signed note which she left. The arrest was made by Detectives Kennedy and Barbee, after months of investigation by Deputy United States Marshal Joseph Warren, of Nome, begun when Johnston's wife disappeared from the cabin, at Nome, three years ago.

KING IS A LOSER

DENMARK STAGGERED AND 15 000 FAMILIES RUINED.

Embezzlements of the Former Minister of Justice Total Several Millions of Dollars.

Copenhagen, Sept. 15.—The embezzlement of several million dollars by Alberti, the former minister of justice, has staggered all Denmark, from the king down. Alberti has been the dominant member of the reform government since 1901, and Denmark's political ideal. His career of crime commenced fourteen years ago. He was practically regarded as the country's dictator at the time of his retirement, seven weeks ago, when all possible honors were heaped upon him, including the title of "Excellency."

His surrender to the authorities was dramatic in the extreme. Dressed in an immaculate frock coat and silk, but he strolled leisurely from his residence to police headquarters. As he passed the entrance all the officers and men present sprang to attention for their former chief, who acknowledged the salute with his usual urbanity. He then calmly bade the chief inspector take down a report. When the inspector was ready, Alberti cheerfully observed: "I wish to give myself up to justice for fraud and forgery." Then producing a receipt for bonds of the value of $2,500,000 he signed two directors' private bank cheques. Then the former minister quietly continued: "Look at those two signatures. They were forged by me."

Alberti's fraudulent forgeries in fourteen years exceed $5,500,000, the bulk of which was lost in South African mining stock operations and Wall street securities. More than 40,000 persons are directly affected by his defalcations and 15,000 families have been ruined. It is stated that the king is among the heaviest losers.

SEEK REPEAL

Of the Laws Which Give a Disadvantage TO THE CATHOLICS

THE POPE WILL DEAL WITH QUESTION.

In His Next Encyclical—The Members of the Church Will Raise the Question of Interference in Parliament and Urge Repeal of the Laws.

London, Sept. 15.—A news agency despatch from Rome says the pope has announced his intention to discuss the Eucharistic Congress in his next encyclical and at the same time will deal with the British government's representations against the carrying of the host in Sunday's procession.

The Roman Catholic members of parliament, headed by Lord Edward Talbot, brother of Duke of Norfolk, will raise the question of the government's interference with the eucharistic procession in parliament as soon as this body assembles, and urge that the time has arrived for the repeal of laws that place Roman Catholics at a disadvantage as compared with the members of other religious bodies.

Not To Offend French.

Rome, Sept. 15.—The Correspondence Roma, a Catholic organ, publishes the following communication, which evidently is inspired by the Vatican, concerning the carrying of the host in the eucharistic procession in London: "The procession did not occur. Although regretting this omission, we wish to point out, and we appreciate the liberty and respect which surrounded the eucharistic congress under the shadow of the British flag, it has been said that the procession could not be allowed, as such processions are forbidden by a law passed in the sixteenth century. This is not a serious matter, as everybody knows that such a law, like similar laws, became automatically obsolete through religious liberty granted later to British subjects."

"A few Protestant societies aspiring to archaeological fame by exhuming past prohibitions, were merely the proverbs of the past, which the anti-eucharistic coach of the sixteenth century would never have left the museum of religious persecution. What moved the coach was the efficacious intervention of certain politicians, who depicted the procession as a manifestation disagreeable to the French 'Bleu,' and thus hurling to best interests of the Anglo-French entente, as to see his French prelates participate in London in this procession, an act which would send them to prison in their sweet French country, would have given umbrage to Paris."

"For the same reason the words of the pope to the French pilgrims on Monday were taken advantage of, the enemies of the church protesting that the pontiff had praised British liberty for the purpose of punishing at the pillory the small tyrants of Paris. These same persons urged the British government not to be the tool of the Vatican tactics. The trouble is that in Monday's prompt speech the pope merely paraphrased the words of Archbishop Aix, the leader of the pilgrimage, who himself compared British liberty with what he termed French 'tyranny. That is, the pope's words were aimed first in Paris, and then in London."

"Nevertheless, the eucharistic congress remains a glorious memory for the Catholic world, as well as a proof of British liberty and hospitality. The omission of the procession will serve to show to the public from which quarters come directly or indirectly all sectarian declarations against the Catholic church."

QUEEN'S DISAPPOINTMENT.

She is Bearing Her Loss With Composure.

The Hague, Sept. 15.—There are conflicting reports as to Queen Wilhelmina's condition. Semi-officially it is explained that the queen's published statements to the effect that the queen's hope of an heir had been disappointed are not true but the Vatterland reaffirms the report of the disappointment, which it says, the queen is bearing with composure. She is very weak, but her condition does not cause uneasiness.

To Build A Tunnel.

Spokane, Wash., Sept. 15.—Announcement is made by Richard Armstrong, Chicago, representing the Greenwood-Phoenix Tunnel company, capitalized for $5,000,000, that work will begin soon on a double-track tunnel, three and a half miles in length and 2,000 feet deep, to connect Greenwood and Phoenix, B.C., in the boundary country, north of Spokane. The cost is estimated at $3,000,000. The project is financed by Chicago and British Columbia capital. The big bore is expected to tap numerous ore bodies at great depth.

The Republicans Win.

Rangor, Maine, Sept. 15.—Bertram M. Fernald, republican, has been elected governor of Maine by a plurality, approximating 9,000. In 1906, Cobb (republican), had 5,064. Four republican members of congress are re-elected. Indications point to large democratic gains in both branches of the legislature. In Penobscot county, the democrats have won for the first time in many years.

FRANCE SLOWLY DYING.

Only Country Where Deaths Exceed the Births.

Paris, Sept. 15.—The steadily progressive decline in France's birth rate is a subject of constant preoccupation among political economists. Certainly a statistical review of the situation published in Opinion by M. de Focille, member of the institute and president of the Academie des Sciences Morales et Politiques, accentuates the national gravity of the question.

The latest figures prove that France as a nation is slowly but surely dying. In 100 years the birth rate has fallen from 32 per 1,000 to 19.7, and at the present moment, for the first time in history, and in France alone among nations, the deaths exceed the births.

Since the twentieth century began the decline has continued at the following alarming rate: Excess of births over deaths: 1902, 84,000; 1903, 73,000; 1904, 57,000; 1905, 37,000; 1906, 27,000.

Last year, 1907, there were 20,000 more deaths than births. The official returns are 734,000 and 774,000 under these respective heads.

The world "depopulation," M. de Focille points out, is therefore no exaggeration. It is, he asks, the beginning of the end? At this rate, France will soon be ripe for invasion. It is the only fate waiting a country which is capable of supporting 50,000,000 inhabitants and is content with half that number. In another twenty years there will be two Germans for every Frenchman.

As to the causes, the writer contends that they are political and economic as well as moral. The law is lax in regard to certain criminal practices, which has made divorce ridiculously easy, and it winks at pernicious teachings. Nothing, in the writer's opinion, is being done to arrest the gradual extinction of a great race.

JOHN B. STANCHFIELD.

John B. Stanchfield, the lawyer, of Elmhurst, N.Y., who is reported to be running against Governor Hughes as the democrat, is the son of a prominent politician, who is the master where the democratic nomination is concerned. Stanchfield is a practical politician, yet has always maintained his party loyalty to Mr. Bryan and is therefore considered especially eligible for the gubernatorial nomination this year. He was born in Elmhurst in 1876, and studied law under David B. Hill, so that his democracy and his traditions are alike traditional and natural from his early associations and training. He married Miss Clara Spaulding in 1880.

REFUSES TO QUIT POST

QUEEN HONORS ALPINE VETERAN.

Presents Souvenir to Man Who Has Saved Over One Hundred Lives.

Geneva, Sept. 15.—A pretty incident occurred during Queen Margherita's return from her motor trip to Chamoinx and Aix-les-Bains over the Little St. Bernard into Italy.

The veteran French Alpine guide, Leopold Grand, was waiting on the summit of the pass, hat in hand, to salute the queen.

He was wearing on his breast the Order of Merit presented to him in 1887 by the late King Humbert, of Italy, and the Order of the Legion of Honor, which was pinned to his breast by President Loubet, both orders having been obtained for saving the lives of French and Italian Alpine troops near the pass and for exceptional bravery.

Queen Margherita stopped her motor car, and stepping out, shook hands with Grand, whom she congratulated on having saved three more lives during the past winter. Her majesty presented the old man with a souvenir, then, re-entering her motor car, waved her handkerchief as long as she could see the solitary figure standing on the pass.

Grand has lived in a tiny refuge hut on the Little St. Bernard for the last twenty-five years, in the employment of the French government, and during that time has saved about 100 lives. He bears a charmed life, for he has been swept away by avalanches over precipices several times.

Six years ago, while rescuing French soldiers from an avalanche, Grand and his only son were overborne by a second avalanche and his son was killed.

The old guide, who lives alone in his hut, is entitled to a pension, but refuses to leave his post, though he is seventy-two years old.

FOOLS CHILD BRIDE.

Seeks Release From Ingenious, But Aged Hubby.

Denver, Sept. 15.—Another December-and-May marriage has found its way into the divorce court. In this case the child-wife alleges that her husband, Richard Heltons, deceived her as to his age, claiming to be only thirty-five, when in reality he was sixty-five. The wife is eighteen.

The wedding took place last June and it was an apparently young man who led the then Miss Jennie Wharton to the altar.

AFTER HARD FIGHT.

A Big Maskinonge Landed Without Gaff.

Thousand Island Park, N.Y., Sept. 14.—With his thumb and fingers a mass of scratches and abrasions from the jaws of a gigantic maskinonge caught near Maple Island, Norman Fox holds the record for the season in the way of a fish catch for a single day. Mr. Fox was rowing a party of Rochester persons stopping at Grandwell a day or so ago when the maskinonge weighing thirty-one pounds, was hooked. The monster put up a terrific struggle. Without a gaff, it looked for a time as though the fish would be lost, when Fox reached into the open jaws and pulled the maskinonge aboard. The effort was a painful one, the sharp teeth of the fish inflicting many wounds. Aside from the big one thirteen pickerel, one eleven-pounder, were taken the same day.
