IMAGINING VAIN THINGS.

Some months ago a deputation of representative men, from several towns and cities in Ontario called on the premier. They asked that in event of a change in the government the claims and merits of Charles Murphy be not overlooked. The withdrawal of Hon. Senator Scott, after a long and honorable service, gave Sir Wilfrid Laurier an opportunity to consider the matter, and he invited Mr. Murphy to become his colleague and to be head of the state department.

There was general approval expressed of the choice, but the opposition has been heard from. Le Canada, which has served the tory party with all the ardour possible, is quite put out with Mr. Murphy's call to office. He is a liberal, and that is enough. He cannot qualify for any position in the opinion of his political opponents.

An anonymous correspondent of the Montreal Gazette expresses the idea that Mr. Murphy's elevation to a seat in the cabinet is an insult to his co-religionists, which is a fabrication. His selection for cabinet rank was urged by co-religionists, and it is safe to say that they have as good standing in the community as those for whom the correspondent speaks.

This anonymous slanderer in the Gazette, however, gives his case away by admitting that "any one who knows him knows that he is a clever, capable and upright man, who will perform his duties as well as any man in the government." The promotion of one so highly recommended cannot be an insult to any class!

A GAME OF CUT THROAT.

William R. Hearst is not a candidate in the pending elections, either for state or national offices, but he is in the light and very much in evidence. He is a supporter of the Independence League candidate, and it is his duty to assail all and sundry who are not in accord with him. Senator Foraker, of Ohio, has suffered at his hands.

In a great meeting in St. Louis, Mr. Hearst intimated that Mr. Foraker was in the toils of the Standard Oil people. Letters were read to the effect that in February of 1902 the great trust paid to the senator $50,000 and with the understanding that a certain transaction would be successfully consummated. The presumption was that Mr. Foraker was being paid for some legislative influence. Mr. Foraker explains that he was the medium for the purchase of a newspaper, and that the Standard Oil people were to put in stock to the value of $50,000. But the deal fell through.

Two things are made conspicuous as a result of the controversy. One is that the Standard Oil is really the octopus it is described. Mr. Foraker may not be under any obligation to it, but he is its friend or he would not be so ready to appeal to it in his emergency. The second is that no correspondence seems to be safe. Mr. Hearst should not have access to the business papers of any man or corporation, but he has them all the same. How did he procure them? They are private and confidential, and he gives them to the press.

HOWLING SPEAKERS DOWN.

It is well that the cause of the political disturbance in Montreal, at Mr. Borden's public meeting, has been so fully defined. During the speech of Mr. Monk the noise was continued so that he could not be heard. The uproar during Mr. Borden's early attempt to make himself heard was very great, and it was only when the police located the obstreperous ones and dislodged them that there was anything like quiet.

The World's summing up of the trouble is: "The secret of the ten minutes' uproar was explained this morning. It appears that in view of the fact that a section of the C.P.R. strikers had asked Mr. Borden to pronounce himself upon the merits of the dispute, and the leader having refused to say anything on the subject, the strikers decided to prevent him from speaking, declaring that they would howl Sir Wilfrid Laurier down, too, when he came to Montreal."

The strikers may be sympathized with in their distress by the politicians, but it is evident that their troubles cannot be made a political issue. Nor is the issue one in which Mr. Borden or Sir Wilfrid Laurier can now intervene. The C.P.R. has carried the battle forward at great expense, as it has been carried thus far at great loss to the men, and it is not possible that a political party can suggest a compromise which will be acceptable.

The great corporation may have its leanings politically. It is understood to favour the conservative party in return for the very decided manner in which it has favoured the company, but in matters of policy, affecting its present and future business relations, there can be no interference, and Mr. Borden has quite sensibly realized it.

THEIR OWN TROUBLES.

The conservative party of this city is delighted to hear that there is a rumour that Hon. Mr. Hart may not be a candidate for the commons. The possibility of such a thing is very pleasing. It suggests that all the anxiety and worry is not on the one side.

There is a story in circulation which exactly fits the case. A certain boy shocked his mother one day by swearing. Something had to be done. So calling him to her she said, "The next time I hear you using those dreadful words I'll pack your grip and send you away from home." A day or two later she heard the profanity repeated, and, true to her promise, sent the youth out with an abandoned air. She watched him go down the street and sit down upon the sidewalk. She crept out of the house, took a circuitous route and without his seeing her came within a short distance of where he rested, his elbows on his knees, and chin on the palms of his hands. She saw a stranger approach her boy, heard him ask where he could find a man, naming him, for whom he searched. Now, she thought he will be so courteous. The boy eyed the stranger dubiously for a moment, then waived him aside with the remark: "You go to—, I have troubles enough of my own."

The local conservative party is not in a position to give comfort to the liberals at the present time. It has been vainly searching for a candidate, has offered the doubtful honor to one after another, without success, and when one has timidly approached its leaders and metaphorically asked the way to peace and harmony, he has been answered: "Go to the pit, sir, and warm yourself; we have troubles enough of our own."

A DOUBTFUL BODYGUARD.

The Americans are continually pointed to for evidences of easy consciences. But the Americans are becoming more particular about their public men. The great Chauncey Depew, once the idol of the republican party, and in constant demand because of his oratory, is out of commission. The insurance commission revealed him in an unfavorable light. Mr. Foraker, the strong man of Ohio, was billed to travel the republic as an ally of Mr. Taft, the republican candidate for the presidency. But Mr. Hearst discovered his deal with the Standard Oil trust and all his engagements have been cancelled.

How different it is in Canada? All the men who were touched and tarnished by the insurance commission in Canada are in evidence, as candidates, for seats of the mighty. Some of them have been in the advance guard of Mr. Borden's royal tour. Some of them aspire to places in his cabinet if he ever has one.

The last to appear on the scene as a "thriller" is the great and only Bowser, of British Columbia, the man who played double on the Japanese immigration question, appearing to legislate against the Asiatics while acting as the counsel of a Japanese immigration company. He has practically fled from Victoria to escape the men who are after him and will yet get his scalp.

What do you think of it, reader? Are Canadians, with this exhibit before them, in a position to comment seriously upon the murkiness of the political atmosphere in the United States?

LAND GRABBERS EXPOSED.

Hon. Mr. Oliver, in his western tour, has been exposing the manner in which the interior department was worked for the benefit of conservative spoilsmen while their favourite government reigned in Ottawa.

Thus at a meeting in Dauphin, Manitoba, a characteristic letter was read, signed W. H. Whimster, Portage la Prairie. This was addressed to Nat. Boyd, M.P., who had sent it to T. M. Daly, minister of the interior, endorsed, "Kindly see that this matter is looked after." Mr. Whimster in his communication said he was in receipt of a letter from Dan Saunders, of Shoal Lake, who wanted a permit to cut timber on Section 4, township 20, range 22 west. Saunders was recommended as "a strong supporter of the conservative party who can be relied upon to stick to us still." Tully, of Strathclair, is also applying for the same piece of timber and, as he is an opponent, wrote Mr. Whimster, "I would rather see Saunders get it."

Mr. Saunders got the limit.

The next letter was dated Winnipeg, November 11th, 1894, and was as follows: "My Dear Daly,—Neil Keith has applied to you to get a permit to cut timber in township 11, ranges 16 and 17 east. I would be glad if you could grant him his permit at once. Keith is a good fellow and a good friend of ours. He has been connected with Dan Mann for years. He is anxious to get his permit quick, so that he may experience no trouble with other sub-contractors. I will be glad if you will give this your personal attention as Keith is a most deserving fellow."

"Signed Yours truly, R. ROGERS."

There was something wrong, however, and on November 16th, 1894, a telegram was sent to Ottawa, which read: "Application of Keith for permit to cut timber should read township 9, not 11."

"R. ROGERS."

Mr. Keith got his limit.

Mr. Oliver read documents dealing with other instances showing that even the conservative government's own political supporters could not get their rights except by political favor and pull and yet the conservatives asked the people to believe to-day that they would be honest in their administration.

It is significant to add that the T. M. Daly here referred to was formerly minister of the interior, and is now the police magistrate in Winnipeg. He ran against Mr. Sifton in Brandon in the last election and suffered a great defeat. He is being asked to sacrifice himself again in the interest of purity, and hesitates, and well he might. He knows what will happen.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Hanna telegraphs a personal friend in Toronto that there is an upheaval in Canada. No doubt, and it is a conservative upheaval, too. And of the kind which occurred in 1896, 1900 and 1904.

Some of the political critics will please observe that Mr. Mackay has appeared on the same platform with Sir Wilfrid Laurier. So that he cannot be very sour on the liberal party in Ontario, as alleged.

The influence of good men does not pass away with them. Bishop Carmichael has been called to his fathers, but the virtues he inculcated remain in the lives of many people, and they will not cease to call him blessed.

Montreal has twelve medical school inspectors. Every city and town should have school inspection. The future of the country depends on the rising generations, and they are not cared for as they should be.

The Telegram, comparing Sir Wilfrid Laurier's speeches with the speeches of leaders in other nations, is disappointed. Why not compare them with the speeches of Mr. Borden? Try this, friend, and you will stop croaking at once.

Some years ago there was loud talk from conservative papers about the flag. The party was its defender. The flag is again waving the Union Jack and wrapping it about Mr. Borden. At the same time it has been discovered that Laurier is too British for Canada.

INVESTMENT OF CAPITAL.

How English People Regard Public Ownership.

Canadian Gazette.

We found that it must be admitted that there is some feeling of distrust in the city, but we think that in some respect our correspondent has misread what the premier of Ontario said. Sir James did not say that his government had reversed the policy of its forerunner in office; although it has adopted a policy which probably was not thought of by those who granted the concessions. What he did say was that "some years ago the government of Ontario did give them in the matter of obtaining from the several electrical power supply companies at Niagara definite statements as to the rates at which they could supply electrical power for the use of these various municipalities."

This paragraph might be expressed somewhat differently. The vast engineering difficulties having been successfully overcome and the solid cash expenditure of a million sterling having been sunk in the enterprise, a cry was raised by certain politicians of "cheap power for the people." A very excellent thing for everybody in the province if the cheapness to the consumer involved no injustice to the producer. The chief municipalities with a reach of Niagara were obviously the chief beneficiaries of power, but they being sheltered by the Hydro-Electrical commission the government could put a pistol to the head of the producers of power and force submission to their own terms.

It was this fact that made the debentures practically unobtainable for a time, and very much scared British investors. Lately the government has signed a contract for the erection and equipment of power transmission lines from Niagara to Toronto, thus duplicating those already constructed by the Electric Development company. As the cost of this duplicate line is defrayed out of public money the bondholders are unhappy, and application was made for an injunction.

The whole controversy is regrettable, particularly so because in Sir James Whitney we have a statesman-cum-merchant with a strong desire to tighten the bond between Ontario and the old country. Moreover, he is a staunch imperialist, a man in whose mind the idea of the consolidation of the empire is never to be lost sight of. In the interview with our correspondent, Sir James made the pregnant statement that "the whole question would be long likely to adjust itself in a perfectly satisfactory manner to all concerned." We hope, therefore, that he will before he returns finally set at rest all apprehensions on the part of investors. The whole point of the matter is, as our correspondent says, that British investors feel that government ownership in competition with corporations—especially when, as in this case, the corporation pays the government a large annual royalty—puts private enterprise out of court.

About $1,000 in cash was taken from street car barns in Wellesley, Mass.

IN GANANOQUE TOWN

GARNOCKS TRIED TO "KILL" THE UMPIRE

At a Baseball Game at Lyndhurst and Got Soaked—Death of Mrs. Edgar Elliott, at Willets-holme.

Gananoque, Sept. 23.—Excitement was created on King street, Monday evening, by a young man in an intoxicating condition using profane and insulting language to passers-by. The police promptly took him in charge. The offender was arraigned before Freeman Britton, J.P., and was taxed five dollars and costs, the fine being paid by the foreman of the telephone gang, operating in this locality, with whom the young man had been working. The foreman immediately discharged him.

Quite a large number from town took in the first day of Lyndhurst fall fair, yesterday. Among those who were the Garlocks baseball team, to avenge their overwhelming defeat in that village a short time ago, but Providence or the umpire willed differently, and after four innings of good ball, neither side scored. The Garlocks made up their minds that they could not win without "killing" the umpire, and made an attempt to do so by throwing the ball at him, and refusing to go on with the game, which was of course awarded to Lyndhurst, nine to nothing.

Lottie J. Elliott, beloved wife of Edgar Elliott, passed away at Willets-holme, at an early hour, Tuesday morning, aged thirty-two years and seven months. Deceased had been ailing for some time, and the end was not unexpected. She was well and favourably known throughout this section. The funeral will take place on Thursday from the residence of her sister, Mrs. Boyd of Willets-holme.

In lieu of a fall fair for Gananoque H. Wilson & Son will hold their annual sale of live stock and second hand vehicles, on Tuesday, September 29th, and again on Thursday, October 15th, there being some fifty head of cattle and ninety horses to dispose of. This will be one of the largest ever held by them.

Thomas Topping, of Deseronto, who has been firing on the Clayton-Gananoque Ferry steamer, Where Now, this season, has moved his wife and family here, and taken up his residence on First street. Charles J. Wilson, formerly of the staff of the Rathbun company here, and for several years past located in Deseronto, has taken a position in the offices of the D. F. Jones Mfg. Co., Ltd., of this town, and he and Mrs. Wilson will remove here about the end of the month.

Miss Margaret McLellan, trained nurse of the Albany City Hospital, Albany, N.Y., who has been spending a short furlough here with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William McLellan, First street, left during the past few days to resume her duties in that institution. George Taylor, M.P., attended Hon. R. L. Borden's meeting in Pembroke. Visiting in town with friends and relatives, Mrs. Isaac Moore, Cleveland, Ohio, the Misses Julia Barlowe and Elizabeth Watson, Kingston.

Accepting The Challenge.

Sir Wilfrid at Stratroy.

My friend, Mr. Borden, leader of the opposition, tells you and the people of Canada that he is fighting for clean government. If that is what he is fighting for, he will find his man in me. (Tremendous applause.) But I contend, sir, that we have given you clean government. If that be the challenge, if that be the issue, then I accept the challenge and the issue, and I ask Mr. Borden, Mr. Foster, and all these apostles of virtue (laughter), to say in what respect the government of Canada has done anything of which you reformers should be ashamed. (Applause.)

Honor To Whom Due.

The reduction in the rate of postage on letters for the delivery in the place where they are mailed, has come into force, and only one cent is now required as the postage on such matter. Mr. Lemieux, the postmaster-general, is entitled to credit for initiating this reform, which has been urged for years, but refused by predecessors in office on the ground that the financial position of the post office department did not justify the reduction.

What Beautiful Hair!

A prominent scientist and hair specialist emphatically states, and has proven, that any man or woman can have luxuriant, lustrous hair, by using a famous prescription called Parisian Sage.

Parisian Sage is now made and sold in Canada. G. W. Mahood, the druggist, is the agent in Kingston, and the readers of the Whig can buy from him for 50c. a large bottle.

G. W. Mahood knows that Parisian Sage will beautify the hair, cure dandruff and stop falling hair, and for that reason he sells it under a guarantee to cure or money back.

Some people never think of the poor old furnace until the weather is cold, then they find there is a piece broken or that there are holes in the pipes; but the fire has been lighted and the house is full of smoke. Then there is a rush order, "send a man up quick," but, alas, there are twelve orders in ahead of yours, and there is found that the repair piece must be telegraphed for and come by express.

AN ABLE LECTURE.

By a Student at Queen's Medical College.

Progressive Inquirer, Yonkers, N.Y.

On Monday Henry M. Lemont lectured at the A. M. Zion Church. The young doctor was assisted by local talent and rendered a splendid musical programme. The audience was mixed. Why the lecturer treated the subject of tuberculosis among the negroes especially, was because of the adverse environments, the economic disadvantages, climatic disadvantages, the negro's ignorance of the disease, the want of more care of the negro by the nation, and the unsanitary dwellings which the negroes are compelled to live in, especially in the cities.

The doctor said that a German physician, Dr. Koch by name, in 1882 discovered that the cause of the disease is a vegetable parasite. The subject was treated in detail. Every medical term that chanced to be used was explained, much to the delight of the lay audience and much to the satisfaction of the professional men who honored the young doctor with their presence.

Dr. Lemont did not only prove himself a student of medicine and surgery but also a student and investigator of social and political science. The young doctor is originally from Trinidad, British West Indies, and has been in America about seven years, during which time he has worked up the various steps in the ladder of labor, has pushed himself through a college course in Lincoln University, Pa., and is now a member of the final year class in the medical department of Queen's University, Canada.

'Tis Only Hot Air.

Winnipeg Free Press.

In 1900 the conservatives would not concede a single one of the seventeen western constituencies to the liberals; yet there was a tidy liberal majority west of the lakes. In 1904 Roblin and Rogers boasted weeks before the election of the coming sweep. They were going to carry all ten seats in Manitoba, and have a majority in the territories and British Columbia. They succeeded in carrying only six out of the twenty-seven seats. To-day we are having the same futile silly gasconade about sweeping the grids off the face of the earth and so forth. No one is deceived thereby. It is as certain as anything can be in politics that there will be a liberal majority in every one of the four western provinces.

William Marshall, formerly of New Zealand, is under arrest in Toronto, charged by J. T. Besthane, of Montreal, with converting to his own account some $100,000 worth of Cobalt mining stock, the property of Mr. Besthane.
