MRS. JAS. HEATHERINGTON
KILLED AT OTTAWA.

Market Gardener's Wife Was Driving Home When Her Horse Took Fright at a Pile of Stones on the Road and Ran Away.

Ottawa, Sept. 28.—While driving from the market on Saturday, at noon, Mrs. James Heatherington, an Ottawa market gardener's wife, was pitched from an express wagon near the Somerset bridge, and so terribly crushed, that she died on minutes afterwards. The horse she was driving took fright at a pile of stones one side of the road, and ran away, upsetting the wagon against a telegraph pole. The unfortunate woman was thrown out with great violence, many of her ribs being broken and the pieces piercing her lungs.

The General Synod of the Church of England in Canada devoted the greater part of Saturday's sitting to a consideration of the report of the special committee appointed to prepare a new hymnal. A resolution was adopted by both houses expressing hearty approval of the hymnal as submitted to the synod by J. E. Jones of Toronto, but the resolution was coupled with the proviso that nothing in the hymnal shall be construed as authorizing a pronouncement upon any doctrinal question.

THE RAIN WAS SMALL.

It Fell in Toronto After a Long Drought.

Toronto, Sept. 28.—There was a little rain storm this morning, .06 inches of rain falling, thus breaking the long dry spell. Small showers have fallen at intervals since, but they hardly serve more than to dampen the long parched ground. According to the weather authorities this morning's rain was the result of a disturbance over the western states, which concentrates the moisture to the westward and developed energy as it came east. Rain is falling over Lake Superior and a large part of the lake region. It is promised that the weather will turn considerably colder to-night, with westerly and north-westerly gales.

He was thrown to one side unconscious, but upon examination it was found he sustained nothing more than two scalp wounds. He was conveyed to the general hospital, but was able to leave for his home at midnight.

IS HE STILL ALIVE?

MRS. TUTTON THINKS SHE HAS A CLUE.

Believes a Captain Whose Picture She Saw in a Paper Was Her Father Who Was Reported Drowned.

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 28.—Mrs. James Tutton, of this city, believes that her father, Robert Roberts, a sailor who was reported drowned in Toronto harbor, thirty-two years ago, is still living. The Roberts at that time lived in Port Hope, Ont. Robert was first mate and his brother, William Roberts, was second mate on the same vessel. In the fall of 1876, in Toronto harbor, the two men were working in the stern of the boat. Robert Roberts lost his balance and fell overboard and was reported drowned. His body was not recovered. Certain circumstances led to the conclusion on the part of his family that he had saved himself in some way, though they never again heard from him. Recently the likeness of a Capt. McKeighan, who was temporarily in Detroit, was printed in a local paper as that of a man who had been sailing over sixty years. Mrs. Tutton is certain that the likeness is that of her father. The name given by the visitor was the family name of Mrs. Tutton's mother. Mrs. Tutton is communicating with other members of her family and will try to find Capt. McKeighan, who is definitely whether or not he is her long lost father, Robert Roberts.

He was removed to the hospital.

A Minister Of Labor.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier's announcement that his government would establish a separate department of labor is a welcome one. Since the department was established and joined with that of the post-office, the work done rapidly both in bulk and importance, especially since the Lemaux act came into force, and it is now of sufficient importance to call for the separation of the two departments and the appointment of a minister to attend solely or entirely to the concerns of labor.

We think it would be a great move to transfer the dominion immigration bureau from the department of the interior to the new department of labor. Immigration and labor are two matters closely allied and could appropriately be administered together.

A GREATER REVENUE

MATTER ONE OF LIFE AND DEATH FOR GERMANY.

New Taxes Opposed—Bitter Legislative Battle Expected When Reichstag Meets—Government Must Find Over $500,000,000.

Berlin, Sept. 28.—Germany's necessity of finding between $500,000,000 and $852,500,000 for its revenue during the next five years by means of new taxes forecasts the bitter legislative battle in imperial history, beginning with the assembling of the reichstag on November 4th. Secretary of the Imperial Treasury Sydow's formal announcement, which is being spread through the medium of an article in the Deutsche Rundschau, this week, contains no surprise for the country, but it constitutes the first official pronouncement of the empire's financial emergency, and paves the way for a national controversy which is destined to last many months.

Herr Sydow intimates that the government proposes to introduce fresh taxation on articles of general consumption, including primarily spirits, fruits and wines, and increased inheritance taxes on estates of over $5,000. He makes no mention of the generally anticipated taxes on gas and electricity.

All the parties except the socialists are in practical agreement that the empire's revenue system must be reformed on the basis of new taxation, but whether Prince Von Buelow will be able to find a majority from liberal or non-descript conservative-liberal-radical parliamentary bloc is a question that is giving the government anxious moments. Each one of the proposed new taxes meets with opposition in some quarter. Bargaining with this or that party will be the order of the day from the outset of the session. There are already indications that the government is so determined to pass the taxation reform bill at all costs that the kaiser will not hesitate to dissolve the reichstag and make a fresh appeal to the country, as he did two years ago, if the present parliament proves unmanageable.

Herr Sydow earnestly describes the situation as a life or death question for Germany, and appeals to the patriotism of the country, regardless of party, for assistance in its speedy solution.

Although the army and naval legislation, particularly the naval, are notoriously responsible for the enormous increase in the national deficits, Herr Sydow and other government opponents of the reform scheme find it politic not to refer to that phase of the situation.

Harvest Home Service.

Yesterday was Thanksgiving day in the First Baptist church. Busy hands had decorated the building with a wealth of fruits and flowers. The pastor preached a thanksgiving sermon at the morning service.

There is every indication of early movement of corn.

Three days more are left in September, but the leading shorts show no easiness and these when are long appear confident of their position. It is all guess work to say how the books of the leading longs and shorts stand. The bull traders say that they stand. The bear traders say that they delivered, while one of the largest shorts say that they have within 10,000 bushels of cash corn necessary to deliver on their sales, and they expect to have it in the next two days.

Owner Lost Picture Of the Steamer Toronto.

"That's a picture of my best girl; I'll give $10 to the fellow who will get it for me."

Leaving over the railing of the steamer Toronto, while she was at the wharf, a young man was heard to make the above statement. He was very much excited and from all appearances had been indulging a little too freely. He cried in a loud stentorian voice, and attracted much attention, on the wharf. People craned their neck to see what was the matter and it was found that the young man, while leaning over the rail, had dropped the photograph in the water, and it was being carried away. Two laborers in a canoe nearby were told service in the near future.

Mr. Ryker, Newark, N.J., trolling in Maskoota Bay, caught not only one, but two, fine specimens of the "great northern pickerel," which are called muskies, and both were very fine specimens. The largest of the two weighed twenty-five pounds, and the smallest fifteen and one-half pounds.

Camden lost one of its old citizens in the person of George W. Fox, who died Sept. 15th, aged seventy-eight years. The deceased was born in New York state and came to Canada when young.
