THE DOCTOR SAID "I CAN'T HELP YOU"

Suffered 10 Months with Kidney Complaint. Gin Pills Cured.

Dunvegan, Inverness Co. I am perfectly cured of Kidney complaint after using Gin Pills. Six hours after taking the first pill I obtained relief, and now after three months I feel as well as ever. I suffered ten months and the Physician attending me advised me to go to the Victoria Hospital at Halifax, as he could do nothing more for me. I may add that I used a great deal of medicine, and strictly followed my physician's directions regarding diet, etc., but without avail, until provisionally I learned of your most excellent remedy. I am recommending Gin Pills.

FRESHLY MINED

Coal is far more desirable than that dug out of the earth a year ago. It's cleaner—hasn't stored up twelve months' dirt and dust. It's dryer and in many ways a greater heat producer. Here it is at your service on quick order—bright, well screened coal in all the standard sizes at standard prices for better even than standard quality.

Daily Whig.

CONSPIRACY AND PROPHECY. Sir Mackenzie Bowell presided at the Picton conservative meeting. Who can forget the pitiful tale of treachery he told in the senate chamber in March 1st, 1905? Then he recalled what had been told him in 1896 by Hon. John Costigan, who had been approached by Hon. Mr. Foster and invited to desert his leader. He had gone on New Year's day to call on the members of his government, and was entertained by the ladies in Mr. Foster's parlor, while a conspiracy went on against him in the library. Sir Charles Tupper appeared upon the scene later and was offered and accepted the premiership. The whole thing had so impressed the electorate that on the first opportunity they (the conspirators) were relegated to the opposition. "There," added the venerable senator, "they will remain, if I can interpret public opinion, so long as they are important factors in the conservative party." How does this sound or read in the light of passing events?

AN OPEN CONFESSION.

In the news columns of the daily press there is duly credited to the leader of the opposition, as having been delivered at Picton, this solemn declaration: "I admit that there are camp followers who, if the conservative party came into power to-morrow, would be trying to dip their arms into the public treasury up to the elbows. The merit of any government ought to be that it should be able to resist men in its own ranks who are there simply for what they can make off any party that happens to be in power."

HE WILL MOVE AWAY.

Blind Man Who is Tormented by Rowdies. Although Patrick Lennon was accused in the police court this morning, of using abusive language, the fact could not be denied that he is tormented a great deal by a crowd of rowdies. Lennon, who is blind, admitted using some strong language, but stated that the boys had been teasing him so much that he almost went out of his mind. He said that, on Saturday afternoon last, some of the boys took his cap, and after dipping it in water, slapped him in the face with it. This was enough to make nearly any person angry, and Patrick made the air blue with his remarks. Lennon, who lives on Upper William street, said that he would move away from that neighborhood, and on this condition, the case was dismissed. The magistrate remarked that it was a most comfortable trick for the boys to tease Lennon, and told the latter to give the police the names of the guilty parties, and they would be summoned before the court. Lennon is now in possession of the names of some of his tormentors and fellow-police court case will likely follow.

Will Come Some Day.

There will, however, grow up an issue in Canada one of these days which will overwhelm all others; and this issue will be a demand upon clean leaders to ally themselves only with clean associates if they wish to command the confidence of the country. After all, parliamentary government is not entirely a business of leaders. The most powerful premier or leader of the opposition is bound down, more or less, by the sort of men who sit about him. He is seldom strong enough to be wholly independent of his following. The result is that when we elect a leader with noble principles and lofty ideals, and then imprison him in a parliamentary party of "grifters," patronage-hunters and corporation "louts," we get just about as much good government out of him as we get flight out of a kite with an impossible tail.

Not A Good Campaign.

London Advertiser. To the was something pathetic about Mr. Borden's meeting. He had a big crowd, and the conservatives in the audience were ready to ignite if he would kindle the spark; but they waited in vain. It was not Mr. Borden's fault, but his misfortune. He simply had not the temperament of a public speaker, and it can't be acquired. His hearers were almost tempted to believe that if a man who presumes to be a public leader can't put fire into his speech, he ought to put his speech into the fire.

GEORGIAN BAY CANAL

HALF A MILLION DOLLARS SPENT IN THE SURVEY.

A Scheme Very Much in the Hearts of the People—Discussion of Routes—Must Meet Demands of Transportation.

Laurier at North Bay. "We have spent half a million of dollars and a little more in order to have surveys made in connection with the Georgian Bay canal. Who finds fault with that? Certainly not Mr. Foster. What shall I say on this canal? You will expect some word from me about it. I received to-day four addresses, three at the station—two from the mayor and the city council, another from the board of trade, another from my fellow-compatriots of French origin—and now one from the liberals of North Bay and Nipissing, and in every one of these addresses reference is made to one subject—the Georgian Bay canal. The Georgian Bay canal, I judge, is very much in your hearts. Let me tell you this, that if you have the Georgian Bay canal before your hearts and thoughts, and if it be a scheme to your hearts, it is just as much a scheme in my own heart. (Cheers.) The Georgian Bay canal is not a monopoly of the people of North Bay, or the people of North Ontario, it interests the people of the Mattawa river, the Ottawa river, Lake Nipissing, and French river. The Georgian Bay canal interests the city of Montreal, and all the habitants on the St. Lawrence river. Nay, the Georgian Bay canal interests much more than the people who are here, but it is of interest almost as much as to ourselves to the men who to-day till the soil and raise wheat in the prairie provinces. There is no necessity for me to advocate a Georgian Bay canal. Why, sir, we have only to look at history. The route of the Georgian Bay canal has been the route of trade from the earliest days of the colonists.

"If, instead of in the year 1908 we had good on the banks of Lake Nipissing in the year 1808, you would have found a flotilla of birch canoe coming from the great prairies, which were then ruled by the bison and other wild animals with fur; for in the fur trade the early French voyagers followed the route by the Ottawa, Mattawa, Nipissing and French rivers, and the chain of lakes, to carry the produce of the day to distant parts. That trade has passed away, but we have now another trade, which is being developed by the great numbers of men whom we have brought in the last few years into the west. They must have the shortest and best and cheapest route to the market, and it goes without saying that the shortest and cheapest route would be over the Georgian Bay canal. I was the other day in the town of Niagara, and I was asked what about the Welland canal. I had no hesitation in saying that the Welland canal, which is now fourteen feet deep, ought to be deepened to twenty feet at least, but if there are people on the St. Lawrence who would look askance on the Georgian Bay canal or if there are people on Lake Nipissing who would look askance at the deepening of the canal, the French Lawrence, I would say to them, 'Oh ye of little faith, you do not know the possibilities of your country.'"

"We must have the Grand Trunk Pacific, the Georgian Bay canal, the Welland canal deepened to twenty feet, and more railways, and we shall have hardly means enough of transportation for the immense development I foresee in the west. This is the policy, but when shall it be? I must speak with perfect frankness. I cannot say whether we will be ready to commence building the Georgian Bay canal, to-day, or to-morrow, because we have a falling revenue and a heavy expenditure on some of our projects. But I provide spurs me, and the Canadian people leave me, and my friends at the head of affairs, it will be our duty to take up the resources of the country permit us. These things, however, cannot come all at once. Canada was not built in a day; we must keep this goal before our eyes for ourselves and for our descendants, and I hope for ourselves to take it up at no distant date." (Cheers.)

Down on Race Cries.

Victoria Colonist. The cheap policy, the poor appreciation of public duty, which lead an English-Canadian newspaper to seek gain at the expense of its party by representing that there is a racial issue in Canada are hurtful to the state. We earnestly hope that the example set by the newspapers referred to will not be followed. It is worth remembering that we all will have to live in Canada after the election, and, therefore, ought not to raise difficulties which may prove obstacles to that harmony upon which so much of the progress of the dominion depends.

PAGES FROM HIS RECORD.

Foster's Efforts to Recover Himself—Not in Demand.

Lindsay Post. With the people of Canada think what it means to place in power over them a man of Foster's stripe—a grifter over his own signature—an applicant for a free timber limit—a man described by the head of his party as traitor—a man whose native province refused to elect him—a discarded and rejected political candidate—a man whom business associates discharged from their employ—a political purist who was unseated for corruption—a man with a general all round unsavoury reputation. What does Canada want with a man of this kind in high official position?

The fact that this man is making every effort to gain political office should be a warning to the people to use every effort to make him understood once and for all that Canadian public men must be without reproach, of clean lives, public and private, and against whom no official record exists which stamps them as undesirable factors in public affairs.

If you measure Foster by the standard with which he measures others, he would not measure an inch. The man is offensive to his party, as freely stated by the party organs, and his record is a stench in the nostrils of the public. Since George E. Foster was found guilty of gambling with the trust funds of the widows and orphans of the Foresters, which funds he placed in peril by illegal dealings, he has become an impossibility as a minister of the crown, and undesirable in any public position of trust.

Search For Pure Men.

Montreal Star. The people, however, have a remedy in their own hands, if they will only apply it. They can poll against men whose influences within their respective parties is of a sinister character. They can go far toward giving us two clean parties in the next parliament. Men under suspicion can be left at home until they have cleared the suspicion away. It is not unfair to ask a representative man to keep his name clean or to make way for one of the many among his fellow-citizens whose reputations are untarnished. A member of parliament should be the best man in his constituency for the position. It should never be a case of putting up with a "fair middling" specimen, but of searching the district over and getting the very best representative public man we can find. We have the whole dominion out of which to select some two hundred odd members. That we should permit one to join the two hundred, about whom we are even suspicious, is surely a humiliating comment on our common sense. The people should teach the politicians that, when they put up a tainted candidate, they lose the seat.

Virtues Of Laurierism.

Toronto News. No sane person pretends that nothing of national value has been accomplished by the Laurier administration.

"Only a mad partizanship would deny the advantages of certain of its achievements.

"The British preference, the railway commission, the Lomieux act, the extension of the Intercolonial railway to Montreal, the improvement of the St. Lawrence waterway, the activities of the department of immigration, all stand to its credit.

"The department of agriculture has been well administered. Good work has been done by the labor department. There have been good results from the heavy expenditures on the militia."

A Place Of Peace.

Collier's Weekly. The island (Prince Edward), will get its tunnel in due time, but not, one supposes, from Mr. Foster. Meanwhile there are people in that little earthly paradise who don't care whether they have a tunnel or not. If the tunnel comes along, all right. If it doesn't, all right too—for solitude breeds great thoughts.

ITCHY SKIN.

ANY PART OF BODY CURED

Dr. Hamilton's Ointment the most curative ointment known. It cleanses away sick skin. It renders the skin smooth, soft and pliable.

It removes redness, dryness and cracks. Itchiness is just an effort of sick skin to get rid of dead cuticle.

Dr. Hamilton's Ointment is both food and cure—it removes the cause—it cures the result.
