More proof that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cures sick women.

Miss M. R. Morin, 335 Ontario St., Montreal, writes to Mrs. Pinkham:

"I was in very poor health and doctored for months, receiving very little benefit. I had lost all ambition, was nervous, and subject to dizzy spells and painful periods each month.

"A friend suggested Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as the proper medicine for me. I procured a bottle of this remedy and began taking, and before it was finished, I felt so much better that I continued its use and gave it a thorough test, with the result I am to-day well and a much healthier girl than I was three years ago. I have no more painful periods, dizziness or nervous troubles."

FINISHED HIS WORK

LET LAURIER HAVE AN. OTHER LEASE OF POWER

Reasons Why the People Should Send His Government Back to Power—It Has Done Things.

In twelve years the liberal government has accumulated surpluses amounting to $112,000,000. That is what Mr. Foster calls "criminal extravagance." Give us this "criminal extravagance" all our lives.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier at North Bay.

Let Laurier finish his work:

Why?

Because the liberal party has the only modern national policy of progress.

It has proved its worth during its twelve years of administration through its development of the country's resources.

It has increased the country's population ten times more rapidly than did its predecessors, settling most of them upon the land and thus opening up new markets for the factories of the east.

It has built, and is building, railways.

It has deepened the canals.

It has made the St. Lawrence a lighted street.

It has given the people work doubling the opportunities of our young men in their own country and thus keeping them at home.

It has dissipated the dark past and inaugurated a new national optimism.

It has the confidence of the people because it has a policy which stands for the development of Canada from Halifax to Prince Rupert.

It is at the head of the procession, and will succeed itself.

It has given Canada more substantial legislation along the lines of social reform than any other government in Canada's history.

It has had a series of financial surpluses unparalleled in the country's annual.

It is building a new transcontinental railway which is bound to have tremendous effect upon the development of the dominion.

It increased the country's trade by $376,000,000 in eleven years.

It has developed the commerce between Canada and the mother country at a rate of increase eleven times greater than during the conservative regime.

It has provided cold storage for the farmers' products from the farm to the consumer.

It has converted a deficit in the post office into a substantial surplus, while reducing the rates of postage and is now engaged in inaugurating a system of rural mail delivery.

It has established the railway commission to control the corporations in the interests of the people.

It has placed Canada first among the daughter states of the empire, securing recognition for the dominion by the diplomats of the whole world.

It has reduced the net debt per head of the people of the country.

It has increased the subsidies to the provinces by $2,287,641.

These are but a few illustrations of the work accomplished for Canada by Laurier.

But much as Sir Wilfrid has done he proposes to do more.

The people will see to it that he is allowed to finish his work and to finish it in case.

His pace is the pace of a man who has much to do, of a man in a hurry to give the strength of the days which remain to his beloved country.

The empire is proud of him. Canada revers him as the chieftain of success.

That is why Canada will decide that the time has not yet come to relieve him of his task as the master nation-builder!

Does Not Condemn Foster.

Hamilton Times.

What power does Hon. George E. Foster possess over the tory leader that he is able to flout him with impunity? This discredited "Man With a Past," this leader of "the nest of traitors," who betrayed Sir Mackenzie Bowell when he was the party leader, this hero of "a moment of weakness" as a prohibitionist, this exposed speculator on the insurance commission inquiry, that in the face of the dislike of the tory leader's associates, and the condemnation of leading tory organs which advise that he be thrown overboard, is still sheltered by Borden, although not allowed on the same platform? Look at his record and the circumstances and ask yourself why Borden at Toronto felt called upon to declare: "I have known Mr. Foster for twelve years and I have yet to hear of one public act of that gentleman which was not straightforward, creditable to himself and creditable to his country." Can it be that Mr. Foster holds Borden at his mercy? Was the tory leader more closely associated with the Foster, Fowler, Lefurgey crowd's North-West land deal than the public may suspect? What is the nature of Foster's hold on Borden?

Recovering The Loot.

Edmonton Bulletin.

Glen Campbell, conservative candidate in Dauphin, is a member of the Galway Horse and Cattle company, the owners of the Brown-Beddingfield grazing lease. Mr. Campbell then must be one of the gentlemen whom Mr. Ames says the government has been helping to get rich at the public expense. If Mr. Ames is correctly understood he regards the Brown-Beddingfield lease as a particularly outrageous sacrifice of public interests. Presumably, then, this is one of the cases in which restitution is in order. Is Glen Campbell making restitution the burden of his campaign song? Does he seek a seat at Ottawa that as a member of parliament he may insist that as a member of the Galway Horse and Cattle company he should be forced to "disgorge"? If Glen Campbell is the malefactor Mr. Ames seems to think him it is a trifle odd he should want to go to Ottawa to help Mr. Ames recover the "loot"? Or is it to be understood that restitution would be tempered with discrimination, that the avenger would pass in mercy the doors whose lintels bore the emblem of the faithful?

THE TROUPE OF PREMIERS.

Feats of the Men Who Ask the People's Attention.

Toronto Globe.

Three of Mr. Borden's principal planks are civil service reform, the land for the settler, and the abolition of the patronage list in purchasing supplies. In the promotion of these policies he is aided by Premier Hazen, of New Brunswick; Premier Roblin, of Manitoba, and Hon. W. J. Hanna, of Ontario. What is the record of these gentlemen on civil service reform? Mr. Roblin has been in office eight years. Have you ever heard of his making a move in that direction? It is matter of notoriety that his principle is, To the victor belongs the spoils.

Mr. Hanna has been in office four years. Have you heard of any movement towards civil service reform on his part or that of any of his colleagues? He is the politician who dismissed all the liquor license inspectors in the province and put in their places persons recommended by the tory patronage committees. That is the sort of a civil service reformer he is. His appointees have to pass an examination as to the depth and color of their toryism before the patronage committees ere receiving their jobs.

The land for the settler! Just think of Mr. Roblin as a supporter of that plank!—the gentleman who sold to speculators in five years at a low price 420,728 acres out of 542,560 acres which was handed over to him by the federal government for the benefit of his province. The whole of it was sold in large blocks.

During the days of conservative administration 32,000,000 acres were given away to railway companies and 9,952,840 to settlers. Under liberal administration not an acre was given away to corporations, and 35,501,600 acres to settlers.

Then as to the abolition of the patronage list in buying supplies. Has it been abolished in Ontario or in Manitoba? Messrs. Hanna and Roblin practise it and enforce it from the 1st of January to the 31st of December. Mr. Hanna, who does the great bulk of the purchasing for the government institutions in Ontario, sees to it that not even a package of tacks is bought from anyone who is not on his patronage list.

Talk about an organized hypocrisy! Surely the troupe of premiers bear the palm over all competitors. Would the News look for "hot stuff" nearer home?

A Page From The Past.

Ottawa Free Press.

That eminent apostle of political purity and the celebrated exponent of the doctrine of "playing the game fairly" is very fond of travelling around the dominion with his lantern slide and his illustrated lectures, designed to prove that political conditions in Canada are in a parlous state to-day, that the only salvation for the people is to turn the liberals out.

Yet when tories were "in," what did he say about them? In a lecture delivered in Montreal in 1902, when the conservative party was in full possession of the reins of government, Mr. Ames said:

"I admit that there is much truth in the accusation that a corrupt but energetic minority may rule an honest but lethargic majority and endanger the very principles of representative government; that our civil service, supposed to be conducted on business principles, has degenerated into little better than a prize system, by which services to the party in power are recognized and rewarded; that so great has become the influence of money that parties to win the elections deem it necessary to expend enormous sums, for the collection of which begging, borrowing, bullying, and even stealing is considered justifiable; that no account is rendered to any responsible party, and that in the expenditure of this fund the briber and the bribed, the rum-seller and the rum-drinker, the impersonator and the tough, all find employment and remuneration."

If that was the condition of affairs under the immediate successor to Sir John Macdonald, why does Mr. Ames consider that the conservatives would be any better now?

Out Of His Own Mouth.

Mr. Cockshutt, Ex-M.P., Conservative.

"The year just closed has been marked by a steady increase in most branches of Canadian industry. Production has materially increased, and since it is by production that we measure a nation's prosperity, we may assume that Canada has been fairly prosperous. Our factories have been kept busily employed and sales on the whole have kept pace with the advancement of other lines."

Has The Advantage.

CALLED HIM DOWN

MINISTER OF MARINE AFTER ATTORNEY GENERAL.

The British Columbia Bowser Trimmed For His Statements Which Were the Reverse of Truthful.

At London on the 23rd of September, Mr. Bowser, attorney-general of British Columbia, said according to the report in the Montreal Star: "Another case of maladministration was in connection with the well-known Mr. Merwin and his acetylene gas buoys. An officer at Vancouver was notified that stocks of gas buoys were being shipped to him. He replied that he had no place to put them. He was told to rent a warehouse and store them. They had been bought from Merwin and were on the way. This the officer did, and the buoys are stored up there now."

Mr. Brodeur hands out the following official information:

"On August 28th, 1907, the agent at Victoria wrote the department as follows: 'Buoys were landed on the C. P.R. wharf at Vancouver and are now being towed to Esquimalt, where they will be moored until arrangements have been completed to place them in position after consulting with Capt. Troop. Nothing has been found on the file with reference to the letter from an officer at Vancouver advising that he had no place to put them and being told to rent and store them. The department had no correspondence with anyone in Vancouver with reference to these buoys, and they were never stored at Vancouver, but were left on the C.P.R. wharf for a few days until a steamer could take them to Esquimalt.'"

The memo concluded with a detailed statement as to the present position of the buoys, and with the observation that of ten buoys shipped to Esquimalt seven were in active service and three were spare.

"This statement shows," Mr. Brodeur commented, "that Mr. Bowser, when he said we had bought the buoys from Merwin and when he said we had told a man to store them, did not tell the truth."

SAID BEY NOW A WRECK.

Exiles Return To Land of Their Birth.

Constantinople, Sept. 30.—Pathetic scenes are witnessed daily on the arrival home of the exiles who under the old regime were thrown into prison, many of them as long as twenty years ago.

Yesterday saw the return of Said Bey, who landed at Galata after being in exile for fifteen years. It had taken some time to find out even the place of his detention in a remote prison in Arabia, but as soon as it was discovered joyful preparations were made by his family for his return.

His sons and daughters, whom he had left almost as babes, are now grown up and married. As soon as the steamer in which Said Bey travelled was sighted an excited crowd flocked to the scala and could scarcely contain its impatience when it made fast alongside. Said Bey, however, failed to respond to the cheers and shouts for his appearance.

Finally out from the cabin was borne a stretcher, which held the wreck of the familiar Said Bey. At the sight of what fifteen years of prison life had made of what had been a young and stalwart man, the indignation of the bystanders echoed the lamentations of the family, curses and imprecations broke out on every side and the music which had been provided was imperatively ordered to cease playing.

A priest this morning said that three days ago he had been over the Broussa prison, from which nearly twelve hundred persons had been released. In one "principal" room, some five yards square, sixty-two prisoners have been confined for years, being literally without standing room and during the whole period had been fed on stale bread and water.

INSTALLED A CRECHE.

Babes Checked So As to Avoid Confusion.

Spokane, Wash., Sept. 30.—Mothers who say they are too busy to go to church on Sunday because infant members of the household requires their attention, cannot plead overwork or offer that as an excuse any longer, as Rev. A. C. Grier, pastor of First Universalist church, has installed a creche; where the babies may be stored during the services. A capable caretaker and nurses have been provided, the babes are checked in a way that will avoid confusion, and they receive as much care as though their mothers had charge. The plan was tried last Sunday and worked out in a way that earned the admiration of many. It is believed that this is the first time a creche has been established in connection with a church, and it is expected that the plan will be followed by other churches in Spokane.

Let Laurier Finish His Work.

Sir Wilfrid at Clinton.

"We have built new railways. We have deepened canals. We have improved harbors. We have lighted the St. Lawrence, and the result of it has been that, to-day, we have not only cheapened the cost of transportation to the people of Canada, but are getting the carrying of American goods. These are some of the things we have done. But there is another. We have labored to bring our country to the rank and station it now occupies. In a thousand and one different ways we have endeavored to create an atmosphere for the Canadian people to live and move in. Our policy has been to have every possible and due consideration for our duties and obligation as British subjects, because we are both Canadians and British subjects. Our policy I summed up at the last imperial conference. It has been imperial unity based upon local autonomy. This is the principle for which we are fighting."

Laurier The Canadian.

Quebec Le Soliel.

Those who like Mr. Hanna would like to continue the miserable game of exhibiting to the Protestant English population of Ontario a phantom French, Catholic province in Quebec, will perceive that the people of Ontario are beginning to see through their game. The cry of "Laurier the Frenchman," will find no echo henceforth in Ontario, for the electors there have just greeted him with the title which is truly his, "Laurier, the great Canadian."

At some period in a man's life he firmly believes that all his friends have conspired to injure him.

CAUSED BY LOVE?

Discuss Question Because of the Coquelin Case.

Paris, Sept. 30.—Dr. Bertillon, the director of the Paris asylum for the insane, has been studying love as a mental disease and says he has found that when love is so intense as to approach a state of mental aberration the whole left side of the body becomes hypersensitive. Such love, he says, as leads to passionate crime is merely a form of madness.

Dr. Briand, director of the Villejuif asylum, contends, on the other hand, that love never leads to madness, but frequently causes money troubles, and they may result in such worry as to drive a man insane.

The discussion upon the subject of love and madness and their relation one to the other arose out of the case of Coquelin, the younger, who was confined in a private insane asylum in Paris.

Coquelin had lost a good deal of money through unfortunate speculations, but not sufficient to ruin him. He also suffered because his love for a well-known Parisian woman was not reciprocated. He became a victim to melancholia, and while with his wonderful talent as a comic actor he was nightly amusing his audiences and sending them into peals of laughter, his heart grew heavier and heavier within him. Finally he became so despondent that his friends were alarmed for him, and he was examined by physicians and put into a sanitarium.

By the exercise of great cunning he escaped and made his way through Paris on foot at night to his own doorway. Then, overwrought, weak and ill he sank on the steps, unable even to knock at the door. He was found sitting there and crying as though his heart would break.

Eminent French specialists on mental diseases are divided in opinion as to whether it was money or love that o upset poor Coquelin.
