THE PARAGRAPH PULPIT

Unitarian. REV. C. W. CASSON.

Character Counts.

After all is said and done in religion it is character that counts. What matter the truth of a creed, the beauty of a ritual, the authority of a church, if as a result the character is mean and the life meagre? What matter the lack of profession, the irreligiousness of exterior, the denial of authority, when the character is noble and the life large? Religion, like everything else, must be judged by its fruits. Its fruits are the qualities of character, honesty, purity, strength, justice, mercy. You may be a Buddhist, Confucian, Christian, but if your life is helpful and holy I have no fault to find with your religion.

Address, Rev. C. W. Casson, at 25 Beacon street, Boston, Mass., for the literature.
