

PLAYED LITTLE GAME BUT LANDED IN THE HANDS OF THE POLICE.

James Burns Goes to Jail For Begging on the Street—Raincoat Stolen From An Hotel—Cases at the Police Court.

Although James Burns, an old offender, made a strong plea, in police court, this morning, that he was honest, everything went against him. He was not only accused of being drunk, but was also charged with begging, and it also developed that he was begging under false pretences. James had in his possession a small notebook, and upon the first page appeared a memo, alleged to be signed by a Carlton Place clergyman, and which read like this: "This is to certify that I have known the bearer for the past three years, and have found him to be a sober man, and deserving of help."

When arraigned, Burns told a story about being on his way to the county, to go to work, but this yarn did not go with the magistrate, as poor James had been up before. Two months in jail, was the penalty. Constables Naylor and Bateson arrested Burns.

Henry Pearson, claiming Montreal as his home, was up for drunkenness. He told the magistrate that he had been working on a boat and was just paid off on Thursday last. A fine of $1 and costs, or ten days, was imposed.

Robert J. Philpott was accused of being drunk and disorderly. While on Princess street, near the corner of Bagot, about one o'clock Sunday afternoon, he stopped to light a cigarette. Two Chinamen, who were passing, laughed at him, and this was more than Philpott could stand. He went after the Celestials, and it is alleged that "pig tails" were flying in the air for a few minutes. A crowd of about thirty people gathered around, and there was great excitement. License Inspector Wright happened along, and he sent a call to the police. Sgt. Nesbitt escorted Philpott to the police station. Asked where he had secured the liquor, the accused said that he bought it at a local hotel on Saturday. The magistrate fined Philpott $3 and costs, with the option of twenty days.

"Your face appears familiar, but I do not remember your name," remarked the magistrate to John Murray, who was charged with being drunk. Murray had a sad tale of woe. "I would have been all right if some of the boys had not taken hold of me and asked me to drink," he said. "I was on my way to the country when asked to have a drink. In the mixup I lost a new razor, and I am sorry for it all."

"Two dollars and costs or twenty days," remarked the court. Christopher Cochrane, a young man living at Latimer, left his raincoat in the office at the Lake View hotel, early Saturday evening, and when he called, about nine o'clock, he found his coat missing. While sitting in the waiting-room, thinking about his bad luck, he was more than surprised to see a man wearing the missing raincoat, walk into the hotel.

"I think you have my coat on," said Cochrane to the stranger. "No, sir, I don't think so," was the reply. "I bought this coat from a man on the street for $1.50." However, Cochrane protested that the coat belonged to him, and Constable Filson, who was called, took possession of the man, who gave his name as Roy Gillis, and also the coat.

"I got the coat from a tall gentleman with a sandy moustache," said Gillis. "Do you suppose that if I had stolen the coat, I would have gone back to the hotel a second time? I would not have been so silly as that."

Constable Filson said that Gillis had eleven cents when arrested, and had been drinking. The magistrate said that on the evidence he found the accused guilty, and would remand him for sentence. In the meantime some inquiries would be made concerning him. Gillis said that he was born in Massachusetts, but that his parents were dead, and that he had no home. He had been living in Canada two years and had recently been employed on canal work, by a contractor at Newmarket.

TRAINING OF CHILDREN.

A Sermon in St. George's Cathedral on Sunday.

"Train up a child in the way he should go and when he is old he will not depart from it," was Dean Farthing's text for a rousing sermon on Sunday schools on Sunday night, in St. George's cathedral. "As there is no blessing like the blessing of children," said the preacher, "so there is no responsibility so great as the training of children. We, in the church, take the view that a child is the dear child of God from its baptism, and does not need to be brought within the bond of His love, after bitter repentance. But because of that bond of love we teach the child that he should always joyfully serve his Heavenly Father. The happiness or misery of both child and parent depend entirely on right training from earliest youth, yet how woefully careless are parents of to-day, forgetting that the honor of the church, of the state, of the individual, is at stake."

"Too often in this age of materialism, a child is trained not to be, or to do, but to get. A thief can get, but higher aim to set before the child is that of being and doing. In the home is the place where this ideal must be raised. Not that there must necessarily be a constant talking of religion, but the child should feel that in his home the love of honor and of truth prevails. When the child sees nothing but the grasping after material things how can things spiritual develop in him. Children from all kinds of homes are sent to us in the Sunday school and if we correct them the parents promptly express anger. That's all the support we get. The home is too heavy for Sunday school workers to bear."

The preacher then made a direct appeal for greater aid in men and money, for the equipment of the cathedral school.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

The Glenellah Troubles.

Kingston, Oct. 19.—(To the Editor): In regard to the trouble on the steamer Glenellah, referred to in Friday's Whig, I wish to say that there was no question of any hostile attitude at Port Colborne, or at any sort on the way down from Fort William. The only justification for such a report is that some two months ago the captain laid violent hands on me and in my attempt to get away the captain got more or less hurt. This matter was disposed of by a verbal agreement made with the chief engineer that no communication whatsoever should be had between the captain and myself through the chief engineer. This matter was brought to a head in Kingston by the captain bringing in the police to remove me from the ship. I refused to be removed from the boat unless there was some charge laid against me. I would not leave the boat until the promise was made that the captain would charge me. Some attempt at charge was made but apparently was broken down on the evidence of a constable. Instead of any charge being laid against me I was asked what I would like to leave the boat. I said that I would leave the boat on my receiving the one day's pay due me, and transportation to Montreal, the same being without any penalty as to any civil action. I might wish to take and I would beg to point out to the people of Kingston that whosoever should have seen me being taken from the M. T. Co's elevator under arrest may find it curious that the police station was called, and later was absolutely without grounds and that this was plainly shown by the fact that my transportation was paid to Montreal, which transportation is never paid in the case of a police court case being sustained.—(Signed) W. TODD, late second engineer S.S. Glenellah.

Death of Thomas Clancy.

A well-known resident of the city passed away, on Sunday, in the person of Thomas Clancy. He had only been ill a few days before his death, which came as quite a shock to his friends. The deceased was born in Ireland about eighty-two years ago, coming to this country when a young man. He was employed with Gunn & Co. in the shipping business for some years, and later was employed by the Gildersleeves as caretaker of their steamers in the winter. Thomas was always faithful and even in late years, despite his advanced years, he was able to do a good day's work. Two sons, Frank, of Toronto, and Thomas, of Rochester, and two daughters, at home, survive. The funeral services will be held on Tuesday morning to St. Mary's cathedral, where a solemn requiem mass will be sung for the repose of his soul.

Celebrated Silver Wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Murphy, Brewer's Mills, celebrated their silver wedding on Friday, Oct. 16th, it being their twenty-fifth anniversary. About fifteen couples were present and dancing was indulged in until midnight, when they partook of a plentiful repast. The table was beautifully decorated, a candelabra containing twenty-five candles, mounted on a glass centrepiece, illuminating the magnificent spread. The drawing room was elaborately decorated with streamers of red, white and blue ribbons, which added to the splendor of the happy event. Mr. and Mrs. Murphy received many costly and valuable presents, which shows the esteem in which they are held.

Taken to the Hospital—Thought Came This Morning—Death of a Mad Man Had Used the Gun.

Montreal, Oct. 19.—Harold Patterson, the seventeen-year-old son of Col. A. T. Patterson, with a companion, shot at Longueuil, yesterday, by an unknown man, died from his injuries at the General Hospital this morning. Young Patterson and Gordon West were out shooting in the bush, back of a town when a stranger came upon them and shot them both, the latter not being dangerously wounded. Patterson was shot through the chest and it was feared, was fatally injured, as proved to be the case. Both boys lost a lot of blood before they succeeded in securing help. It is thought by some that the man who did the shooting was a mad man who was there no motive so far as known.

HOARDED MILLIONS.

Stored Up—People Do Not Trust Government.

In India, apparently, they believe in putting a little bit away for a rainy day, and the little bit now, it is believed, amounts to what would be sufficient to ransom several kings. Sir Ernest Cable, a former member of the viceroy of India's council and an ex-president of the Bengal Chamber of Commerce, writing to The London Times, maintains that there is an enormous amount of wealth—estimated, he says, by persons of the highest authority at £300,000,000—lying fallow in India. The failure of the British government to enlist the financial confidence of the people of India Sir Ernest considers one of the weakest parts of the British administration.

LOST HIS LIFE

In Trying to Save Men From Bush Fire.

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 19.—The steamer Scottish Hero arrived at Marquette, Saturday, and reported the death of Mate Malcolm McGregor, of Owen Sound, Ont., in a brave but futile attempt to save two lighthouse keepers at Point Iroquois, in the eastern end of Lake Superior, from death by a forest fire. The keepers sounded signals of distress as the Hero was passing Point Iroquois, on Thursday. A raging wall of flame was sweeping up the point, and it seemed that the imprisoned keepers either must perish in the flames or meet death in the icy waters of Lake Superior. The sea was rolling high, but McGregor and three sailors put off in an effort to save the men. Although they tried repeatedly they were unable to land on account of the terrific fires. They were finally forced to give up the attempt. In trying to board the steamer again Mate McGregor fell into the water and was lost. The vessel remained off the point all day, Friday, trying to find McGregor's body, but the attempt was unsuccessful. Later a lighthouse tender from the Soo saved the light keepers and the station.

'Well with that anchor I should be about as frightened as the old lady in the sky-scraper hotel.'"

TIME FOR OBSERVATION.

Men Ought to Travel in Their Youth.

Youth is the time for observation, maturity the time for action, and old age the time for reflection. Slip either period out of its place and the man's life suffers. He fails to get all of both the pleasure and the profit out of his experience which he has heard so much, in youth that men ought to travel, when they can behold with the greatest delight those wonders of art and nature which should fill the beholder with awe and admiration and happiness. If he waits till maturity to see those great things which he has heard so much, he is apt to be filled only with disappointment, and, perhaps, be only sadly bored, declares the Washington Post.
