St. Regis Lumbago Cure
The Best On The Market
The W. A. Singleton Co., Crosby, Ont.
I think it my duty to tell you of the great good St. Regis Lumbago Cure has done for me. I was troubled with Lumbago for about six years. Sometimes could scarcely raise up from a chair. I tried several doctors and took nearly every kind of Patent Medicine, and would be a little better while the medicines lasted, and when they was done I was not fit to work in a very short time afterwards. About first of June I was advised to try St. Regis Lumbago Cure and am happy to say I had not taken half a bottle till the backache was gone and I have not felt it since. And I take great pleasure in recommending it to others who may be troubled with Lumbago or Kiney Troubles for I have found it to be all it is recommended for and a trial will be better for anyone than a recommendation.
Yours very sincerely,
JAMES McNEIL,
Clerk of Bedford Township.

Coal is far more desirable than that dug out of the earth a year ago. It's cleaner—hasn't stored up twelve months' dirt and dust; it's dryer and in many ways a greater heat producer. Here it is at your service on quick order—bright, well screened coal in all the standard sizes at standard prices for better even than standard quality.

TENDERING THEIR SUPPORT.
A remarkable feature of this campaign is the number of merchants, property owners, clergymen, professional and working men, who have voluntarily tendered Mr. Hartly their support.
These men tell him they are not influenced by party motives. Many of them are conservatives, who realize that the liberal government and Mr. Hartly's enterprise have secured to their prosperity during the last eight years, and they are not willing to risk the loss of it by making a change now.
These men say in effect, "What we have we'll hold." 'Tis a good motto at this time.

THE ENEMY IN RETREAT.
That the members of the tory "machine," which brought out Dr. Ross against his own better judgment, realize that their candidate is doomed to defeat, is manifest by the desperate expedients to which they are resorting. At first the campaign was to be fought fairly, and decently. No false statements or "roorbacks" were to be circulated. But as men realized the hopelessness of their cause, they fell back upon misrepresentation and deceit.
First there was the attempt to deprive Mr. Hartly of the entire credit for re-opening and retaining the locomotive works here. That was so pitilessly exposed by Mr. Berningham's letter to the Standard, that we have heard no more of it.
Then Mr. Hartly was accused of enunciating the doctrine that only a rich man should apply for a high place. Mr. Hartly's letter to the editor of the Standard, challenging him to point out a single word or line he had ever spoken or written in that strain, forced a withdrawal of the charge. But the Standard was not frank enough to say that neither Mr. Hartly, nor any liberal, but a prominent local conservative was the father of the doctrine.

Next came the statement that the Grand Trunk was bringing locomotives into Canada from the United States, and so depriving Canadian workmen and Canadian shops of the business which should be theirs. Mr. Berningham completely exposed the falseness of this statement and scored so heavily by pointing out just what had been done in this regard, under conservative rule, that the editor closed the columns of his paper to him.
Then came the "faked" Ottawa despatch announcing the retirement of Warden Platt and the appointment to his place of Deputy Warden O'Leary, and for a purpose which ever the Standard would be ashamed to acknowledge. This lie was promptly exposed on the following day, but repeated with unblinking effrontery, with another statement, just as unreliable, namely, that T. Gallagher had been dismissed from his position in the inland revenue. That Mr. Gallagher was in town and could have been communicated with, did not matter. He was not consulted. The lie had to go out, even if it had to be withdrawn the next day, the thought of the editor evidently being that at least someone would see the lie and not the correction.

Are these the tactics of fair fighters? Are they tactics one would follow who thought he had any chance of winning? No; they are the despicable tactics of men who know they are beaten. The enemy is on the run.
PLACED NO ORDERS.
In Mr. Nickle's address to the electors at the local nomination he endeavored to make some capital for his candidate and party by stating that the Whitney government had given orders for locomotives for the Temiskaming & Northern Ontario Railway to the Kingston shops, and argued that, such being the case, a tory government at Ottawa would also send its orders for the Intercolonial here, providing the Kingston firm was the lowest bidder. Mr. Nickle is wrong both as to his premises and conclusions.
In the first place the Kingston shops have not received any orders from the Whitney government. One of the wise acts of the late Ross government was to take the Temiskaming & Northern Ontario railway out of politics by placing the operation and management of it in the hands of a commission. Although the personnel of the body was changed, after Mr. Whitney came into power, its members are now, as then, business men, and the road is still managed and handled as a business enterprise, as Mr. Ross intended it should be. Consequently, when the road is in need of engines these gentlemen ask for tenders and doubtless award the contract to the lowest tenderer.

In this way orders for some engines have come to Kingston and for others have gone elsewhere. During 1905-06-07 and 1908 in all twelve engines have been ordered, whilst during the same period orders by the liberal government at Ottawa for Intercolonial engines were given for eighty-nine engines.
But that is not the point; it is rather that Mr. Nickle was wrong in saying that the Whitney government had placed orders with the Kingston shops; and further (even if these orders can be regarded as coming from a tory provincial government), there is no reason to assume that similar or any orders would come from a tory federal government. And why? The Whitney government, as every one knows, has no power over the customs tariff and its operations. The Whitney government cannot now import locomotives into this country free of duty, as the conservative government at Ottawa could, and did do. Such being the case the Whitney government has to add to the price quoted it by American or other foreign builders the Canadian duty, which would make the prices higher than those named by the Canadian builders. Hence the business had to go to some Canadian shop.
If there were a tory government at Ottawa the case might be very different. Such a government could, as before, take the position that the tariff was not to be applied to articles required by the government or its railways and that locomotives for use on the Intercolonial should come in free. This was the position taken by the tory government in 1893 and 1894, and it resulted in the decline and fall of the old locomotive company and the closing of its shops. If they took that position then, when the president of the company was a prominent and life-long conservative (the late Sir George A. Kirkpatrick), how much more likely to take it again when the shops are owned by liberals.

The liberal government's policy has brought to the shops and to Kingston abundant prosperity; why should we give up a true and tried friend for even a repentant enemy. What we have we'll hold!

WHAT WOULD HAPPEN.
Here is a straight business proposition for business men and workmen to consider. No one of any sense, who wishes to be fair, can deny that conservative rule at Ottawa means the curtailment of business to the locomotive works in Kingston. With six or seven hundred employees of that institution out of work and looking for jobs what will happen to the other workmen in Kingston? Will not the struggle become intensified and the result be more men than there are jobs for them to fill; the lowering of wages, and the return to the old familiar "hard times," with which Kingston was afflicted during the last years of the conservative rule at Ottawa?
AT YOUR SERVICE, SIR.
The humours of the campaign have been strikingly illustrated by the paper whose policy has received the imprimatur of Sir James Whitney and Robert Laird Borden.
In a recent issue appeared an editorial which dwelt upon the exalted duties of the press. It was the function of the paper which desired to command public respect, to discuss the issues of the day in an independent manner. The partisan spirit should be avoided. One might be disposed to favour a certain party on general principles, but in order to wield the greatest influence the editor should not become the general endorser or excuser of its acts. This was a noble thought, well expressed with considerable warmth of language.
Immediately following, in another article, there was the practical application of the editor's theory. The county election was under review, and sincere regret was expressed that two conservatives should find themselves in combat, with designs upon each other's life. Mr. Avery was a fine man, so wise, so nice, so amiable, so worthy of the people's regard, a man whom it would be a delight to honour ordinarily. But Dr. Edwards was the nominee of the party convention or machine and wore its tag.
The vaunted independence of the press at once disappears. It is no longer a question of right or wrong, but of surrender to the party. In response to its demands, the cry is, "Let me do your bidding. At your service, sir."

A CANDID REVIEW.
A candid review of the field seems to indicate that there is little doubt of Mr. Hartly's election. He has always held the riding by strong majorities, and it is fair to say that he has always been an active, energetic and influential advocate of everything that promised advantage to the city, and his activity in former years, on behalf of his constituents, and the success that attended most of his efforts, have given him such a strong hold upon the confidence and sympathy of the people, that he is a difficult candidate to overthrow. And aside from political considerations, while the majority will regard his election as a great advantage for Kingston, his bitterest opponent will not, in his heart, regard it as a calamity. If elected, every man, what his politics, will have a zealous and capable advocate of his interests at the dominion capital.

HIGH-HANDED WORK.
Talk about your ballot stuffing and ballot stealing. The record of the past, had as it is, and somewhat startling in some respects, is lacking in anything which compares with the high-handed act which Attorney-General Foster contemplates.
He has been informed that some five hundred names have been added to the voters' lists in the Algomas (east and west), and because it is suspected that they represent liberals an attempt will be made to prevent their use of the ballot.
The Globe calls this "ballot robbery." It is that and more. It is the most barefaced attempt at electoral intimidation that has ever been planned. The polls will be manned by constables and only those will be permitted to vote who wear the tory tag.
This is the game to which the attorney-general has lent himself on the eve of the election, and he is the big policeman of the province, the official who is supposed to represent justice and morality as well as power.
"The whole thing," Mr. Aylesworth concludes, "bears evidence of having been prepared for the purpose of influencing voters in the election. It would seem that if there were a desperate plot, it is a desperate attempt on the part of the tory attorney-general of Ontario to intimidate honest voters by sending special police to attend them."

to the ward system of electing school trustees, because the present board is extravagant. Another warning to some people in Kingston to leave well enough alone.
The Montreal Gazette accounts for the Laurier enthusiasm by the fact that his train carried some of the bunting. It did not carry the tens of thousands who turned out to hear him. Their applause was not "embalmed."

Mr. Avery gives a quietus to the story that he is the tool or implement of the liberals in this election. He is a conservative who suffered a crush in the machine and is submitting his case to the people for final adjustment on Monday.
Hon. Mr. MacKay has encouraging news of liberal prospects in the election. The Toronto News heard that kind of talk before the last local election. The Whig heard it when Mr. Foster telegraphed that his party was going to sweep New Brunswick and it was snuffed out, Mr. Foster losing his seat and his reputation as a prophet.

Record of The Party.
Winnipeg Free Press.
Of the great conservative leader, whose reputation is still the party's greatest asset, J. S. Willison, who is now one of the conservative party's main support in Ontario, had to say in an important contribution which he has made to the history of Canadian politics: "Bribery of the individual voter, bribery of constituencies by promises of railways and public buildings, and bribery of provinces by timely re-arrangements of the financial terms of confederation all obtained under the regime of Sir John Macdonald, and if he did not originate, he at least did something to perpetuate and establish these deep-seated evils in our politics. A still sterner judgment must be passed upon the redistribution act of 1882, and the franchise act of 1885. These were bold and direct attempts to use the power of a parliamentary majority to stifle public opinion and destroy freedom of elections."
