POLITICS ACROSS THE WAY.
The New York Herald has made a most careful survey of the political field—collecting its information through special correspondents and analyzing it with great care—and the result is a declaration to the effect that Mr. Taft will be elected to the presidency of the republic.

The states which are regarded as reasonably safe for Mr. Taft are: California, Connecticut, Delaware, Idaho, Illinois, Iowa, Kansas, Maine, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, North Dakota, Ohio, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Utah, Vermont, Washington, West Virginia, and Wisconsin. These represent 280 votes in the electoral college.
The states that are reasonably sure for Mr. Bryan are: Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Maryland, Mississippi, Missouri, Nevada, North Carolina, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas and Virginia. These have 156 votes in the electoral college.
The doubtful states are: With democratic leanings, Nebraska and Kentucky, with 21 votes. With republican leanings, Indiana, Colorado, Montana, and Wyoming, with 26 votes.

Put in another way the situation is as follows: Votes in the electoral college, 453; sure for Taft, 280; sure for Bryan, 186; doubtful, 47.
The contest in New York is getting warmer as the day of polling draws near. The campaign for the governorship has been described as "neck and neck," and this was due to the apparent lukewarmness of many republicans because of Mr. Hughes' attitude towards the public utilities, and the race track, and the anti-gambling act which he carried in the legislature.
But the party cannot afford to let the state go democratic, because it is afraid of Tammany Hall which, as described by the Buffalo News, independent, "is a body of plunderers, of allies of thieves, of gamblers and robbers, public and private." It is credited with increasing the yearly cost of New York's city government by $80,000,000 in ten years, and the republicans fear that with it in command of state offices there would be something doing politically.

Hence the Hughes' candidature, with all that it stands for, is appealing to the popular support, and the man's re-election by a large majority is now considered certain.
LAYMEN IN MISSIONS.
Kingston has heard something of the power, the force, the value of the Laymen's Missionary Movement, but more will be known about it ere the series of special meetings which are now in progress have been completed. Every great movement has had a remarkable beginning. In 1781 there was established, as an outcome of a great revival in England, a monthly concert of prayer, and the founding of the first distinctly foreign missionary society occurred in 1792. This led to the consecration of William Carey to Oriental missions in 1793. He translated the Bible into forty different tongues and the circulation of 200,000 copies, "provided," as the record reads, "vernacular Bibles, for 500,000,000 souls within the space of half a century."
The China Inland Mission had its commencement in Canada. Mr. Taylor was at a conference at Niagara-on-the-Lake in 1858. As a result of one address he was tendered $2,500. Thirteen persons at the same time volunteered for missionary service. He feared for results financially, but the churches to which the volunteers belonged insisted on paying the expenses, and his anxiety was increased in another way so that he cried out, "Don't give me any more money unless you give the men and women to use it."
John R. Mott came into view with the Students' Missionary Movement later, and gave as its motto the evangelization of the world in this generation. It went forth to the universities of America and Europe, and in a short time thousands of picked men, trained men, offered themselves, so that missionary boards began to rub their eyes. Then the Young People's Missionary Movement went around the Sunday schools and young people's societies, and to-day there are tens of thousands of young men and women holding up before themselves the prospect of going out as missionaries into the heathen field.
Two years ago the Laymen's Missionary Movement had its birth in New York, in the desire to use the business men with their business methods, and give a new and mighty impulse to the missionary cause. It has been cordially endorsed by the churches, and by their co-operation it is spreading all over the North American continent. It is winning the enthusiastic support of the most active churchmen. The laymen, it is said, like to tackle big problems, and there is nothing larger than the religious conquest of the heathen world.

To be sure the business men must revel in figures, and the record of the missionary movement gives them all they can desire in this respect. Thus there are to-day, 6,000 societies, which aim to reach 325,000,000 people, a number that is larger than the united populations of America, Great Britain, Germany and France, and there remain 675,000,000 unprovided for Canada's share in the work is the evangelization of 40,000,000 persons, and there are 900,000 church members who must see that it is done.

Is the task stupendous? The Laymen's associations are not at all dismayed. They are meeting their obligation cheerfully. In twenty cities there have been increased contributions, and to a remarkable extent. Note a few of them: Toronto, from $141,000 last year to $500,000; Montreal, (half the church membership), from $100,000 to $250,000; Ottawa, and only 12,235 persons, from $28,250 to $75,000; Hamilton, from $40,000 to $75,000; London, from $25,000 to $50,000; Victoria, B. C., from $4,000 to $25,000; Vancouver, from $27,000 to $75,000; Winnipeg, from $8 to $10 per head. The plan is to raise $10 per head from all sources, and all missionary contributors. All cannot do it, but they may average that sum. Many men have given $1,000 each. Some have given larger amounts. The best of all is that they do not limit or reduce their gifts for other purposes.
The movement will be considered in all its phases at the meetings which will be held in the city this evening, and to-morrow. On Friday evening there will be a banquet—the favourite mode of getting closer to the business men—and the addresses then to be given will largely determine the success of the cause in Kingston.

EDITORIAL NOTES.
Bourassa's stamp of approval does not count for much while Sir Wilfrid Laurier is around.
The Toronto News has retired from the prophecy business. The seer who was so much in evidence in the late election has given up the ghost.
The Telegram suggests that Mr. Borden make more use of Mr. Maclean, M.P. The trouble is, Mr. Maclean will not follow. He wants to lead.
Mr. Foster will talk no more about the tunnel connecting Prince Edward Island with the main shore. The islanders do not take him at all seriously.
After immoral plays in Toronto, and not a day too soon. There must be a cleansing of some of the play houses if "Toronto the good" is not going to lose its name.
Sir James Whitney, Mr. Hanna, and Mr. Foster have nothing to say about the late elections. Wise men. They realize that the province resented their untimely interference.
The hole in the ceiling at one of the polling booths, to which Rev. Dr. Chown referred in Kingston, has not yet been located. It was the find of the purity movement.
Dr. Reaume is extolled as an example of Ontario's affection for the French-Canadians. And he showed that affection by preaching against Laurier and his associates.

Mr. Hanna had it that the country was wild over Borden, and that there was to be an upheaval as in 1878. Just what Hanna meant is not apparent in view of past experiences.
The nationalist cause in Quebec is not succeeding very well. All its candidates—three in the federal and one in the local (Quebec) elections—went down before the people's displeasure.
The consolation of the Ottawa Journal is that the liberal government will have a poor time of it in the next five years, and that the conservatives will have a better chance for success next time. Really?
A paper that has done great work for the liberal party is the Canadian Freeman, the best Catholic weekly in Ontario. It weathered stormy times in 1896, but stuck to its colors and upheld the principles of liberalism. Proprietor Daley intimates that he is getting grey in service. The result of Monday's elections should serve as a tonic to him and aid him in renewing his youth.
THE CAMPAIGN.
The laymen have not responded with credit to the call of the great movement. The women remained the meeting by adding their numbers last evening. The conferences to-day were not well attended. Surely the men will gather to-night in force, workman, student and business worker alike.

A Word In Season.
Montreal Witness.
Our latest anxiety in industrial quarters has not been how to keep our people at home to fill our workshops, but how to keep people from abroad from pouring in upon them, and this not as the result of the prosperity of our manufactures—they are chronically asking more help—but on account of the agricultural expansion of our country. Our own people used to fill our factories, but that is being filled more and more a thing of the past. Any further stimulation to the workshop industry at the expense of agriculture would only hasten this change. We really need to be told some other way by which the tariff bonusing of lame industries is going to benefit "the whole of the people of Canada."

CAREFULNESS ADVISED.
Urged to Act Like a True Sportsman.
Canadian Sportsman, Toronto.
Always remember you are a trespasser. When you pass through a gate close and fasten it securely behind you. When you knock down a top rail in climbing a fence do not forget to replace it. If you are seeking information don't ask for it as though you had the right to demand it. Be civil. Remember all the time that you are a trespasser, but above and beyond all never neglect to stamp out the last vestige of fire before leaving camp in the morning. Look carefully over the ground, then look again. A very small ember may remain unnoticed until a current of air travels its way, it then begins to revive, gradually the tiny spark expands into a flame, a bush fire has started and many a settler has been ruined by just such carelessness. You sportsmen when you go to the woods every autumn hunting big game, if you be worthy of the name, ever have in mind the motto, "Do unto others as you would they should do unto you." You are a welcome visitor as long as you behave yourself, but never let the fact be absent from your mind that a few minutes carelessness on your part may mean great loss and perhaps ruin to those who have allowed you to camp in their woods.
I know men in this city who annually go on hunting trips and their presence is a menace to the safety of those in whose neighborhood they camp. They drink much whiskey, spend half their time roaming in the woods not far distant from camp, and generally shoot at every moving object, be it animal or man. That more people are not slaughtered every year is due to their bad marksmanship, but the record is a sufficiently murderous one to demand the law's interference. For several years the Sportsman has suggested to the Ontario legislature the passage of a law inflicting a penalty of imprisonment upon any person who, through carelessness or the reckless use of firearms, causes injury to another. The suggestion made in these columns has borne fruit in some states across the border and the laws have been passed there inflicting punishment varying from one to five years imprisonment the number of accidents have materially decreased.
Now on the eve of the big game shooting season in Ontario we warn every man who goes into the woods with gun or rifle to make sure of the identity of the object they are shooting at. Never run the risk of being forced to use such an awful excuse as "It looked just like a deer and I could have sworn it was one." Men whose sight is so deceptive that they cannot tell the difference between a man and a deer at any distance should engage in some other recreation. They are too dangerous to be allowed to roam at large with a gun in their hands. If you are a true sportsman you are by instinct a gentleman and will so behave yourself on your annual hunt as to be welcome on your return.
Mr. Foy Is a Law-Breaker.
Toronto Star.
Attorney-General Foy did something that was wholly indefensible when he accompanied Mr. McNaught into a polling booth and tried to convince the deputy that Mr. McNaught had the right to vote there. Mr. McNaught had been deprived of his vote by an amendment which the attorney-general had introduced in the legislature. The attorney-general admitted before he left the booth that Mr. McNaught had no vote there. In any case, the attorney-general has no right to be present in a polling place except to cast his own vote. A weak deputy might have been overawed by the presence of the attorney-general into committing an illegal act.

Overdoing the Act.
Hamilton Herald.
The liberal cause gained more by the exaggerated and unfair charges of its enemies than it lost through the actual faults of administration. So venomous were the attacks of conservative speakers and writers, so wild and exaggerated their statements made in censure of the government, that very probably they caused a reaction in public sentiment. More moderation and fairness in criticism would have been more effective. The scandal campaign was overdone.

A Running Sore Again Overcome.
Dr. Sparks' Vegetable Ointment cures a case which for over one year had been treated with a great many remedies.
A case of running sore or skin disease should be pronounced incurable until it has been treated with Dr. Sparks' Vegetable Ointment. The case of Francis Love, of Hull, Que., is a powerful illustration of the healing powers contained in Dr. Sparks' Vegetable Ointment. He says:
"I have suffered from a running sore for over a year, and have tried a great number of remedies. None of them seemed to do me any good. One day I was handed a small sample box of Dr. Sparks' Vegetable Ointment. However so small, it gave me faith, and I at once procured a large 25c. box, and after using a few boxes I am completely cured."
Dr. Sparks' Vegetable Ointment is highly recommended for any skin disease, owing to the fact that it contains powerful, healing, soothing and antiseptic oils which are taken from vegetables only. For Cuts, Burns, Ulcers, Pimples, Eczema, Barber's Rash, Ring Worms, Cracked Lips, Etc., it has no equal.
It will also cure any form of Piles, Itching, Bleeding or Protruding. For sale at G. W. Mahood's and all first-class drug stores. Accept no substitute. This vegetable compound is

Medical Health Officer Utilizes His Power of Compulsion—Pupils Must Produce Certificates By Nov. 27th.
Parents of children at the Collegiate Institute, opposed to vaccination, are protesting against the action of the medical health officer in posting a notice in the institute stating that if pupils attending there do not produce a certificate of vaccination by November 27th, they will not be allowed to further attend classes. This making vaccination compulsory in the institute. The law which does this gives the health officer power to do this, with the consent of the local board of health. The section of the vaccination act reads:
"In all cases where it is deemed necessary by the medical health officer of any municipality, owing to the presence or threatened presence of smallpox, he may, with the approval of the local board of health, require certificates of successful vaccination or of insusceptibility on re-vaccination, of all students of high schools, colleges and universities within the municipality, to be presented to the proper authorities of the said institutions, and no student refusing to present such certificate on demand, shall be admitted to further attendance in classes in such institution until such certificate is furnished." (R.S.O., 1897, ch. 249, sec. 17.)
Some parents thought that the Board of Education had control over this matter, but it seems not. The education board's authority is limited, as follows:
"It shall be lawful for the trustees of any public, separate or high school to provide that no children shall be permitted to attend any school without producing a certificate of successful vaccination when demanded of him or her by the teacher." (R.S.O., 1897, ch. 249, sec. 16.)
This section gives the Board of Education power to refuse to allow children to attend school if not vaccinated, but the board of health is given a greater power as regards collegiate institutes and colleges.
The compulsory vaccination required at the Collegiate Institute will, no doubt, reduce the attendance to some extent.

The Notice Issued.
Medical Health Officer Bell was seen this morning and stated that he had sent the following notice to the principals of Queen's university, School of Mining, Medical College, Regiopolis College, Collegiate Institute, Kingston Business College, Frontenac Business College:
Kingston, Oct. 26th, 1908.—Owing to the prevalence of small-pox in the city of Kingston I beg to notify you that I will require certificates of successful vaccination or of insusceptibility on re-vaccination within seven years, of all students of your institutions to be presented to the proper authorities of the said institution within thirty days after the receipt of this notice. I would respectfully request that no student refusing to present such certificate within the prescribed time shall be admitted to further attendance in classes in the said institution until such certificate is furnished.—Yours respectfully,
JOHN H. BELL, Medical Health Officer.

Now At Fort Henry.
The four cases of small-pox were removed yesterday to the quarters prepared, in Fort Henry, and the city is now, apparently, free of the disease, as no new case has appeared for over a week. Precaution will be taken to prevent an outbreak. Dr. H. Hunter, a Queen's medical college graduate of last spring, has been appointed by the Board of Health to take charge of the patients, and he is now with them.
Dr. Hodggets, the provincial health officer, has not yet visited Kingston, although he has been requested to do so.
