

No Pain with Red Blood

Get your blood right by using Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Food and Rheumatic pains will disappear.

Rheumatism and diseases of the nerves are closely allied—both are due to thin, watery and impure blood.

Have you ever noticed that it is when you are tired, weak, worn out and exhausted that the rheumatism gives you trouble.

Well, if your blood were analyzed at such times it would be found lacking just such elements as are contained in Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Food.

Because this great restorative actually forms rich, healthful blood it positively cures rheumatism.

Mrs. M. A. Clock, Menard, Ont., writes: "I was so weak and helpless that I required help to move in bed. Indigestion and rheumatism caused great suffering. By the use of eleven boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I have been made strong and well."

KILLS MOTHER AND SELF OVER SECRET MARRIAGE.

Announcement of Wall Street Broker's Wedding Precipitated Quarrel With Tragic Result.

New York, Nov. 6.—Revelation by a son to his mother of a secret marriage and parental refusal to be reconciled to it is believed to have been the impelling cause of a double tragedy in an uptown hotel.

The victims of the tragedy were Mrs. Rebecca Veir, a wealthy widow, and her only son, J. Nelson Veir, a Wall Street broker, the circumstances of the affair pointing to the shooting of the mother by the son, the latter then taking his own life by inhaling illuminating gas.

An aunt of the suicide, Miss Anna Veit, made the discovery when she sought to awaken Mrs. Veir, in whose apartments she had spent the night. The police, in investigating the case made the discovery that Veir, who was supposed to be single, had been married secretly in October of last year. His mother, who spends several months each year in Europe, had only recently returned from France, and the coroner's theory is that the mother's discovery of her son's marriage precipitated a quarrel between them, culminating in the tragedy.

The police found Mrs. J. Nelson Veir, widow of the dead man, in another uptown apartment house, where she said she had been living with Veir. Mrs. Veir said she had never met her husband's mother and did not know whether or not the mother was ever told of the marriage.

THE SPORT REVIEW.

Interesting News From the Various Sporting Fields. Longboat is not training and Flanagan threatens to "pass him up."

"Steve" Veir, the Barrie hockey player, may play with Edmonton this season.

There are fewer entries in the Hamilton Marathon this year than last, but the runners are of a higher class.

President Nelson, of the Interprovincial Rugby League, is scouring the country for officials to handle the Ottawa-Tiger game, Saturday.

A new rink for skating and hockey is planned for the east end of Montreal. It will have an arena almost equal to that of the Arena.

Mellors, of Yonkers, the American long-distance crack, who entered the Hamilton Heat race, has been forced to withdraw by Boss Sullivan, of New York.

The C.P.R. will run a special from Ottawa to Kingston at 8:30, Saturday, carrying the Ottawa College team and supporters. It will return the same evening.

Toronto World: Will Hamilton Tigers beat Ottawa this week? is the question now being asked in rugby circles and the verdict is that the Tigers will have to improve greatly in their tackling from Saturday.

Efforts are on foot to form a western Ontario Hockey League this winter. It will be strictly amateur, and may include clubs from Windsor, Chatham, Tilbury, St. Thomas and Sarnia. Wallaceburg may also have a club.

The Interprovincial Rugby Union boasts of two school teachers among its several players. George Church, of Ottawa, and Ben Simpson, "Tiger" star punters. Both can exercise the leather straps as well as the football ball.

Montreal Herald: Nobody went football crazy in this town this year. One team cops one game and the other goes well here to next year, and either Montreal or McGill have a warming time and give us a little sensation.

The O.H.A. season this winter promises to be the best in the history of the association. Secretary W. A. Hewitt states that he had received more applications for membership than ever before, and that it looked as though the great winter game was to boom all over the province.

In London, England, Summers has challenged Britt to fight fifteen to twenty three-minute rounds for a purse of £200 to £500 a side, questioned before receiving the challenge, Britt said he was anxious to fight Summers again and was confident he could beat him within twenty rounds. Britt has not given his reply to the challenge.

Efforts are being made to induce college athletes to participate in the indoor athletic meet which will take place in Montreal at the Arena on November 21st. This may seem rather strange because the games will be under the auspices of the federation and participation would, doubtless, cause trouble with the C.A.A.U. However, it is proposed to get over the difficulty by having such races as college

THE KING'S DERBY BANQUET.

Exclusive Function But Always of a Merry Character.

The Derby Day dinner which, in accordance to his usual custom, the King gave on the night of the big race to his friends at the Jockey Club at Buckingham Palace, is, and always has been, very exclusive affair. It is one of the rarest things in the world to become a member of the Jockey Club; it is ten thousand times harder to obtain an invitation from His Majesty to dine at the palace a few hours after the greatest sporting event in the world has been won.

Only those members of the club who enjoy the personal friendship of the King are invited. One need only mention the names of Lord Derby, Lord Esher, Lord Chaplin, the Earl of Ellesmere and Mr. Chaplin to show the very exclusive character of the gathering.

George IV. gave two such dinners, the first of which took place at St. James' Palace on June 28, 1828. The company assembled in the throne room and dinner was served in the great supper room. There were only thirty guests, and only those members were invited whom the King cared for, he had struck several names out of the list which had been prepared.

These dinners are invariably of a very merry character. King Edward is one of the most amusing conversationalists, and is said to approach Gen. Horace Porter's easy felicity in joke making. They were not lacking in humor in the old days of George IV. was one of those invited to the table of George IV., and he has left an account showing the kind of innocent nonsense which formerly charmed the King's dinner guests.

They were not lacking in humor in the old days of George IV. was one of those invited to the table of George IV., and he has left an account showing the kind of innocent nonsense which formerly charmed the King's dinner guests.

It has been stated that this same dinner ended in an "orgy" which is quite a different thing, according to Mr. Greville, "the King ordered pens, paper, etc., and they began making matches and stakes." The second dinner was very magnificent, but is described as being "not half so gay and joyous as the first."

For a number of years after 1863 the Prince of Wales dined in Grosvenor Square with Lord Wilton, who gave a Derby dinner every year, and it was after his death, in 1882, that a Jockey Club dinner was started at Marlborough House, and it was continued—except when the royal family were in mourning—until the King's accession, and was then removed to Buckingham Palace. The most interesting episode in the history of the banquet occurred in 1896, when for the first time His Majesty took part in the banquet. His Majesty took part in the banquet by proposing the toast of the evening—"The Winner of the Derby."

Killed—By Order. "Manners' maketh man," said an old philosopher; but sometimes manners, in the form of etiquette, has done the opposite, and killed man.

A former Queen of Siam was a victim to the strictness of that her person was sacred. While embarking on her state barge, she had the misfortune to fall into the water.

Her royal husband was not there, so no one could save her. For a court official, however, high his station, to lay hands on her would have been sacrilege. So the poor woman was left to drown. The onlookers felt they were doing everything for the best. Court etiquette was being strictly observed.

And, in due course, the Queen's demise was deeply mourned. The present King of Siam figured in a similar affair. When a small boy, he was playing in the palace at Madrid, when he slipped, and fell head-down into a marble staircase. But for the intervention of a footman, he must inevitably have been killed.

Instead of that, the footman suffered. He had laid hands on his monarch, so he was dismissed in disgrace. The Queen Dowager provided for him by finding him other employment, but she could not avert the punishment inflicted on him for saving her son's life.

Struggle With a Tiger. Two brothers, Khuda Bakha and Shatikh Abdul Ghani of Moradabad, were despatched recently to Rampur on an errand, and while entering a grove at Khadpura a tiger sprang upon Khuda Bakha, who, being an athlete, tried to fight the animal.

One of the paws with the other and maintained his hold, though the tiger was mauling the other hand.

Abdul Ghani now rushed up with a stick, which he forced down the tiger's throat, making it relax his brother's hand, when Khuda Bakha seized another paw with his wounded hand, forcing both the paws back. He wrestled with the tiger, keeping it down by sheer force, while Abdul Ghani held it with his lathi and killed it.

The tiger was carried by the brothers to his highness the Nawab of Rampur, "who kept the skin as a memento and sent Khuda Bakha to the state dispensary for treatment."—Indian Telegraph.

Why Am I Ill? HOW TO TELL. Does every cold affect your back, and cause a feeling of chilliness, followed by disturbance of the kidney action. Does the use of spirits, tea or beer excite the kidneys? Are you easily worried and annoyed over trifles? Are the feet and hands cold? Circulation bad? Do the feet and legs swell? Is there puffiness under the eyes? Do you have rheumatism, poor eyesight, headaches and backaches? Is there gravel or any unnatural action of the kidneys? If you have any of the above symptoms your kidneys are either weak or diseased, and these symptoms are warnings of more serious troubles to follow; Bright's Disease, Diabetes or Dropsy. Whatever you do, whatever you think your disease is, look well to your kidneys at the first sign of anything wrong. Give them just the aid they require in Doan's Kidney Pills, the Great Quaker Kidney Medicine, and see how well and fit you feel after even a few doses. Mrs. O.
