IMPROMPTU CARPET

NEWSBOY RALEIGH MELBA'S CAVALIER.

Irish Lad Hero of One of Most Chivalrous Incidents in Singer's Life.

Liverpool, Nov. 28.—Mme. Melba has brought from her concert tour in Ireland the story of a kindly act performed for her benefit by a young street vendor of newspapers in Belfast.

It was one of the most chivalrous incidents of my life," she is reported to have said on reaching Liverpool, when she expressed the wish to learn the name of the boy.

The wide footway in front of the famous singer's hotel in Royal Avenue, Belfast, was heavily muddied by rain showers when the famous singer, dressed for her evening concert in the Elster hall, appeared at the entrance and hesitated beneath the verandah to make the journey in her satin shoes to the carriage in waiting.

One of the hotel servants was called and laid a piece of carpet, which was not sufficient to cover the muddy stretch of two or three yards nearest the vehicle, which was a few feet from the curb.

A group of persons had been waiting in the rain to see Mme. Melba, and out of this gathering the newsboy, seeing the emergency, pushed his way. He "carpeted" the muddy ground with his stock of evening newspapers, and the celebrated singer, as she passed, smiled at the lad and told him he deserved good fortune for his kindness.

She directed the gentleman who was handing her music into the vehicle to give the boy some reward, and she waived her hand to him as she drove off.

The grateful news vendor, Charles Pollock, is an intelligent, industrious lad of sixteen, living at No. 8 Lower Townsend street, with his widowed mother, a sister, who works in one of the spinning mills, and a half-brother, who is a laborer.

Abert Twitcheil, lately a Methodist minister, was ordained last month by Bishop Edsall, at Pine Island, Minnesota. In Kansas, Rev. C. J. Cameron, lately Presbyterian minister, was presided.

John Philip Anshutz, formerly a Lutheran minister, and James William Heyward, formerly a Congregational minister, have been ordered deacons by Bishop Brewster, at Bozeman, Montana.

The people of Trinity parish, Manitoba, Mich., where two former rectors have perverted to Rome, have bravely gone forward and raised a much larger stipend for a clergyman.

MRS. ALICE J. BORDNER.

Mrs. Emma F. Mumford, No. 1 Olsen's Court, Salt Lake City, Utah, writes: "Four months ago I became chilled through and through by getting my feet wet. The next morning I was stiff and sore with a severe cold which had settled all over my body. The blood seemed to rush to my head, causing dizziness and blinding headaches. As soon as Peruna was recommended to me I decided to give it a trial, and am pleased to say that it cured me after I had used it only two months. I think you have a splendid medicine and gladly endorse it. As soon as the people become acquainted with the virtues of Peruna, they find catarrh not to be so formidable a disease."

MRS. EMMA F. MUMFORD.

Mr. George W. Amory, 387 West 19th St., New York City, New York, writes: "Somehow I have always had a prejudice against advertised medicine, but I want to make one decided exception in favor of Peruna. I caught a cold last winter and it settled in throat and head, developing a most persistent catarrh, which seemed to defy all medicines until I tried Peruna. Before I had used two bottles I considered myself cured."

PERUNA A REAL MEDICINE Those Who Slander Peruna Know Nothing About It.

Throat and Head.

Mrs. I. D. Hayes, 1837 Druid Hill, Baltimore, Md., writes: "Peruna is one of the best remedies for grippe, cold in the head, sore throat, nervous headaches, and coughs that have ever been discovered. After the use of one bottle in my family I don't feel safe without Peruna in my house. In a later letter Mrs. Hayes says: 'I am never without a bottle of Peruna in the house. I find it good for most every complaint. I give the children Peruna if they have a cold and it always relieves them. I don't think I could find a better remedy to give my children.'"

It is so easy to criticize things about which the critic knows nothing. Take, for instance, Peruna. There are plenty of people who are willing to say things about it, and who never have taken Peruna, and have never known anything about its effects upon the human system. There are people who say, and probably believe, that Peruna is not as a beverage by some people. It would be the easiest thing in the world to show the falsity of such a belief. Let any one who reads this go to the drug store and purchase a bottle of Peruna. If, after attempting to use it as a beverage or to take it in doses sufficient to produce anything like intoxication, if after putting it to this test such a person is still of the opinion that Peruna is a disguised alcoholic drink, he will be warranted in making such a statement. Practically, Peruna cannot be so used. Any one who knows anything about Peruna by personal use knows that Peruna is a medicine. The very label on the bottle, giving the principal active ingredients, furnishes indisputable proof that Peruna is a medicinal compound. We will be willing to guarantee that no normal person can or will use Peruna as a beverage. If any one thinks this remedy can be so used one trial will be sufficient to disabuse his mind.

Peruna is a great and useful family medicine. It is used in multitudes of homes. It has become a standard remedy for various petty ailments in the home. It is especially useful for climatic diseases. It is an excellent remedy for colds. It is a well-tried remedy for catarrh in all forms.

We have a multitude of testimonials recommending it for colds, for bronchitis, for various affections of the respiratory and alimentary organs.

This is well known to all who know Peruna by actual experience.

"Cures All Catarrhal Diseases." Mr. L. W. Kightlinger, Cambridge, Neb., writes: "I don't have any more trouble in my throat, and have not had a headache for four weeks."

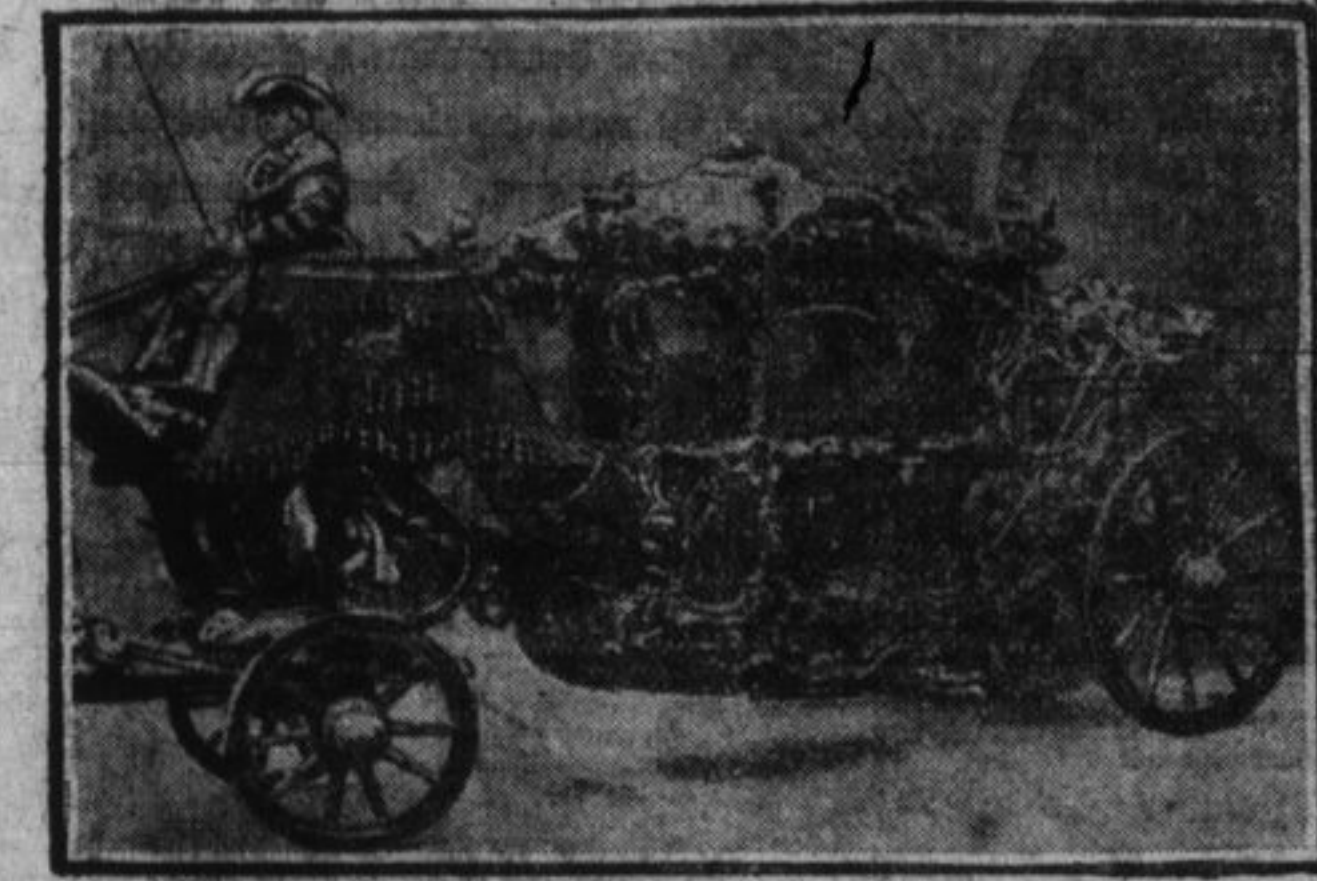

"Peruna is the very medicine for catarrh. There is no medicine like it in the United States, for I have tried a good many before using Peruna."

"I will keep it in my house to guard against catarrh, as it cures all catarrhal diseases."

Catarrh of Bronchial Tubes. Mr. Wickliffe R. Smith, editor of The Polish Herald, formerly principal of the schools at Cameron, Idaho, writes: "For some time I suffered with catarrh of the throat and bronchial tubes. I tried many remedies, but could find nothing that would give me relief. Finally I tried Peruna. Three bottles cured me, sound and well. I believe it will do as much for others as it did for me."

Gained Thirty Pounds. Mrs. Alice J. Bordner, 1311 Maple Ave., Harrisburg, Pa., writes: "I have found a cure in Peruna. I cannot recommend Peruna enough, and I also thank you for your kind attention to me. I am as well as could be ever since I began taking Peruna, and will recommend it to others. I only weighed 35 pounds before taking Peruna; now I weigh 125."

THE DEAR GIRLS.

They Should Be Very Carefully Guarded.

Osleph-Herald. A word in season to mothers. Are you keeping a watchful eye on that daughter of yours? Is she tramping the streets at night, either with or without your permission? To anyone who is around the city mitch in the evenings it is painful to witness the number of young girls who are wandering aimlessly about, apparently rushing towards the evils which ever surround these young creatures. Wherever you go you see them, apparently without any real reason for being on the streets, and conducting themselves in a manner that makes a father wish he could just take them over his knee and spank them good and hard. You see them standing in the doors with young men, on the street corners, in the parks, and there are few secluded spots, where, if the evening is fine there is not one or more of these young girls engaged in conversation with those of the male persuasion. And it is to be feared from their manner that their conversation is by no means innocent of evil; in fact, I have been told that it would appal the average parents could they hear the indelicate conversation which so many of our young people carry on.

Sir George Wyatt Truscott - The New Lord Mayor

Lady Truscott - The New Lady Mayoress

The lord mayor's show is one of those picturesque annual events which help Londoners to appreciate the antiquity of the great city in which they dwell, and realize that London is something more than a mere collection of bricks and mortar and masonry. The show this year was especially picturesque, and included a literary procession of some of the many great men of letters who have been intimately connected with London. Then, linking up the past and present, came the first civic dignitary of the city of London, Sir G. W. Truscott.

Find out occasionally if they have been where they said they were going. A mother's loving eye can often detect what a father's never can—until too late. Our girls are not bad—only thoughtless at first, but how easy the downward road is after the first step. Very often a little care will prevent that at the outset, and it pays well to remember that "an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure." Keep the girls at home more, or else take them out with you. A daughter's place is with her mother, whenever possible, and a mother cannot too often be at her daughter's side. It is an unfortunate fact, often noticeable that a mother and daughter, so rarely understand each other thoroughly. I father and son come much closer and in many cases father and daughter appear to be closely allied in thought. It would be better for the girls if the mothers tried to understand their daughters more, and thus gradually prepare them for the temptations and responsibilities which must some day come upon them.

WE ARE TRULY REPAYED.

How Things Do Come Round After All.

Heaven repays, sin is punished, and goodness is requited, though the time of reward may linger. Last century the rector of Methley, a few miles from Leeds, took in a Russian count who was suffering from smallpox. The rector nursed his patient back to health with tenderness. When the count arrived in Russia his parents sent a letter enclosing a draft for a large sum, and asking if they could serve the rector through influence for any preferment from the English crown. But the letter was too late. The rector had taken smallpox and died. There were many to say that he had thrown his life away, and his funeral sermon was preached from the text, "Be not righteous overmuch." It seemed as if the rector's great generosity had been in vain.

But in 1864 England was at war with Russia. An English correspondent was seized as a spy, and condemned to be shot the following day. His brave wife had accompanied him and set herself to work to get his pardon, as he was a reporter and no spy. The Russian general politely told her that the power of pardon was with the Czar and not with them. She could not find access to the Emperor, and was being ordered away, when her nationality became known to an aide-de-camp. He had her brought to his tent. "I would do anything to save an Englishman," said he, "for an Englishman once saved mine. It was in a little Yorkshire village. I should have died of smallpox, but a parish priest took me in when everybody else turned me from their doors."

"In Yorkshire was it? Do you remember the place?"

"Methley."

"And the name of the clergyman?"

"Dr. Goodwin."

"My God, how things come round!"

So the rector did not die in vain; he at least bequeathed to his daughter forty years of life for her husband.

Then some gain by losing. A man voluntarily beggared himself to pay his father's creditors twenty shillings in the pound. When he had paid them he owned of the clothes he stood up in, and nothing more. That man is today a member of the House of Lords, and chairman of a great railway company. Heaven's favor counts for more than we think, and in the case of the sweep, though he did not get into the House of Lords, he did in a house of his own, with his widow well provided for, all his sons established in business, and that best of possessions—the good name which is rather to be chosen than riches.
