Everything points towards another successful season with the Eastern Ontario Curling Association. The annual meeting was held at the British-American hotel on Thursday afternoon, when the officers for the ensuing year were elected, and the schedule for the games arranged. The president, E. F. TRAINS IN COLLISION

At the Foot of Princess Street Yesterday Afternoon.
There was a slight collision yesterday afternoon about 4.35 o'clock at the foot of Princess street, between the G.T.R. suburban train coming into the city with a car of passengers and a K. & P. railway engine, with freight cars. The G.T.R. train was three-quarters of an hour late. As it approached Princess street, the engineer saw the K. & P. train right ahead, and coming for it along the short piece of track, used in common by the two lines, but over which the G.T.R. has always the right of way. Evidently the flagman should have gone ahead of the G.T.R., and kept the line clear, but he didn't, not expecting a K. & P. to be coming out at the time. As soon as the suburban engineer saw the danger, he pulled up and had stopped just as the engine passed Princess street. The K. & P. engineer also pulled up, but not before the two cow catchers had collided. The G.T.R. train was sent back fully ten feet by the force of the collision, the baggage and passenger cars getting a severe jolting. Those on the train received a good shaking, but no one was hurt. The K. & P. cow catcher was broken, also was some glass in the G.T.R. passenger car.

GIFTS FOR BISHOP-ELECT.

A Fine Pastoral Staff From Montreal Laymen.
Dean Farthing will receive several gifts on the occasion of his approaching consecration, including the following: A gold and jeweled pectoral cross from his old congregation in Woodstock, Ont.; a signet episcopal ring, and a sterling silver tea service from the laity of the diocese of Ontario; a set of episcopal robes from friends at St. George's cathedral, Kingston; and a pastoral staff from the laity of the diocese of Montreal.
The staff will be made of solid silver (mercurially treated), with an ivory "Agnus Dei" in the crook, and stick of ebony. The arms of the diocese of Montreal will be incorporated in the design (in enamel), and the knob will be jewelled in amethysts. The crook will be reeded and ornamented with Canadian flora. The staff will cost at least $50, and it is very probable that it will be manufactured in England.
It is said that the clergy of the diocese of Montreal are considering a proposal to present him with a full set of state robes as well as with a festal stole.

St. John's Masonic Lodge.
Ancient St. John's lodge, A. F. & A. M., No. 3, G.R.C., elected their officers, last evening: Worshipful master, D. A. Givens; senior warden, Dr. A. R. B. Williamson; junior warden, Dr. F. Etherington; chaplain, Canon Grout; treasurer, W. H. Macnee; secretary, R. Easton Burns; Tyler, R. Bunt; auditors, Dr. W. G. Anglin and G. Bawden.
The lodge is preparing for the annual St. John's day installation and banquet, on Monday, December 28th, the day falling this year on a Sunday.

AND CHARGED TO THE THAT VACCINE IS NOT VARIOLOUS.

For the Past Three Years—A Precedent Already Established—Claimed Unwise to Tax Vacant Lands.

During the past three years a number of water mains have been laid in streets where the revenue did not yield eight per cent, and for which debentures could not be issued. These mains have been charged against the surplus account of the waterworks. The Russell street main laid last year cost $2,000 and does not pay more than four and a half per cent. The recently constructed Victoria street main, costing very little more revenue, hence, it is claimed that when there are precedents like the above cases, a few more like mains might be laid in parts of the city where it is impossible to get the eight per cent revenue required by law in order to issue debentures, by charging the cost against the surplus which the waterworks has for a rainy day. There are only a very limited number of such cases, and it is held that citizens in general are not so mean that they would refuse to allow this to be done when it would give water to people in the outskirts who are forced to pay big prices for the luxury of water, which at present is a luxury to some, inasmuch as they have to carry it distances.
Regarding the proposal to try and lay water mains, where necessary, on the local improvement plan of taxation, it is claimed that in Kingston this can not be done. Ottawa does it, but Ottawa is a fast growing city and vacant lots and outlying property are more valuable. In Kingston, at present, outlying vacant lots cannot be sold at any price. Some owners are paying taxes for years, who would be glad to sell. This is proved by the number of vacant lots the city has to take over for back taxes this year. To lay water mains past these lots would put a charge upon them perhaps two and three times as much as the tax bill is. There would be a big protest against the proposition of the waterworks' committee.

CONGREGATION TRUSTFUL.

Leave Selection of Rector to a Committee.
Last evening a meeting of the congregation of St. George's cathedral was held to appoint a committee to place names before the bishop of the diocese for choice in the appointment of rector, who shall, according to custom and his lordship's desire, also receive the high post of dean of the cathedral and diocese. Those privileged to a voice in these meetings of selection are parishioners, men and women alike. The latter class were largely in the majority. Dean Farthing presided, said prayers, and thanked the congregation and the people of the city and the diocese for the great kindness he and his family had been shown within the two years of his ministry here.
The meeting unanimously appointed the wardens (R. Waldron, F. Spangenberg), the lay delegates (R. J. Carson, M. Sutherland, W. B. Dalton) with Edw. J. B. Pense and S. C. McGill added. Their election, without instruction to report names for congregation, leave the nominations entirely in their hands. The committee met after the meeting was dissolved and so far from there being few names in sight at least six names received preliminary consideration.

Further Remanded.

Charles Stevenson, the English youth arrested several days ago, on a charge of vagrancy, was further remanded for a week, at to-day's police court. Steps are being taken to have the young fellow deported, as he appears to be unfit for work, and has no money. In answer to a question by the court, Stevenson said that he was being well cared for at the jail.

It is Lymph Secured From Calves Inoculated With Cowpox—Some Interesting Information Given.

Kingston, Dec. 3.—(To the Editor): In your issue of 2nd inst, a writer styling himself, "Anti-Compulsion," ascribes to me certain statements to which I take strong exception. Based on his mistaken interpretation of these statements, he threatens all physicians who have been vaccinating with the terrors of a section of the vaccination act. I can assure him that the physicians have no need to worry whatever as the vaccine that is used for vaccination purposes is lymph secured from calves inoculated with cowpox, and is not variolous material. The variolous (or small-pox) material referred to in the section of the act quoted by writer mentioned, is infectious material taken from the pocks of a small-pox patient and I need hardly say that no physician would ever consider the inoculation of such material.
The statements made by me before the meeting of council on November 2nd ult., were to the effect, that the reason that cow-pox vaccine protected against the small-pox was that the cow-pox virus had been proven to be a much modified, non-contagious form of small-pox, so that when one was vaccinated with cow-pox vaccine, one thus developed an immunity against true small-pox. This statement would be, I think, very clear to a medical mind, but perhaps I can render it clearer to the non-medical mind by stating that ages ago the germs of cow-pox and small-pox had a common ancestor (as had man and the anthropoid ape), but that one line of descendants became modified by attacking cattle, becoming cow-pox, while another line became more virulent and acquired contagious properties by attacking man, becoming small-pox. These affections are thus related but yet are as widely separated as man and the higher apes.
Let me add that it is practically impossible to directly inoculate successfully with small-pox virus. The matter of the principles underlying vaccination is entirely scientific and technical and further discussion would serve no good purpose. It is sufficient to know that recent successful vaccination protects against small-pox.
Yours very truly, W. T. CONNELL

THE GARBAGE QUESTION.

Opinions Given By Leading Citizens.

"It is generally admitted that under a perfect system of hygiene and sanitation many diseases would practically disappear. If we cannot at once have perfection along these lines we can, at least, make a beginning and there is nothing that will receive such general support among householders as a proper system of garbage disposal. The injurious effect on the human system of a polluted atmosphere and indirectly a polluted soil is predisposing not to one but many types of illness, cannot be stated in too strong terms, and the adoption of means to check such conditions should be one of the first cares of any intelligent community.—A. R. B. WILLIAMSON, Professor of Sanitary Science, Queen's Medical College.
I will be glad to accede to the request of the ladies and give them any help I can towards getting a more sanitary arrangement in Kingston.—SAMUEL BIRCH.
"I hope you will succeed in having the garbage collected from every part of the city, and when you are about it, agitate that all the city should have the benefit of street watering. The health of every citizen should be considered."—J. CRAWFORD.
"While the ladies are agitating, I hope they will include the dirty cellars and the foul drains that need attention."—S. ANGLIN.
"The health of the people is the supreme law. A system for the regular collection and disposal of household refuse is an absolute necessity for any community of the size of Kingston."—J. C. CONNELL, Dean of Medical College.
"If the city collected the garbage and ashes and assessed the citizens, same as for street watering, it would cost us less and be more efficient than individuals working at the problem themselves."—T. McK. ROBERTSON.
"The movement for the systematic collection and disposal of garbage is one of the best that has engaged the attention of the ladies."—W. H. WORMWITH.
"We would pay less for the disposal of our refuse if we did it as a community. Co-operation would mean economy."—J. A. HENDRY.
