The Way Of Life.
New York Life.
Two ladies were sitting in close conversation in an hotel parlor. One said to the other, "Are you married?" The second answered, "No." The second then asked the first if she had been more fortunate, and she said no, she, too, was on the single list, and added: "Strange two such estimable women as ourselves should have been overlooked in the great matrimonial market!" The second then pointed out a lady who had been widowed four times, two of her husbands having been cremated. "That woman," she said, "is plain and uninteresting, and yet she has them to burn."

USED LAME HORSE AND WAS FINED $5 AND COSTS IN POLICE COURT.

Charge Was Lodged By Constable Arniel the Humane Society Inspector—Animal Was Made to Haul Load of Coal.

"It is not so, sir," said Edward Roddy, when arraigned in the police court, this morning, on a charge of cruelty to animals. After the evidence was taken, however, Magistrate Farrell found the accused guilty, and imposed a fine of $5 and costs, or fifteen days. Constable Arniel, the humane society inspector, lodged the charge, and J. B. Walkem conducted the prosecution.
Constable Arniel said that he saw the horse in question on York street, made an inspection, and found it to be too lame for use, and notified the young man, who was driving, accordingly. Afterwards, he had Dr. Nicholls, V.S., inspect the horse, and he, too, said that the animal should not be worked. A citizen who would not give his name, had complained about the horse being used.
The accused said the horse was not lame, but the trouble was caused by corns. He had secured new shoes for the animal, and had cared for it as best he could.
Dr. Nicholls told of inspecting the horse. He informed the owner that the animal should not be used. The horse, he said, could not be cured and worked at the same time, and he considered it cruelty to work the horse in such a condition.
George Dunne said he saw the horse, yesterday, on the road. The animal was very lame. He believed that it was cruelty to drive a horse in such a condition as that.

The young man driving the horse, said that when he went home for dinner yesterday, the horse was not lame, and was not lame when he went out. The animal went lame on the street, about one o'clock. Constable Arniel stopped witness on the street, to look at the horse. The constable told him then, that the horse was not in fit condition to be used. Later, Dr. Nicholls said that the horse should not be used, and after this, witness took the horse home, delivering a load of coal on the way.
"How did you come to take the load of coal after Dr. Nicholls said not to do so?" asked the magistrate.
"It had to go," was the reply.
"But who told you?"
"The boss said I had better take it."

This concluded the evidence, and Mr. Walkem told the court that Mr. Roddy had no right to use it.
Magistrate Farrell said that the advice of the inspector and Dr. Nicholls should have been taken, and that the horse should not have been made to carry coal, afterwards.
Mr. Walkem stated that he did not want to see a heavy fine imposed, but he wanted all temptations to receive warning that they would not be allowed to ill-treat animals.

A $25 CHALLENGE.

Issued to the Standard to Prove a Statement.
A leading citizen called at the Whig office, this morning, to enter a vigorous objection to the following item which appeared in the Standard of Thursday, the 21st.
"The hotelkeeper who raised his rates $1 a day for visiting curlers is getting more censure than praise. The most of the local curlers think it was a short-sighted policy."
He declared that the statement was not only untrue, but injurious to Kingston. He stated that he had found out from the leading hotels that there had been no increase on their transient rates, to curlers, and he challenges the Standard to prove that there was. He deposited twenty-five dollars with the cashier of the Whig office, and challenges the Standard to prove what its item stated. If proof is presented within five days, the twenty-five dollars will be paid to the Standard proprietor.

TWO GIFTS PRESENTED

By Queen's Musical Club to Miss Singleton.
After the glee club concert, at Grant hall, on Thursday evening, the members of the two glee clubs gathered at the residence of Principal Gordon, for a very pleasant surprise. The occasion of the visit was the presenting of two handsome presents to Miss Louise Singleton, directress of the glee clubs, whose untiring efforts on their behalf have made them organizations Queen's can well be proud of.
The members of the Ladies' Glee Club presented Miss Singleton with a handsome silver pudding dish, suitably engraved. The gentlemen's club presented her with a beautiful silver tea service, also engraved. Miss Singleton, who was taken completely by surprise, thanked "the boys and girls" for their kind gifts.

SAYS HE WAS ROBBED.

Reports His Wad of $175 As Missing.
Peter Kitchie, who claims Parham as his home, is to-day mourning the loss of the sum of $175, which he had safely tucked away yesterday in his pocket book. He has been in the city on business, and this morning, when he awoke at his stopping place he found that he had been robbed.
Kitchie called at the police station this morning and reported the case, and an investigation is now being made.

Heart To Heart Talks.
Before the hour for opening the meeting arrived last evening Brock street hall was again well filled to listen to Evangelists Irving and Crombie. Both speakers gave more heart to heart talks than sermons, telling with much quiet earnestness the need of a Saviour and how well Jesus Christ filled that need. The attention was intense throughout the whole service. To-night again a good meeting is expected.

Resignation Accepted
At a special meeting of the Kingston presbytery, held on Friday morning, in Chalmers' church, the moderator, Rev. Dr. Macgillivray, presiding, the resignation of Rev. A. M. Currie, of Deseronto, was accepted, and Rev. J. R. Coen, of Napante, was appointed moderator, during the vacancy.

Game Not Played.

A MASONIC "AT HOME"

There Were 150 Present—A Fine Programme Was Presented—The Masons Voted Royal Hosts.

Minden lodge, No. 253, A.F. & A.M., held one of the season's most successful "At Homes" in the Masonic hall last night. The rooms were tastefully decorated with fragrant pot and cut flowers, palms, etc., and presented a most pleasing effect. Around the walls were hung many of the banners of ancient Freemasonry. About one hundred and fifty persons responded to the invitation of Worshipful Master George W. Mahood and the officers of Minden lodge, and a most enjoyable time was spent.

A very excellent musical and instrumental programme was rendered by the following ladies and gentlemen: Mrs. Andrews, Miss Massie, Mrs. Routley, Miss Welch, Messrs. Eva, Crumley, George Smith, Smeaton, Halliday, Forester, Routley. A double male quartette made quite a hit with their humorous selections. Cards were indulged in by those inclined to enjoy themselves in this manner and refreshments of the most appetizing order were served. The general decorations and other matters were under the direction of Worshipful P. M. Lockett and Tyler Bunt and reflected credit on the different committees. The "goat" stable was the object of much curiosity, particularly amongst the ladies. The pleasant event came to a close at midnight, the guests all voting the Masons to be royal hosts.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

A Suggestion to Criticize Nearer Home.
Kingston, Jan. 22.—(To the Editor): I notice that the Standard has been "nosing" into the London postmastership appointment, and giving the Laurier government Hall Columbia for appointing an outsider. If the Standard would turn its attention nearer to home it would be better. Will it tell the people why the Whig government did not appoint a Kingston lady as matron of Rockwood hospital? Why shouldn't Kingston have had that appointment, instead of an outsider?—CITIZEN.

Found Money.

If some one put ten dollars into your hand it would be to you found money, wouldn't it? Such a thing will happen to you. The condition is so simple that all may have an equal chance. You simply make your drug purchases at Best's and be they large or small you will be given a receipt which you must have in your pocket, together with the latest copy of the Whig, when you catch the mysterious Raffles. Postage stamps are not considered as a purchase but any sale from 5c. up entitles you to a coupon. By trading at Best's for your drug wants you are saving money, especially this month, when many things are greatly reduced. Remember the conditions: Have the receipt. A Whig newspaper, catch Mr. Raffles and the $10 is yours.

Fine Bill At The Bijou.

A Drama in Monksland is a unique attraction at the Bijou for Friday and Saturday. It is a realistic drama, but all the characters—the hero, the heroine, the unfortunate father, the cruel villain, etc.—are enacted by monkeys. There is also offered "The Gold Hunters," a thrilling story of the California gold fields in 1849, with the full line of western rining characters, including Indians and desperadoes. "The Football Fiend," or how Jenkins, the half-back went crazy over the game, is a rollicking comedy, and gives a fine view of a hot game of rugby. A special extra attraction omitted during the rush hours on Saturday night is "The Rush Life," a story of love, perjury and misfortune. Will West in illustrated songs.
