HOTELKEEPER FINED

HAD HIS BAR DOOR OPEN AFTER HOURS.

Magistrate Imposed a Penalty of $30 and Costs—Another "Indian" Up on the Carpet—Two Women Ordered Out of Town.

Samuel Harkness, proprietor of the American Hotel, was found guilty in police court, this morning, of a breach of Section 56, of the Liquor License Act, in having his bar open after hours, and was fined $30 and costs, with the option of fifteen days in jail.

Licence Inspector Clarke Wright was the complainant, and he told of going to the hotel on Saturday night, and finding the bar-room open. Mr. Harkness, he said, was in front of the bar, but there was "nothing going on," as he termed it. Mr. Harkness, he claimed, had no right to have the door open, even though he was doing some cleaning up, in the bar. Witness met a man coming out from the bar. The man in question was called, and told the court that he went to the hotel to see Mr. Harkness on a matter of business. He was sitting in the sitting room and was under the impression, Mr. Harkness had called him, and went into the bar. Witness noticed that water was flowing from a closet into the bar, and told Mr. Harkness. The latter in his evidence, said that he had the bar open for the purpose of cleaning up the bar.

Magistrate Farrell said that he found the accused guilty. It was made quite clear that the bar door was open, and imposed the fine of $30 and costs.

"Bert" Grimshaw, on the "Indian list," was accused of drunkenness. He wanted the case adjourned for one week, so as to give him time to consult a lawyer, but the magistrate said that he would give him until two o'clock to get his legal advice, and the case would be heard at that hour.

Mabel Bigg and Beatrice Yeates, from the American side, were arraigned as vagrants. They were gathered in late last night by Constables Mullinger and Armiel.

"I'm guilty," said Mabel Bigg, when arraigned. "You're not guilty," broke in her companion, "you don't know what they mean."

"We only went into a hotel to get a drink," she continued, "and if one glass of port or port wine will make a person drunk, I want to know about it. We came over to Kingston on a visit."

"I'll give you just five hours to get out of the city," said the magistrate to the offenders.

"We will go," one answered. We are on our way to Toronto, and will leave at one o'clock."

John Hennessy admitted being drunk. He was fined $1 and costs, and asked to be allowed to go to the Standard Bank, where he had money.

"We will see about that," said the magistrate, as John was led away.

THE SPORT REVIEW

ALL READY FOR THE BIG GAME TO-NIGHT.

Both Osgoode and the 14th Con- fident—City League Games at the Royal Rink Last Night.

Everything is ready for the big game, to-night, between the 14th seniors and Osgoode Hall. The ice is in fine condition. The last skating was done on Monday night, and since then the surface has been flooded three times, and is now hard and even.

The Osgoode team arrived at noon from Toronto, and feels confident. Their team will be the same as played in Toronto two weeks ago. The soldiers are in fine condition, and are ready for a very hard battle.

Ainslee turning the trick for the Royals. In the second half the Royals came back strong, landing two goals. B. Muckler and M. Ainslee doing the work. The teams lined up as follows:

The team leaves at 3:14 o'clock, Thursday, for Belleville, where they will meet Picton, in the first game of the second round of the junior series. The team will line up as follows:

Died On King Street. Mrs. Irwin, wife of William Irwin, Sr., King and Beverly streets, died on Wednesday after a brief illness and to the sincere regret of many friends. Deceased, well advanced in years, quietly sank into eternal rest. She was a Kingstonian, a daughter of the late Robert Flanagan, and had been married many years. Two sons, William, Jr., and Robert, and two daughters, Mrs. F. Webster, and Miss Isabelle, along with a bereaved husband, survive. She was a devoted mother, a kindly neighbor, gentle and good. She was a member of St. James' church and under its ritual her remains will be committed to the grave.

A Wonderful Chart. Hanging over the platform in Brock street hall, last evening, was a mysterious looking chart painted on canvas in striking colors. The title of the picture is "The Two Roads and The Two Destinies." This is large enough to be seen at the far end of the hall. At the close of the meeting, last evening, which was well attended, and very interesting, Mr. Irving promised to explain this chart this evening.

Met With Accident. A large circle of friends will be sorry to learn of the painful accident met with this morning by Mrs. Armiel, Simcoe street, wife of William Armiel, yard foreman at Booth's coal and wood yard. While in the act of getting out of her car, she had the misfortune to fall, and as a result her leg was fractured.

"Mrs. Jarley's Wax Works" At public school entertainment, Orange hall, Portsmouth, Thursday evening next, by pupils and ex-pupils of the school. A splendid evening's amusement will be given.

At Zion Rink. The ice at Zion rink, last night, was in excellent condition, and the skating much enjoyed by the large number present. Mr. Harris, the proprietor, is well looking after the patrons of the rink.

TO MAKE KINGSTON GROW.

Suggestions By Citizen With Interests at Heart.

Kingston, Jan. 27.—(To the Editor): The most pertinent question in connection with Kingston's position as an industrial centre lies in solving the difficulty we experience in inducing manufacturers to locate here.

We have always been ready to fly into a fever at the possibility of securing enterprises pre-eminently large, but to a considerable extent no thought has been given at all to means that would induce manufacturers to Kingston, who are now located in less favorably situated places.

One industry brings another—plenty of small enterprises must inevitably make a city so hampered with business that large concerns will get into the procession too.

It is well known that for fifteen years Kingston has been in a condition, both in respect to population and trade, practically at a stand still.

A few years ago a most important industry, the Locomotive Works, was somewhat undecided as to whether they should not locate elsewhere. Most fortunate for Kingston they were induced to stay, and the result is well known—many vacant properties rented, large payroll, better wages for the workmen, more revenue and taxes for the city because of the increase in population occasioned by the influx of additional workmen.

Kingston helped the Locomotive Works and the works has inestimably helped Kingston; therefore, the effort set forth was productive and profitable for our citizens.

On February 4th, an analogous case comes before the judgment of the electors. An industry that, like the Locomotive Works, is capable of great expansion, can, by a small bonus, be resumed. The additional taxes paid by the workers and the factory will more than compensate the city for the assistance required. Therefore, the city loses nothing, and is the gainer, because if Wormwith and his eighty men leave, the tax roll will be smaller and the remainder must pay the difference. So to speak, Kingston gets a good thing for nothing by keeping Wormwith here—it's a business proposition—put it before any banker, any merchant, any large property holder—one and all will endorse and vote for the by-law and the city's best interests.

Other municipalities want Wormwith—need Wormwith—will pay Wormwith to turn his back on Kingston. Wormwith doesn't need Kingston, but Kingston certainly needs Wormwith—needs his big payroll, needs his skilled workmen and their taxes, water and light bills.

Don't let anything the size of Deseronto or Gananoque interfere with Kingston's advancement. Let us vote for the by-law and keep Wormwith for our own.—CITIZEN.

POSED AS CLERYMAN.

Wine Clerks is Sure That He Served Raffles.

Here is the latest, in regard to the great chase for "Raffles," the Whig's mysterious man. James Kelly, wine clerk, at the Kennedy house, says that he is sure that he served "Raffles" with a drink, at the bar, last night.

"Raffles," he said, was "dressed up" as a clergyman, and went out just after he had been served with his drink.

"As luck would have it, I did not at the time happen to have the Whig with me, or I would have put it to him," said Mr. Kelly. He says that if "Raffles" comes around again, he will land him sure.

"Raffles" At Opera House.

"Raffles" made such a successful visit to the King Edward Theatre, last night, that he anticipates no difficulty in eluding his pursuers on his entrance to the Grand Opera House, on Thursday night. He has seen Miss Hilda, Spong, "The Man and His Mate," and liked the performance so well that he could not resist the temptation to go a second time, even if caught in the act. He will be there to-morrow night.

Family Of Deceased.

The late Mr. Spooner is survived by his mother, five sisters and four brothers: R. J. in California; George, in Syracuse; Arthur and Kenneth, Annie and Mary, with their mother at the homestead in Glenburnie; Mrs. Abbott, in Brooklyn; Mrs. Camie and Mrs. Blake, in Kingston.

He was a member of the Inverary lodge of Foresters. In religion he was a Methodist. The funeral will take place from his mother's residence in Glenburnie on Friday afternoon at two o'clock, to Cataract cemetery. The two bodies were to be removed to the Glen as soon as a jury was empanelled to view them.

To Petition Government.

A resolution is to be moved in the county council by Councillor Purdy to petition the dominion government to see that the railway crossings in the vicinity of Kingston are either protected by gates or by signposts. There are four or five dangerous places, and the aid of the members for Kingston and Frontenac will be sought to strike while the accident of Tuesday night is so vividly before the people.

Splendid Bill At Bijou.

"The Bride of Lammermoor," a dramatization of Sir Walter Scott's famous romance will be shown at the Bijou, to-day and to-morrow. This is one of the world's greatest stories. In Italy it was made into a grand opera called "Lucia di Lammermoor," and several plays have been written from it. The scene is laid in Scotland, about the year 1750, and the costumes and scenery are very fine. There is also offered a pathetic and romantic drama, "Their Baby's Portrait," or a "Tragedy in the Life of an Artist."

"The Burglar and the Child, or the Repentance of Slippery Jim," is a fine drama, with a touch of Christmas in it, and is full of exciting incidents. Another drama of heroic cast is "The Hero of Paradise Alley," is an extra attraction. The hero saves a lady who is attacked by footpads, and is rewarded in a remarkable manner. Will West appears in illustrated songs.
