Their suspicions aroused, the men followed, and found her stretched on the ground, where she evidently intended to spend the night.

She was taken back to the station. On a side track stood a long freight train and in the caboose the conductor was whiling away the hours of waiting by playing a banjo. The woman broke away from her captors and went to the caboose. Here she sat quietly for over two hours, listening to the music. When asked to feave sho refused. She was finally induced to go back to the depot.

When she arrived there she asked Bloomfield, who was there alone, for something to read. He told her that he had nothing. This seemed to anger the unfortunate woman, She seized a stack of railroad documents and tore them up. Bloomfield attempted to stop her, and the struggle began. She pulled a long pin and made a savage attack upon him. There was a desperate struggle, lasting several minutes before the operator overpowered her. Bloomfield then telephoned to the jail at Adrian for help. It was three hours before the officers arrived. and the insane woman divided the time between singing and praying and attacking the operator with her bare

Spokane, Wash., Feb. 5.-Frederick V. Dewart, chairman of the legislative committee of the Spokane Champer of Commerce, to which body has of George T. Potter, is on the sick ting the advisavility of removing the list. On Saturday evening, the Star- tariff on coal from Canada, reports that this will mean a saving of from $60,000 to $75,000 a year to Spokane. He said in the course of an interview to-day:

"The removal of duty on coal from Canada would not affect the condition ment during the years has been good, Washington because the removal of of laborers in the mines in Western the duty would not increase the com petition of Canadian coal against the coal mined in this state. The coal from the Crow's Nest section is almost entirely steam coal; a small per cent, is used for domestic purposes. The coal used for domestic purposes in Spokane comes from Wyoming, and a small portion of it from Montana The Canadian coal is of a different formation, and of a character which makes it superior to anything mined in Wyoming or Montana, for steam purposes, so that it is the logical manufacturing fuel for Spokane.

"Operators of coal mines in Montana are opposed to taking the duty off coal for fear the mines at Leth bridge will further encroach upon their territory. The fact is that the coal mined at Lethbridge is largely in Great Falls, Mont. While there has always been a market in Spokane for all the Lethbridge coal that could be ed on by a delegation representing produced, the Spokane agents have four thousand South African veterans, that the Montana operators of mines have nothing to fear in consequence of the duty being taken off coal from
