WORK AT THE Y.M.C.A. ENCOURAGING REPORTS AT ANNUAL BANQUET.

Every Branch of Work Had Year of Marked Progress—Prof. Dyde's Address on "Canada, Its Opportunities For Young Men."

That the Kingston Y.M.C.A. is under most able management and is doing a noble work, was shown by the encouraging reports given at the annual banquet, held last night, which was largely attended. The past year has been one of progress, in the various branches, and the board of directors has every reason to be proud of the work which is being carried along. Last night's banquet was a decided success, in every way. As is usual, at all the banquets, the members of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Y.M.C.A., were in charge, and it was indeed a fine spread they had prepared for the members. The menu was of the best, and the ladies well looked after all the arrangements. The object of the auxiliary is to co-operate in the work of the association, and it can be truly said that the auxiliary has taken advantage of every opportunity to further the interests of the association. The president, Dr. Anglin, presided at the head of the table, and in addition to the toast list, there was a most interesting address, delivered by Professor S. W. Dyde, of Queen's University, on "Canada, Its Opportunities For Young Men." Hon. E. J. Davis, father of Elmer Davis, the vice-president of the association, kindly consented to speak at the banquet on this subject, but was taken ill in Montreal, and could not attend. In the regret of the members, Prof. Dyde was asked to speak, and much to the pleasure of the members he consented to take up the same question as announced for Hon. Mr. Davis. His address was an eloquent one, and was listened to with keen interest.

The chairman before calling upon the toast to the "King," took occasion to pay a warm tribute to the ladies for having provided such a bountiful spread, and his remarks were greeted with a round of applause.

The toast to the "King" was honored by the company joining heartily in the singing of the National air.

Dr. Anglin said that the banquet took the form of an annual meeting of the association, and reports of the year would be presented. As president, he would say that he was delighted with the success of the year's work. He felt that he could safely say that never before, in the history of the association, was there so much interest taken in the work, as at the present time. He made special reference to one department, that of the gymnasium. Last year, there were 72 members, and this year, 1,773, which he characterized as a tremendous increase. The association stood for a three-fold culture, that of the mind, the spirit and the body. Reference was also made to the good work done in the religious and educational departments. The one great aim was to make the association a young men's club. In closing, the speaker again thanked the ladies for their share in the work, stating that they could always be relied upon to do their work nobly and well.

The toast to "The Mayor and the Corporation of Kingston," was proposed by George Mills, and responded to by Ald. Hoag. Mr. Mills said he felt sure that all the members of the council were interested in the work of the association. The association could claim part of the honor for the keeping of the moral tone of the city. The different mayors of the city had contributed generously to the support of the Y. M. C. A.

In regard to the request of the Board of Education, that the city council give $4,000, for a gymnasium for the Collegiate Institute, the speaker expressed the hope that every precaution would be taken, before the question was put to a vote. The present resources in the city, with the Y.M.C.A. should be considered. Ald. Hoag, in replying, said that in stating that the association was doing good work, he would be giving the opinion of the whole council. He himself, had always taken a deep interest in the work and believed that it was the duty of every business man to take the same interest. The association has the task of training the young men who would some day be the men of the city. The speaker referred, in eloquent terms to the work of Mr. Nelles, the secretary, and Mr. Thompson, physical director, and his remarks were received with loud applause. In these positions, the association had the right men, in the right place. The association was doing a grand work and it was up to the people to give the association every assistance possible. The hope of the city council was that the good work might continue.

The toast to "The Young Men's Christian Association," was proposed by Rev. Mr. Craig, and replied to by Elmer Davis and T. F. Harrison.

Mr. Craig referred to the good work of the Y.M.C.A. at the annual military camp, held at Barfield. The speaker was, on the field as a chaplain, and was given the opportunity of seeing the work carried out. The association, he said, was scattering sunshine, every day of the week, along many paths. The speaker suggested that rooms be opened up by the association, in the downtown section of the city, and that meetings be held two or three times a week, in order to gather in other young men. If this plan was carried out, he believed that the Y.M.C.A. building would soon have to be enlarged. Elmer Davis was first to respond to the toast, and in opening, referred to the liberal response met with on the occasion of the financial campaign held about a year ago, and expressed the board's appreciation of the manner in which the appeal was met. He reported that last year's sum of $1,154.80, had passed through the hands of the association. The receipts from subscriptions direct, had been $3,050. Much of the thanks for this, was due to the business men. Never before had there been so many young men in the gymnasium and the speaker held that the development along physical lines, was of vital interest. He advocated good conduct, sports in every line of sport. There was criticism from some quarters, that there was too much made of the gymnasium, and not long since the speaker heard of an elderly man making the remark that when he was a young man, the weekly prayer meeting was the only place he had to go to. And as this remark was made another man put in his opinion by saying, "Yes, but there was nothing else to go to in those days." The speaker had nothing to say against the prayer meetings, but would say that in this age, when there was so much competition all the resources should be developed, in order to hold the young men.

Mr. Harrison spoke of the physical, mental and spiritual work carried on for the young people by the schools, the Y.M.C.A. and the churches. The Y.M.C.A., he said, depended upon education. "Boys will be boys," he added, "but remember that someday they will be men." It was far easier to save the boy than hold back the man. We were living in a fast age, our great grandfathers were content to travel by oxen, our grandfathers by stage coach, our fathers by steam power, but we of the present generation must have our automobiles or flying machines. A guard in the penitentiary had, in conversation with the speaker, not long ago, stated that at the present time there were more boys in the penitentiary than ever before in his experience. In order to save the boys it was up to the Christian people to do something fast. He had no sympathy for the man who would criticize the work of the gymnasium. The speaker then gave a few figures. In the physical department, at the association, in 1907, there were 49 members, in 1908, 129, an increase of 80, or a total increase allowing for changes in a revision of the rolls of 56. The speaker referred to the work carried on in the educational department, and paid a warm tribute to the work of Mr. Burton, of Queen's, who is in charge. Other branches of the work were also referred to. At the regular Sunday meetings the attendance during 1908 was 2,400. At the special meetings 4,500, or to sum up the total attendance would reach 6,900. In 1907 the attendance reached 81,000. This was an increase of 5,000, which surely called for gratitude and thanksgiving. One of the latest works undertaken was that of educating the members along missionary lines.

The chairman, before calling upon Prof. Dyde, referred to the fact that Mr. Dyde had been taken ill with bronchitis and was unable to be present. Ever good and very much his illness, and the association was greatly indebted to Prof. Dyde, who had consented to speak on the subject, "Canada, Its Opportunities For Young Men."

Prof. Dyde, in opening, complimented the ladies for the excellent menu, and also complimented the association on the business-like manner in which the work of the year had been carried out. In taking up his subject, he said that Canada was passing from the colonial stage to a self-governing nation. We were now adding to our responsibilities. We were assuming a greater weight, with national responsibility. Every Canadian was well aware of the additional work this would call for. We should think and act nationally, imperially and humanely. Our motto should be, "A United Canada, in a united empire, for a united race." (Loud applause.)

The speaker said that we should not go whining to our mother country, and say that we could not solve our problems. There should be imperial responsibility. We should think and act imperially. Size and population did not go to make up greatness. Nor would great resources either. A nation was dying, when it put resources first. If we would think imperially, we would not put coal, wheat, or gold as the king. The human soul must be looked upon as king. We should aim at high ideals. England stood out in her greatness because of her modesty. Modesty and chivalry was at the bottom of British character. Were we, at the present time, giving any consideration to the question of war in the Balkans? If not, we were colonial. To be a self-governing people, we must think and act humanely. It was not for us to put the burden on some one else. We could not put the responsibility on to some delegate in parliament. We should ourselves consider the matter, and take high ideals. If a man would be great, he must be a servant; if a nation would be great, it must be a servant. We must serve the race. As Kipling said, "We must lift upon our shoulders the white man's burden." We must lift up the weak to our own plane.

At the close, a hearty vote of thanks was tendered the ladies on motion of Rev. C. A. Sykes, and Dr. Nash, and to Prof. Dyde, on motion of Rev. T. E. Burke and Elmer Davis.

QUEEN'S TOOK HONORS WIN INTERCOLLEGIATE HOCKEY CHAMPIONSHIP.

Defeated McGill Last Evening By Nine Goals to Two—Queen's Have Lost Only One League Game During the Season.

Queen's are senior champions of the Intercollegiate Hockey Union. Hats off to the Presbyterians, who have only met one defeat this season, after playing six games in the series. Queen's have had a successful year, they have worked faithfully and earned their laurels. This makes the third year that Queen's have held the cup, and may they hold it many more times. The Intercollegiate League was inaugurated in 1902, and Queen's won the cup that year.

On Friday night Queen's defeated McGill seniors, the conquerors of Varsity, by nine goals to two, in a rather ragged match, at the Kingston rink, before eleven hundred people. At half-time the score stood three to one for Queen's. The ice was in perfect condition. A band was present and enlivened the proceedings with a few popular airs.

The game was not a good exhibition of senior hockey by any means, but was as slow a senior game as has been seen here in some time. In spots it was fast, very fast, but only in spots.

Queen's deserved their victory. They worked hard and played as fast a game as was needed to keep well in the lead. They took the lead at the start and never relinquished it. Queen's as a team never worked better together than they did last evening. The defence was good, Pennock, Macdonnell and Daniels being a tower of strength that the red and white could not get over any way. Daniels played a fine game in goal, saving Queen's many times. Pennock played his usual hard game, securing two goals, and both on lone rushes. Very few over-points are good goal-getters.

On the forward line Dobson and Campbell were the stars. Both played a magnificent game of hockey, with Campbell the favorite. Some of Campbell's rushes were quite spectacular, especially when he scored his second goal in the first half, on one of the prettiest rushes seen here in some time. George and Crawford also played fine.

The checking throughout the entire game was close and strenuous, many jobs being given, but most were of an accidental nature. In the first half, shortly after Campbell scored his first goal, he was given a poke in the side and had to retire for repairs. He was off for seven minutes.

McGill can thank their defence that the score was not larger, and on the defence Johnson deserves credit for

CORRIGAN'S.

The number of red-labelled ones he connected with during the game. He was the best man on McGill's defence. On the line, Raphael and Blair were the hardest workers, although Ramsay and Sargent played a good game. During the game Macdonnell and Raphael got into a mixup and the McGill man was put off for striking Macdonnell. As soon as the big Queen's point saw him going to the penalty bench, he went to the referee, and told him to bring Raphael back, as it was an accident. Such acts are seldom noticed in a hockey rink. Queen's supporters became quite lively after the game, carrying the players off the ice, singing college songs and raising a good time in general. The teams lined up as follows: Queen's (9)—Daniels, goal; Macdonnell, point; Pennock, cover; George, rover; Crawford, centre; Dobson, left wing; Campbell, right wing. McGill (2)—Johnson, goal; Mosley, point; Baillie, cover; Raphael, rover; Blair, centre; Ramsay, left wing; Sargent, right wing. Referee—James T. Sutherland, Kingston.
