

Told in Twilight

Miss Edith Miller, the Canadian contralto who has been delighting Kingston people with her song, this week, in an old friend of Mrs. J. S. Turner, Barrie street. She has spent most of her day-time while in town with Mrs. Turner, and some of the musical people have had the pleasure of meeting her there. Miss Miller has a very attractive personality, quite apart from her talent, and life in London, where she has spent the past five years, has added to Canadian vivacity an experience of life which increases this quality. Miss Miller, after her return from her first years of study in Europe, was soloist in St. Bartholomew's church, New York. Miss Maud Bell, who lives with Miss Miller in London, her people being in India (her step-father attached to the Indian army), is a charming little English girl, "as sweet as she can be," and also came in for Mrs. Turner's hospitality. It is hoped that both Miss Miller and Miss Bell will find their way to Kingston again very shortly. Miss Miller hopes to pay a short visit to her native place, Portage la Prairie, on her way west.

VERY ENJOYABLE

Was the Edith Miller Concert Last Night.

Even more enjoyable than Monday night's concert, was that given by Miss Edith Miller, and her company, Tuesday, in the city hall. For one thing, they all knew their audience, many of whom had come the second time to enjoy the music. Miss Miller repeated her success of the evening before Brahms' "Little Duetman," which she sings delightfully, and the aria, "O Mio Fernando," was magnificently sung. "The Song of the Cruise" was another treat, her interpretation of it being full of feeling.

Miss Maud Bell again played delightfully, her "Melodie" (Rubenstein), and its encore, "The Swan Song," being gems.

As to Thorpe Bates, he has only to send word that he is coming again to be sure of an enthusiastic audience. His voice is full of color and life, and his unaffected interest in all his work reminds the hearer of Plunkett Green, who had such a happy way of making his audience one with him. Mr. Bates first number, "Pagliacci," displayed the range and power of his voice, and its encore, "Sometimes," was sung with a depth of restrained feeling which was more than artistic. Mr. Craxton's accompaniment to this was suitably subordinate, and followed the singer in his interpretation with an accompaniment nothing short of beautiful. When this young musician, whose solo work, last night, was most enjoyable, learns that an accompanist wins fame accordingly as he effaces himself for the singer's sake, will his listeners be able to unreservedly commend him.

Alfred Heather is one of the chief, if not the chief, tenor, of Westminster Abbey choir, and the sweetness and truthfulness of his voice is particularly well adapted to his parts in the Abbey's beautiful services. His duet, "The Two Beggars," with Mr. Bates, brought down the house, and there were vociferous recalls.

CLEAN UP STREETS

WOMEN BOSS JOB WHILE OTHERS DO WORK.

Set the City Authorities An Example in Keeping Pavements and Sidewalks Free From Rubbish.

Washington, April 21.—The women of Washington cleaned the streets as they had promised, or threatened. But they cleaned them by proxy.

No troops of white angel wings rustled, nor hustled on the broad avenues or in the parks. He was vastly disappointed who had expected to see fat matrons and lovely maids, led by Mrs. F. Y. Coville, with dust caps on their heads and brooms in their kid-gloved hands, making the streets as "sweet and clean" as their own parlors.

"If you do not clean the streets we will," said the women's committee, of which Mrs. Coville is chairman, to Commissioner West.

"Don't shoot, I beg you ladies. I am doing the best I can with my appropriation," answered the commissioner madly. "If my best does not please you, go ahead."

To use a technicality, the commissioner did not call the ladies remarkable to say, the bluff failed. When the time came the women shrank from their self-imposed task; from the early morning crowds their appearance as street cleaners must attract.

Those with children sent them and their servants out with dust pans and brushes. Very delicately they made little dust heaps and picking up scraps of paper deposited them gently in small bags. Other women hired bands of pickaninnies, and they tidied up considerable areas. The children quickly saw the chance to earn money for candy. They went around ringing door bells and saying:

"We'll clean up your sidewalk and pavement for a nickel apiece, missus." Women, like district superintendents, walked up and down giving orders and criticizing. Mrs. Coville bossed the whole job. In an auto she whizzed here and there, and, later, said joyously:

"The city looks like a different place. Why, you can't write your name in the dust on any street we have cleaned."

Mrs. Coville will appoint a committee of five to keep watch on the street cleaning force and to inform the commissioners of all breaches of regulations.

TWAS A FINE CONCERT

Given By Canadian Order Chosen Friends, Last Night.

The musical and dramatic entertainment, given last night, in the Sons of England hall, Princess street, by the Canadian Order of Chosen Friends, council, No. 121, was a decided success, in every way. The programme was a most delightful one, and was much appreciated by the goodly number who were present. The duties of chairman were ably looked after by William Pillar.

The main portion of the programme was given by the Q's, who are members of the first rank. They put on three sketches, "A Slight Mistake," "A Shakespearean Recital," and "He and She," and their work was good in each. They well deserved the hearty applause which was showered upon them. They have given several entertainments during the winter season, and have won favor on all sides.

The programme was a varied one. Ernest Madrox was the accompanist of the evening, and also rendered a fine selection at the opening. Some fine numbers were given by the Mandolin and Guitar Club. William McFeldridge recited "Cassy At The Bar," in a most pleasing manner, and the old-time favorite piece was warmly received. Ormand Paradis favored with a song and dance, and his efforts were crowned with great success. Henry Poryman, the boy wonder, and Henry artist, gave a grand exhibition doing a number of feats which would bring credit to any professional. He is a Kingston boy who is making rapid strides in this work, and his work was much commented upon.

THOROUGHLY COOKED FOOD

All cereals should be thoroughly cooked to get the best results for food purposes. In our Canadian Agricultural Colleges they have tested the effect of cooking on the solubility of foods. Read this table:

Time Cooked	P. C. Solids Soluble in Water	Wheat Flour P. C. Solids Soluble in Water	Time Cooked	P. C. Solids Soluble in Water
Uncooked	8.43	Uncooked	6.97
30 minutes	14.95	20 minutes	37.40
2 hours	18.73	2 hours	37.19
5 hours	29.93	5 hours	38.33
8 hours	34.80	8 hours	39.90

You will notice the gradual rise in percentage due to long cooking. Very few houses are equipped to spend the time or fuel necessary to properly prepare cereals. By a system of steam pressure and heavy machinery the ORANGE MEAT people thoroughly clean and steam cook the wheat, then malt and flake each grain, after which it is dried and toasted. This produces the largest percentage of solubility; a process totally impossible in the ordinary kitchen.
