

NAME READY.

Jurors Were to Put It In Verdict.

MISLED BY CROWN.

IN SUDDEN CLOSING OF THE INQUEST.

The Jurors Thought If They Made a Specific Finding It Would Hamper the Hands of Justice—The Foreman's Declaration.

Hamilton, Ont., May 14.—That the juror's jury in the Kinrade inquest was misled into returning an open verdict, that they were ready to name a specific person in their finding, and that they considered there was enough ground on which to base a perjury case, as the result of some of the evidence given at the inquest, is the gist of a statement given out by Foreman Spera, who presided over the deliberations of the jurors.

Mr. Spera's utterance is the result of a meeting of a number of members of the discharged jury, following on open accusations that they had been bought.

According to Mr. Spera, the jury was informed before the conclusion of the inquest that the crown had twelve new witnesses on hand, and when proceedings were so abruptly terminated they got the impression that the crown authorities had something up their sleeves, which a specific verdict might in some way interfere with.

As a matter of fact the foreman had a draft of a verdict which was favored by ten of the jurors, and which was anything but open in its nature. The minority, however, were of the opinion that to return an open verdict would leave the hands of the crown more unhampered in its work on the case, and the majority were brought round to agree with this.

A number of the jurors wrote a combined letter to Attorney-General Foy, explaining their attitude.

Had the jury intimated that the crown was at the end of its resources it would have asked for the clearing up of a number of points, says Foreman Spera. One of these would have involved the calling as a witness of Louis Copple, who, he understood, could have given interesting information regarding what he saw and heard about the Kinrade house on the morning of the murder.

Asked to indicate the line which the jury would have urged the crown to pursue, Mr. Spera was quite definite. The majority of the jury were of the opinion that perjury proceedings should have been taken against one of the chief witnesses in the case. This, in fact, what most of them complain about, and it is understood that had the original draft verdict gone through, there would have been a recommendation to this effect.

Coroner Anderson thinks that any definite action taken by the jury would have a good deal of weight. Although the jury was discharged, it could be called together by the foreman and any resolution which might be passed would certainly be important.

The feeling of the public in regard to the case is assuming threatening proportions, and the authorities are being criticized severely. The people want to know what arrangement was made by which the inquest proceedings collapsed so suddenly.

The officers of the crown refuse to say what the arrangement was, but from thoroughly reliable sources it between the lawyers for the Kinrade family and Crown Attorney Washington on the last night of the inquest. It is understood that the crown attorney pointed out that it was up to the Kinrade family to take a certain line of action and that on the understanding that this would be done the session was brought to a close.

It now seems that there has been an understanding on the part of the crown and that the agreement has been carried out. The general public wants to know why the crown should resort to collusion to secure its ends; admittedly an irregular proceeding. The course, it is said, was directed by the attorney-general's department, in whose hands the matter now is.

Jimmy Baum has written a letter to a friend in Hamilton in which he gives an account of an interview he had with Mr. Kinrade and Florence on the morning of the last day of the inquest. It was stated some time ago that no such interview had taken place, but Baum's letter shows that he did meet his old sweetheart. His letter explains that he was struck by the terrible grief that the girl seemed to be suffering from. Baum tells his friend that evidently the girl has suffered so much that she cannot recollect what she said. The letter also states that T. L. Kinrade apologized to Baum for saying on the day of the murder that he (Baum) was responsible for the crime.

It is understood here that Mrs. and Florence Kinrade and C. Montrose Wright have only left on a short trip as they were provided only with regular grips. Enquiries have been set on foot with regard to the baggage they carried and it cannot be learned that they took any heavy trunks, such as would be required for a long trip, to the old country, for instance, as has been suggested. Mr. Kinrade stated yesterday that he was going to take Mrs. Kinrade to California.

IMPROVING CONDITION.

Inhabitants Appreciate Work of Islanders.

Seoul, Korea, May 14.—The vice-consul general of Korea has just returned to the capital from an official visit to the eastern and southern provinces.

In an interview he said: "Conditions generally in Korea are encouraging. I found little anti-Japanese sentiment. The restlessness in the southern provinces, which a year ago was so serious, has now been almost completely allayed. Koreans generally are accepting Japanese guidance because they see that the entire country is improving under Japanese administration. The newly established courts are working effectively."

There is the highest authority for the statement that Japan does not contemplate the annexation of Korea, and that Prince Ito will return as resident general.

The most disorderly scene was the socialists' slogan "The Red Flag" and the loyalists' slogan "The Union Jack" were "Rule Britannia," "Boys of the Bull-Do" and other patriotic songs.

LET OUT THE FACTS

AS TO REGULATIONS IN THE FISHERIES TREATY.

The G.T.R. Hotel Site—The Pugsley Vote Issue—Georgian Bay Canal Scheme—Is Round Robin About?

Ottawa, May 14.—Hon. L. P. Brodeur, in the commons, accused the Ontario minister of public works of breach of faith in publishing the fisheries regulations in the treaty between Canada and the United States.

R. L. Borden asked if anything more has been done regarding the transfer of the hotel site on Major Hill park, Ottawa, to the Grand Trunk railway.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier replied that nothing has been done since the last discussion.

Mr. Blair, of Peel, one of the conservative whips, drew attention to recent criticisms on the part of the government press alleged catch vote on the Pugsley resolution and a violation of an agreement reached between the whips. He denied this in toto.

W. S. Calvert, chief liberal whip, admitted that there had been no agreement as to rotational, but a list of speakers on each side had been drawn up, and it was well understood that the debate was to have lasted longer than it did.

Mr. Borden said he had heard of no agreement, but there was a desire on both sides to shorten the debate.

Major Currie asked if the premier was aware that a round-robin had been circulated, pledging members to support a government guarantee of the bonds of the Georgian Bay canal scheme, and if such legislation was to be brought down this session, Sir Wilfrid replied that this was the first intimation he had had of the matter. However, so far as legislation was concerned, every important measure was on the order paper.

OTHER PLANS IN VIEW

To Offset the Serious Growth of Strike.

Paris, May 14.—After a turbulent session of the Chamber of Deputies yesterday, the government's policy with regard to the postal strike was emphatically endorsed by a vote of 454 to 59, including also the government's insistence that the postal employees and other functionaries have no right to strike. Immediately afterwards the chamber passed a vote of general confidence in the government, 305 to 159.

The strikers received the chamber's rebuke with a shrug of the shoulders, declaring it served only to bind closer their forces, which soon would startle the country by a big increase and a rapid extension of the general movement. On the other hand, it is intimated that the government has other plans in view to offset any serious growth of the strike.

M. Batou, the minister of public works, posts and telegraphs, during the course of the debate, asserted that only 2,367 out of 24,305 postal employees in Paris had joined the movement. In Paris and the department of Seine are out, and the conditions in the provinces were even better.

COLLEGE FOR WOMEN.

Step Onward From Luxurious Slavery of Harem.

New York, May 14.—A national college for women is to be established in Constantinople. The leader of the movement is Ahmed Riza Bey, who is said to be inspired by his sister, who is a well-known Turkish author.

A site for the building has been given by the sultan, who is said to be very much in favor of the undertaking. The site is at Foonoqlik. The scope of the college will be discussed very shortly in parliament, when it is expected that the success of Dr. Mary Mills Patrick as president of the American College for Girls in Constantinople will be used as a great argument in favor of establishing a national institution. The number of high-class Turkish girls attending the American college has greatly increased since the coming in of the new political regime.

Think Man Was Murdered.

St. Thomas, Ont., May 14.—Murder is strongly suspected in the case of William Tomlinson, a Michigan Central railway machinist, whose body was found a few days ago half buried in sand under the Kettle Creek bridge near here.

A post-mortem has revealed that no bones were broken and that there was no water in the lungs. There is a wound on the forehead.

It is believed that the man was murdered and his body carried to the spot and buried and that the fresh wash came away part of the sand covering.

A provincial detective is investigating.

Overhauls Customs Service.

New York, May 14.—A thorough reorganization of the weighing department of the customs service in this city was today effected by Collector William Loebl, Jr., who said that the changes were made with the entire approval of the treasury department and will effect a saving of over $5,000 a year for the government.

FAILED TO GET HER.

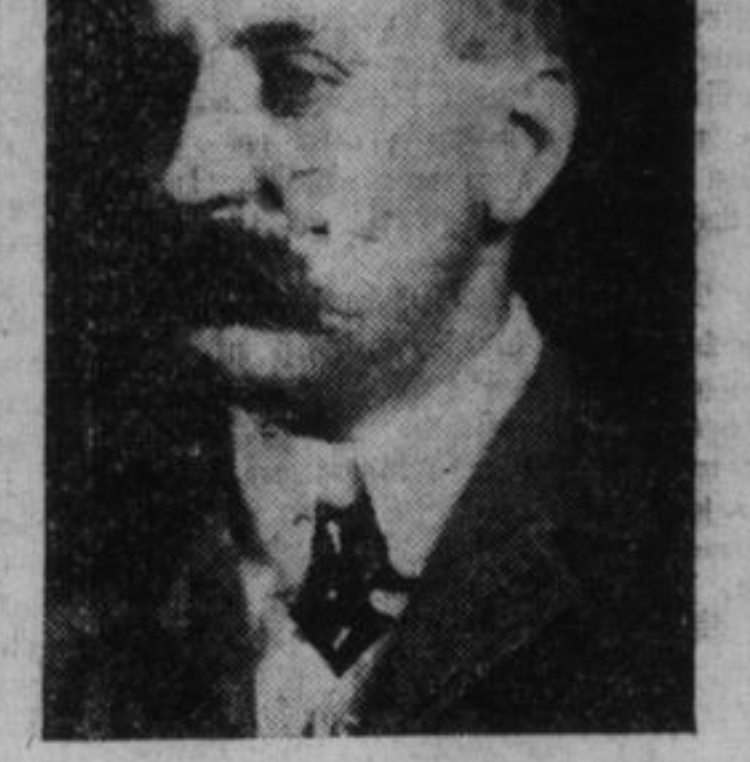

Crossed Ocean to Wed—Wed the "Other Fellow."

San Francisco, May 14.—After crossing the ocean to Honolulu to become the bride of Charles Howard, of San Francisco, Mrs. Eva B. Wallace, is the wife of R. M. Baker, automobile agent of Chicago, according to advices received in this city.

Mrs. Wallace sailed from San Francisco on the liner Alameda. Anxiously awaiting her arrival in Honolulu was Howard to whom she had become engaged while he was here.

Aboard ship the bride-to-be met Baker, and moonlight strolls about the deck and the daily companionship of the voyage resulted in a love affair that was the downfall of Howard's plans.

When the Alameda docked in Honolulu, Howard, after taking her to an hotel, went to complete the arrangements for the ceremony. When he returned he learned that Baker and another preacher had been first on the scene.

MEN CANNOT DO IT.

She delivered a message of sympathy from the queen, saying: "She feels that this is a thing that only women can do. Women try to be like men in the present day, but this is a thing that men cannot do."

HAS FALLEN FOUL

OF GERMAN AUTHORITIES FOR HIS OFFENCES.

Accused of Kidnapping Natives and Carrying Away the German Flags From Tobie Island—Capt. Strachan's Claim.

Sydney, N.S.W., May 14.—Capt. Strachan, master of the Australian ketch, Envy, has arrived at Brisbane and has fallen foul of the German authorities, who accuse him of kidnapping natives and carrying away the German flag from Tobie Island.

The German vice-consul, yesterday, informed him that a German man-o-war would seize the vessel if she went outside the three-mile limit.

Capt. Strachan claims the ownership of the island, which he says he first visited in 1894, afterward giving a full account at Singapore to the governor of the Straits Settlements.

Subsequently at Honolulu, Capt. Strachan acquired the Spanish governor if Spain had any claim to the island in 1894, and the governor replied that he had no knowledge of the island's existence.

The German consul general at Sydney, when interviewed, stated that Tobie Island is in the Caroline and was taken over from Spain in 1901.

In June, 1905, Capt. Strachan, for recruiting natives and fishing for trepan without a license, was fined 900 marks and costs. The Caroline authorities say this fine was not paid, but if Capt. Strachan entered German waters he would be arrested.

The consul general declares that Capt. Strachan is trying to turn a private affair into an international question at a time when, unfortunately, it is not difficult to excite public feeling.

Mrs. W. Hamm, the daughter of Joseph Cooper, of this town, married her husband, two years ago, and went with him to live in Rose, N.Y. In the fall of 1907 she came home to visit her parents, and remained some months, returning to her husband with no interference. This spring she again came to Clinton, and was here two months, but on returning on May 7th, she was stopped at the Suspension Bridge, and refused admittance to the United States.

Argument nor explanation availed; she, with her small baby, had to return to Clinton, where she now is.
