

Gold in Twilight

The reception, in honor of the synod delegates, given by the Lord Bishop of Ontario and Mrs. Lennox Mills at "Bishop's court," on Wednesday, was one of the pleasantest that has ever taken place there. This affair, which is looked forward to every year, as one of June's pleasures, was much missed out of the month's festivities last year, the Lord Bishop and Mrs. Mills' absence on the continent preventing their holding it. The musical programme, on Thursday, was in charge of Mrs. R. B. Williamson and was an exceptionally pleasing one. Mrs. Williamson herself played all the accompaniments with the exception of the accompaniment to Miss Christine Cochrane's violin solo, which was played by Mrs. John Cochrane, and that to "Mona Knight's sweet song," which was played by her sister, Miss Phyllis Knight. The latter is an addition to that sparsely-peopled world of good accompanists. A very youthful singer, of whose gifts we very few know, is Miss Namie Garrett, and last night she charmed all who heard her by her fresh, sweet and true voice, and the simplicity of her work.

The Man On Watch.

Those who think that early closing of stores on Saturday night will increase the church attendance on Sunday are sadly mistaken, says the Lammpan, who looks upon Sunday as a day of rest in the literal sense. Those who journey three times on a Sunday to church services surely don't get rest, he claims. He knows of ministers who are tired out on Sunday nights after their strenuous work, and whose domestics have to labor late to prepare a Sunday night meal. If store clerks were to be relieved of duty at six o'clock on Saturday evenings, they wouldn't have any more desire to go to church on Sunday morning than they have when they get plenty of rest between eleven o'clock Saturday night and ten o'clock Sunday morning. How the churches will reap any benefit by early closing of stores is a mystery to the Lammpan, for he notices many of the hardest working business men of the town are always in their pews at morning worship.

The Lammpan would like to become a member of the town's Humane Society, and help along its good work. This association, he says, has worked for its end in the past two years, but of course there are always cases right at hand that are overlooked. Had he been connected with the association he would have prosecuted those who were responsible for the cruel treatment of the artillery horses, when they were poor animals being thrashed and overworked for a tournament exhibition. He was surprised that the artillery veterinary, who is a member of the Humane Society, did not protest. In one of these cruel and useless practices a horse was so badly hurt that it had to be shot. The Lammpan does not see that police court cases for abusing horses have been a whit worse than the recent exhibitions at artillery park.

The Lammpan tells me that the professors of the Kingston School of Mines, regularly receive requests from their clients asking them whether they would advise them to invest in this or that mining venture. One of these applicants, he says, was given a wise answer by a Kingston professor, who said that, while he could judge of ores, he was not an expert in the field of investment, but would advise, if he had any cash to spare, to play poker. Because then he would have the satisfaction of "seeing" the man who took his money.

The Lammpan doesn't think much of the Board of Education's financial ability. It went to the town council and asked for $4,000 to build a gymnasium for the grammar school, without knowing what the cost would be. It got the $4,000 and now finds it isn't enough. Mayor Cooper and the town council had better have provided $2,500 more. The school board, the Lammpan says, seems to be composed of a fine lot of business men, and thinks that the majority may have taken the gymnasium question as a joke, until the government inspector gave them "the hook" and brought them to time.

Deceased was a general favorite with old and young and will be missed by his companions and in the home, and also in the junior choir of St. Vincent de Paul church, as he was always in attendance, possessing a clear, sweet voice. At china shower she received a pretty tea set of Limoges from about forty of her friends. A presentation was also extended by the officers of the Presbyterian Sunday school, the secretary reading an address showing high esteem in which she was held, and also regret of losing a valuable member. The groom has many friends in town and had been in the employment of the Rathbun company for some time. They will reside at Michael Pay, Manitowish.

Afternoon tea was given at the home of Mrs. William Harvey in aid of the Church Woman's Aid, on Wednesday afternoon.
