

Told in Twilight

Very high praise for Mrs. J. B. Carruthers' dance at "Annandale" on Wednesday, was to say that it kept up to the high pitch set by the ball at the Royal Military College. So perfect were all the arrangements that the only difference between it and Monday's affair was a difference in size. A fair night allowed the pretty grounds to be used, and these, strung with lanterns, arranged with comfortable seats, and peopled with bright faced girls in pretty frocks, and handsome men, were a lovely sight. The house was filled with flowers, and the music from Merry's orchestra, perfect. As it was the last dance of the season it was kept up very late, and a move was made to go home only when half-past three, and the awakening birds warned the guests that the early dawn June morning would be upon them, if they did not seek, at once, their carriages and home.

DEATH IN STORMS.
Chapter Of Events on This Continent.
St. Thomas, June 26.—In a severe storm at Corinth, Nelson Auger, a farmer, died from his recovery. Mr. Farly sought shelter under a tree, was struck by lightning and so severely injured that small hopes are entertained for his recovery. Mr. Farly was also stunned, and his horse was killed by the same bolt.

Mrs. Isaac Connor was struck while she stood in the dock of her own house, and was rendered unconscious.

London, Ont., June 26.—During a thunder storm Mr. and Mrs. Liddle, 141 Bathurst street, has a thrilling experience. A lightning bolt passed through the roof and the floor of an upper room into the dining-room below, where the couple were at dinner. It came within four feet of Mrs. Liddle and then passed out of the door.

Woodstock, Ont., June 26.—Lightning struck the home of Frederick White, passed under the cradle containing a baby a few days old, and exploded with a crash like cannon shot on the other side of the room.

Norton, Kansas, June 26.—In a tornado here a child of Mrs. Frank Gentry, of Brunswick Ranch, was blown from its mother's arms, and had not been found up to late last night.

The Man On Watch.

Instead of putting out the fire on Cataragui bridge, a few days ago, the Lampman thinks that Contractor McFadden should have sprinkled a tank full of gasoline over the bridge, and let it burn merrily from end to end. Then the government would have had to build a new bridge for the benefit of the Royal Military College. The old Cataragui bridge, he says, used to be a fine structure, but it is tottering with age, having carried the traffic of eighty years or more. It is time the old bridge that has connected the town of Kingston with the Pittsburg shore for so many years, should be given burial.

An old employee of the street car line gave the Lampman some information as to what is needed to increase the passenger traffic. He said that the depot line should be continued from Princess street right out Bagot street, up West street, and along in front of the court house, to connect with the Union street tracks. There should also be a connection from Montreal street, up Pine and along Division to Princess street. This would necessitate only a short distance of track and the addition of two cars, and would increase traffic immensely. Some day, he thinks, the cars will run through these two thickly-populated portions of the town.

The Lampman has noticed that the little orange cannon, taken from the walls of Derry, and now standing on St. Andrew's Kirk grounds, is pointing towards the big Roman Catholic church on Johnson street, and he wonders if the minister of St. Andrew's intends to fire it in the direction of Archbishop Gauthier's palace on the Twelfth of July. This cannon was for many years in the custody of the late Capt. Gaskin. The Lampman has wondered also why the new Kitties' band is not attached to the St. Andrew's Highland Cadets. Now he is told that there isn't a Scotchman in the band but that the players are either English, Irish or French.

THE ARMY HORSE.

How Tommy Atkins' Mounts Are Broken In and Trained.
"Breaking in a young horse forms the best possible training for a rider who aspires to become an accomplished horseman," writes a contributor to the May "Windsor Magazine," in an article on "The Education of an Army Horse." "It cannot," he says, "even be attempted by men who are not thoroughly at home in the saddle, and who cannot carry it out with patience and good temper. Since the men required for this duty have to be drawn from the ranks of the squadrons, a great deal of careful management is required to train and select suitable men under efficient instructors, and to organize the carrying on of the ordinary routine work as well. If the recruits join a regiment at the close of the manoeuvre season, the six winter months can be devoted to their education, so that most of them are fit for the ranks in the following summer. But if, as often happens to our cavalry regiments, they are a batch of 60 young horses thrown at them in the middle of the squadron training, at a time, too, when the ranks are full of young soldiers, all of whom require daily work in the field, and few or none are fit to be entrusted with a young horse, then the task of the commanding officer becomes well-nigh impossible.

"The British Government has no studs for young horses, but buys them as they are wanted—or, rather, when the need for them becomes very acute. Even in times of peace the recruits are posted to the regiments at irregular intervals and at varying ages. The regimental authorities have to do the best they can with the means at their disposal to train their horses. Since the best riders are required for the purpose, the training of the soldiers is necessarily interfered with, because the best men in the ranks of the squadron have to be left in front field work to ride remounts."

Starving In St. Helena.
What is to be the fate of St. Helena? is the question asked by the Hon. H. W. Solomon, of the executive council of the island, who has issued a plea on behalf of the distressed inhabitants.

"It is over two years since the garrison was removed," says Mr. Solomon in a letter to A. G. Wise, secretary of the St. Helena committee, "and although we appreciate the action of the Colonial Office in giving a subsidy to start a hemp mill, as well as a grant for teaching the girls lace making, yet much more remains to be done. At the request of former governors the farmers improved the breed of their live stock, being assured that they would always be required for military purposes. The result is that the farmers are to-day left with some 2,000 cattle on their hands which are practically useless, as on account of the great poverty, the people have no money to purchase meat. These cattle also are a

A Poser For Sir William.
Sir William Ramsay, who has been describing some remarkable experiments which he has made in connection with the transmutation of metals, tells an amusing story to illustrate his contention that the habit of reasoning is developed in male children at a remarkably early age. While visiting a friend he overheard a discussion between the little son and daughter of his host. "I wonder what we're here in the world for?" asked the little boy. His companion, thinking of a reason less on, answered gently. "We are put here to help others, of course." "Um!" exclaimed the little boy, after a moment's thought; "then what are the others here for?"

A Wonderful Career.
Amopget, the artist engaged for the grand opera season at Covent Garden, London, is the well-known tenor, Mr. John McCormack. It is an extraordinary fact that Mr. McCormack, who is only twenty-four years of age, had no idea of taking up music as a profession until six years ago, when he was induced to enter the National Irish Festival, where he won the gold medal. He is a tenor for whom a Sims Reeves' reputation is prophesied, and since he appeared at Covent Garden last year has received many tempting offers of engagements from abroad.

Playing With Prisoners.
In the courtyard leading to Dublin Bridewell the other day a batch of street-hawkers, who were being escorted to prison, suddenly pounced on a snow heap and treated their escort to a fusillade of snowballs, the policeman taking it in good part and setting their prisoners in hand again.

MUCH CIVIC BUSINESS.

To Be Transacted By the Aldermen on Monday.
Monday will be a busy day for the aldermen. Three committee meetings have been called for the afternoon at four o'clock, and a special meeting of the council at eight o'clock in the evening. The council meeting is for general business, but is called particularly to receive the report of the light, heat and power committee regarding the contract for repairing the concrete foundation of the gas tank. The board of works will recommend the purchase of two concrete mixers at a cost of $275 each, provided the test promised by the London company to give them here proves satisfactory to the city engineer. As stated before these mixers will save the city over $500 on remainder of concrete works to be built this year, besides paying for themselves. They are reported to be giving good satisfaction in other places.

The by-law granting $3,000 extra to the board of education for the college's gymnasium will have to stand until the regular meeting of council on July 5th, as a by-law cannot be passed at a special meeting.

WORD IS AWAITED

By the 14th Regiment From Elmira, N.Y.
The officers of the 14th Regiment are awaiting word from the Elmira, N.Y., authorities as to whether their invitation for the regiment to visit there on July 14th and 15th is still open. As the invitation had to be regretfully declined a week ago, after having been previously accepted, the 14th officers didn't know whether the Kingston rifles would be now wanted, as the Elmira people may have made other military arrangements. If the invitation is still open, the 14th will make the trip across the border, as transportation arrangements can be made all right. If it is not, the regiment will pay a visit to Niagara Falls.
