A CALL TO ACTION.

If anyone wants to see how many young girls are travelling the streets and given to foolish flirtations, he has only to take up a position of vantage any Sunday evening between seven and eight o'clock and use his eyes. When these girls, in their teens, should be at home, or in church, some place dutifully or modestly employed, they are inviting the attentions of the young men, and doing it by methods which are shockingly improper. Something is needed to warn or check these erring ones. The mothers are primarily responsible for any lapses from grace which follow. They should know where their daughters are. The women of the city generally should do more than talk and propose and resolve at conventions. An hour's active service on a Sunday evening, in detecting the misconduct of the girls and in taking practical steps to correct them, is worth more practically than a month's meditation. A woman who saw to her surprise the doings of the girls sounds the warning, and it is time that all who have a heart for moral reforms both heard and acted.

REASON FOR CAUTION.

Saturday Night does not regard the men who constituted the imperial press conference, so far as Canada is concerned, as representative men. Why not? The Montreal, Winnipeg and Toronto men "actually make the papers" and are as able as any to reflect the sentiment of Canadians on public questions. Who are they? Duff and Nicholls, of the Winnipeg Free Press, and Telegram; McDonald and Atkinson, of the Toronto Globe and Star; Sir Hugh Graham and Brierly, of the Montreal Star and Herald. Had the choice been made by the Canadian Press Association, in all probability these journalists would have been chosen, and others. Because they were not the elect or appointees of the association the more reason they should refuse to commit themselves to any given policy or line of thought. Some day when next there is a conference in Canada, and it is attended by members of the press from every province, if not every county—there may be resolutions put in the name of all who are engaged in moulding and reflecting public opinion.

PREPARING FOR BATTLE.

The closure is the most effective way of controlling and contracting debts. At a recent session of the imperial commons Mr. Asquith outlined his plans with regard to several government bills.

For the Town Planning bill he moved "closure by compartment," or closure by section, allocating two plays to the committee stage and a day to the two remaining stages of the measure. The proposition was duly discussed and the opposition fairly raved over it—and carried by a vote of 290 to 106 members.

For the Irish Land bill the premier allotted eleven days, giving eight to the committee stage, two to the report stage, and one to the third reading. There was another outburst of feeling from the opposition, but the resolution was carried by a vote of 288 to 86.

The conservative papers refer to the "guillotine resolutions," and attribute them to the desire of the government to get as much credit as possible for domestic reforms. It is assumed that there will be another general election ere long—the Lords could cause it, at once by rejecting the budget proposals—and that the government is bidding for the popular support. There may be something in this.

Mr. Asquith, the wise, the diplomatic and the astute leader, the most brilliant man of the day, is not anticipating any immediate political upheaval, however, and calmly lays his work for the next session, beginning with the disestablishment of the Welsh church.

He has his difficulties with the land taxes—which are said to be objectionable to some sixty liberal members—but he does not expect the revolution which T. P. O'Connor says would surely follow the interference of the Lords in the financial affairs of the nation.

The Ottawa correspondent of the Toronto News has discovered that there are six ships in possession of the naval militia of the United States on the lakes, that they carry fifty-three guns, and that Canada is at their mercy. How very humble we should be?

WORTHY OF RECOGNITION.

There was a misunderstanding with regard to the conditions under which the receipt writing competition was conducted, but it should not deprive the school children of the recognition which they deserve. They were not to blame because the teachers, having changed some of the terms of the contest, failed to lay the facts before the committee of school trustees and invite their approval.

The public and separate schools were represented at a meeting in the Central school when the dates were fixed (on revision), for the competition, but the committee of trustees should have been a party to the proceeding. That goes without saying, and the failure of the teachers to make the committee familiar with what they recommended shows how deficient they are in business acumen.

The contests took place on the day agreed upon, so far as the public school children are concerned, and they produced an exhibit which has been carefully preserved. The scholars did their best, and if their work goes for nothing they will be completely discouraged.

The Management Committee, it is hoped, will take the matter up, and appropriate a sum of $50 for prizes, these to be awarded on the decision of the inspector and director in writing. The samples could then be arranged, according to classes or grades, and put on exhibition in some public place.

Later, when plans have been perfected in accordance with the original intention, and for the prizes offered by Hon. Mr. Hartly and Mr. Robertson, there can be the competition between the public and separate schools. It will be the more cheerfully undertaken if the recent efforts of the scholars are in some way fittingly recognized.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The U. S. senate has decided, on the recommendation of Mr. Taft, to tax incomes and revenues. Now for the preparation! Proposing a tax and collecting it are two different things.

It makes La Presse, of Montreal, wrothy to refer to the preponderance of French who are affected by the civic scandals. But the fact remains all the same. The sinners are principally French-Canadians.

It is not proposed to resume the mothers' class in the domestic science branch of our public schools after the holidays. Why? Are all the mothers in the city satisfied with the experience of one season?

Emperor William thinks that the victories of the future will be of an industrial sort. The marvel is that he does not say the word that will end, at home, the wastefulness of money in munitions of war.

The kaiser is like the ancient clergyman who did not believe in hostility, but who felt it to be his bounden duty to admonish his people to keep their powder dry. Let us have peace, says his nibs, but let us have the army and navy at their best.

On dit that the government of Ontario, in order to carry out its plans, will liberally provide for some of the older inspectors. So it should. It is a government that boasts of doing things. Here is something it can do with infinite credit.

The dresses worn by the bride and the bride's mother and the brides present were lovely. The wedding cake, so says the Winnipeg Telegram, was a forest of lilies of the valley, and white roses.

AT SUNDAY SERVICES

HIGHLAND CADETS WENT TO ST. ANDREW'S CHURCH

And Listened to a Fine Discourse Delivered By Rev. Dr. Mackie—Some Good Advice Which Young People Should Be Guided By.

"Be men," that is my text," said Rev. Dr. Mackie, speaking to the Highland Cadets, at St. Andrew's church, Sunday morning. Dr. Mackie said that it was not his intention to preach a sermon, but rather to give a talk. The words of his text were taken from I Corinthians, 16th chapter, 13th verse: "Quit you like men." The speaker said that some people did not care to receive advice; they did not like to be told how to conduct themselves. Every person coming into the world needed advice. A person would be foolish, if he was of the opinion that he did not need advice. We should be thankful that we had so many to give us advice—friends who would take an interest in our life, and give us help in this way. We could suffer no harm in taking what we would term wisdom.

"Listen attentively, and be guided by this advice," said the speaker. "Some do not care to take advice, because of the person who gives it. The advice in the text is that of wisdom from one who was a man in every sense of the word. You might say that you want to be a man—I never came across a boy yet, but who wanted to be a man. But to be a man does not mean to be twenty-one years of age or six feet tall. An elephant or giraffe might be all that. Bigness does not make the man. Put away this idea, that you must be twenty-one years old, and big, to be a man. Be men now. That is the advice for you. What does the text mean? What is it that constitutes a man's life? There are three things which enter into everyone's life, and it depends upon the way we attend to them, whether we will be men, 1st, labor; 2nd, suffering; 3rd, fighting. Cut out one of these, and you will not be a man. Your labor as a boy is just as heavy as when you are older. You have work to do, when you are young, just the same as when you are old. You will have sufferings and fightings just the same. There is work, suffering and fighting, and what makes us men, is the way in which we meet these three things. "Some people hate work. They like to be lounging or loitering about. Show me a fellow who is like this, and I will show you a person who is not a man. An idler is not a man—the man goes out of his life. There are the duties of the home, school and apprenticeship. You can at once see the need of advice. Do what you should do as men. The rich person, too, has his work to do, and it is just as much a disgrace for him to be idle. Kings' sons and grandsons have work to do. If we are to be men, we should be careful how we bear our suffering. Some like to see boys fighting just the same as dogs, and also like cock fighting. People of this class are not men. The fighting we have to do is when we know something is wrong, bad, untrue, or ungracious. We are not men, unless we fight against these things. We must bear our own trials and battles when we are young. And why do we have all this work, suffering and fighting? What is the reason for all this? It is the divine purpose of life. God gives us life, for these three things. "Your drilling will be helpful. If you do not grow up strong in body, you will be unfit for what constitutes a manly life. You cannot pay too much attention to this part of your training. It will help the mind and body to do their best work. It will teach you to be attentive and smart. Keep self-control through life. There will be many things you do not like, but learn to do your work faithfully, patiently and silently. Control your temper, and never get angry. What a lovely world this would be if we would all take this advice. And is it not a great pity that we do not take it?"

The musical part of the service consisted of a selection from a quartette composed of Misses Knight, Tandy and Messrs. Kelso and Craig. Arthur Craig also favored with a solo. At the close the congregation sang "God Save the King."

The cadets marched to the church, and made a fine showing. Sergt. Major Keith was in charge of the corps, and Piper Fraser played them to and from the church.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

By-Law is Still in Force.

Kingston, June 30.—(To the Editor): The editorial in last night's Whig, 29th inst., intimates that the rule governing the use of water on lawns and gardens has been relaxed. Permit me to say, through your columns, that the by-law governing the use of hose water, for lawn and garden purposes, is still in force. There has been no suspension of the rule, that I am aware of, and I feel that this fact should be emphasized, so that the public may make no mistake about it.—Yours truly, T. HEWITT, Superintendent.

CURES CHILDREN'S CROUPY COLDS

At this season of cold, searching winds and changeable weather, children will catch cold, will contract croup, bronchitis and sore throat. The experienced mother knows of nothing half so good as a vigorous rubbing of neck and chest with Nerviline—rub it in well, and apply a Nerviline Porous Plaster. If the case is obstinate, give twenty drops of Nerviline in hot, sweetened water every four hours.

This treatment is simply wonderful—swollen, inflamed tissues are soothed and healed, coughing is promptly allayed, hard, strong phlegm is loosened and every trace of cold and cough disappears.

Nerviline is so safe to use, so powerful, so penetrating—makes such a good all round household remedy that for nearly fifty years thousands of bottles are used every day.

NERVILINE

Remember the name Nerviline, and refuse any substitute that a druggist may ask you to take instead of Nerviline. Large bottles 25c. each.

ATTRACTIVE HOUSE GOWN.

FOUSED BY MISS MADDEN OF THE "MIDNIGHT SONS CO." WRITTEN BY JUEL FEEBE.

Fashion advices show that heavy Venetian laces will be more fashionable than the long popular Irish sorts in the early fall, and following this dictum the illustrated dinner gown with a tunic of Venetian lace over a slip of soft messaline satin has been constructed.

A chiffon hem gives softness and grace to the tunic and the long floating chiffon scarf adds to the airy charm of the costume.
