

LUCKY MR. BROWN.

If it had not been for "Fruit-a-tives," Mr. Lemuel Brown, of Avondale, N.B., would still be living on stale bread and porridge, and suffering tortures with indigestion.

His stomach was so weak that he had to give up all kinds of meats, potatoes and other vegetables, and even deny himself the comforts of a cup of tea. Fortunately, Mr. Brown read about "Fruit-a-tives," bought a box and was so much improved by taking the tablets, that he used four boxes altogether. "I have been a great sufferer from indigestion for fifteen years. About two years ago, I read about Fruit-a-tives and concluded to give them a trial. I used nearly four boxes of "Fruit-a-tives" and they have made me feel like a new man. I can eat all kinds of hearty foods and enjoy tea and coffee." This is not a rare case, but the regular experience of everyone who uses "Fruit-a-tives" for Weak Stomach, Indigestion and Dyspepsia. Try them. 50c a box, 6 for $2.50 or trial box, 25c. At dealers or from Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

WHAT IS INSURANCE?

It is merely an iron-clad guarantee to you that in case your home burns down, you will be reimbursed and that you will suffer no monetary loss; only temporary inconvenience.

Now isn't this assurance worth a few cents a day that it would cost you for a policy fully protecting your property?

Persons sometimes carelessly and unmeaningly neglect this question of insurance by providing insufficient protection, or by allowing their insurance to lapse.

Why not take the time now to give the matter thought? Look over your policies and see when they expire.

AS OTHERS SEE US PETERBORO MAN'S IMPRESSION OF KINGSTON.

Visiting Pressman Refers to His Trip Here at the Recent Convention, and Speaks of Impressions and Residences.

F. H. Dobbin, in Peterboro Review.

Thursday and Friday of last week the members of the daily section of the Canadian Press Association met at Kingston in yearly session, and in addition to transacting the business of the meeting, were the recipients of some kind of enjoyable attentions at the hands of the press men of the city and leading citizens. The visitors were taken to inspect several local institutions, including the Kingston locomotive works, Rockwood asylum, the penitentiary and the environs of the city generally, the latter in a very enjoyable automobile excursion, which finished up at the Royal Military College. To nearly all the visitors the places visited were new and interesting, and the visitors carried away with them impressions of the fine old city, complimentary to its citizens and to the fine public spirit shown on all sides.

Kingston is referred to as "The Limestone City," and well it may. Nature has been bountiful in this respect. When the citizen sets about erecting a new building he quarries out the cellar and gets enough fine stone for the walls. Some of the modern buildings are of brick and many residences, but the older structures are all of stone. No finer architectural effect can be viewed in Canada than the groups of buildings forming Queen's College. Chaste, solid, rich and quiet, a mass of solidity, as befits a seat of learning, Queen's stands the same year after year in her suit of gray.

Buildings of stone are so durable that it is both a task and a shame to tear them down, even after the original purpose for which they were erected has ceased to be served. So many of the business buildings, while lacking the chic and spruce appearance of modern structures, still house good stores and shops. They are not old enough to be antiquies, nor young enough to be thoroughly up-to-date. One may be served with a thoroughly satisfactory meal in the British-American, and reflect that the walls and roof have seen a hundred years or by since they were piled up stone by stone. The business section of the city is admirably kept, well ordered, clean, and shows the result of civic management. The handsome parks, close to the business section, are grateful spots in which to pass a leisure hour. The public buildings are massive, and important in appearance, and will last for another century. When the heralds of civilization struck this great and glorious country, the advance was punctuated by four or five steps and the footprints are recognizable at Quebec, Montreal, Kingston and Niagara. These were all places of historical importance when the balance of the country was a wilderness.

The many fine residences, with surrounding grounds, bespeak wealth and taste. Money to cover expenditure—taste and knowledge to direct the work. Few monstrosities are on exhibition. The glaring conception of brick, with corner towers and pinnacles does not exist. Grey stone mansions, quiet in conception and designed with taste and appreciation of the fine effect in the use of stone abound. All over the province the average citizen, when he feels that the verandah of his house needs remodeling, decides to put up what he fondly terms a "Colonial." It generally takes the form of some blocks surmounted with short or long posts, or pillars, carrying the roof. To see the thing done as it should be, with the name and idea a colonial style carried out thoroughly, go to Kingston. The big stone houses with ample roof form a background—and when graced with white pillars that reach from the ground to the eaves—two, and sometimes two-and-one-half stories, the effect is massive, simple and in extreme good taste. It takes months to do it—but Kingston is wealthy. The carrying out of the idea is, no doubt, a reflection from the prevailing tone of the public buildings, and of this style of treatment the city hall is a notable and extremely satisfactory example. Facing the broad reach of the St. Lawrence, the city hall is a landmark that can be identified as the visitor nears the city in the steamer, or views the water front from Wolfe Island.

We associate with our ideas of the penitentiary all that is gloomy, forbidding and wholly retraining. Largely this is true, but in spots quite wide of the mark. Within the walls the utmost neatness prevails. Roads and walks are the despair of the municipal officers that come to view them. Smooth, hard, even, clean and durable. Labor is clean, material is at hand. Care and diligence do the rest. But the stone walls and barred windows do not look so forbidding in the bright July sunshine as on a snowy day in November. Inside the neat cells are empty, for the occupants are busy. Everybody works but father, is the rule. The iron band of authority is everywhere, but it wears a glove, only when needs must does the gloomy down. The pleasant faced and sturdy warders standing about and moving around the grounds, look like members of the Canadian contingent returned from South Africa. They are courteous, respectful and explain things—so far. Beyond the accredited line they do not go. And the visitor is respectfully restrained when he gets too inquisitive.

When the five o'clock bell rings the occupants of the cells are marshalled into line. They march into the rounds and up the stairs to the opening of the several corridors. Each one helps himself from the stands to as much bread and water as he wishes, is herded to his cell, and the warder at the end line, seeing all within the grated door closes and locks all doors along the corridor at one operation. Each cell has electric light until nine o'clock. The single bed is swung down from the wall, the bed clothing arranged, and save for the footsteps of the warder, pacing up and down, all is silence, until seven in the morning. At the back of each cell is a slit in the wall, through which the attendant can view the prisoner at any moment. Extreme neatness and cleanliness mark all the arrangements. The cells are meticulously clean. The massive steel work of the grated doors shines as if silver plated. Two books in each week are allowed from the prison library, which is well stocked and varied.

The visitors who view the prison chapels receive a surprise. There are two, one attended by those of Protestant faith, one for Catholics. Service is held each Sabbath, and all must attend. Each chapel contains a fine organ, and the music of the services is well rendered. But if the walls of the building and corridors are dull and forbidding, in the chapel all this is changed. The walls and ceilings carry a wealth of decoration that could not be duplicated anywhere in the dominion. All that ample time, good taste, artistic skill and fine color in the prison, which has been lavished on the walls and ceiling in color, design and effect, wholly the work of the prisoners.

The trustee board of any metropolitan church might well be proud to give out a contract and have it filled so satisfactorily. In the prison, the work was one that artistic ability of a very high order has been the guiding spirit in the work. The design is appropriate, the coloring harmonious, and, at intervals, are placed paintings of biblical scenes that are works of art. The man and men who gave, while incarcerated in the prison, so much of their lives and effort, have passed away, but the ensemble is a striking testimony to good work—work indeed that has served to relieve the tedium of confinement, but which might never have come forth had those who did it been of a cheerful spirit.

Power, strength, solidity and force are all emphasized in the locomotive. The railway engine is a synonym for something big. These are the things they are making at Kingston. Some places are known for nails, others for shovels, others again for ropes, but Kingston is getting a name for constructing locomotives. It is big work. It takes a big plant, with big tools and—very important—big men. The men in the police coat who were fined for striking the wrong negro, excused himself by saying, "All Coons Look Alike To Me." To the most of us the locomotives look alike, except in the difference of their business. There appears—when one is told to be as much difference in locomotives as there is in individuals, so that the works at Kingston while turning out a large number annually, make a great many different brands and kinds. Locomotives for speed, and to pull big loads. Others to pull big loads up and down grades and make time under adverse conditions. Locomotives that have the attributes of the race horse and others that typify the great big Clyde. And to do all this calls for a capable engineering staff, to design, plan and lay out each detail. The engine that pulls a train up over the N. O. and Tim, is quite a different machine to the engine doing duty on the G.T.R. Coal and water arrangements are all different. Conditions of service are so varied. Once the road ordering specifies what it wants the engineering staff has to do the rest. Then shops take hold. The plant is so thoroughly equipped, that with the exception of minor trimmings and fixtures that may be bought for less than they can be made in the works, the entire locomotive is constructed on the premises from the sheets and bars of steel and tubes brought in from abroad. Plates one inch thick are sheared, and rolled into shape, and sewn together with rivets of red hot steel by hydraulic presses and riveters. The big cranes pick up and handle the big boilers with greatest ease. Two of the cranes can pick up and carry dangling through the air a locomotive ready for the rails. The most massive forgings are handled quickly and expeditiously. On the erecting floor were six fine locomotives nearly ready for delivery. The work is so well and thoroughly done that in no instance has a locomotive been returned to the shops to be altered or anything remedied after being delivered to the owners. The extensive premises with the fine water front and appliances for taking in material make a brave show and are a scene of activity of which any Canadian city might well be proud.

See What Can Be Done. The board of trade should consult with the Canadian Northern R.R. company about locating its line through Kingston. It proposes an extension from Toronto to Port Hope, Belleville and Smith's Falls, to Ottawa, to join existing lines to Montreal and Quebec. Kingston is about the coolest summer resort in Canada. People are staying home to enjoy the glories of the town in hot weather. Just a hint. Get your coal in for the winter and help the coal men and their patient drivers.

FLASH OF LIGHTNING A SNAP SHOT BY STANLEY CADENHEAD.

He Caught It Towards Midnight on July 12th—Reflection Upon Roof of a Frontenac Street House.

The above cut is from a photograph taken by Stanley Cadenhead, 17 Alfred street, during the severe electrical storm, about 11 p.m., on Monday, July 12th. The house shown in the view, is situated on Frontenac street, between Earl and Johnson street. The picture was taken through a window, when the rain was quite heavy. A house on Albert street, just one block above where the photo was taken, was struck by lightning and the light spot shown in the cut is the reflection of a flash on roof of the house.

Made Investigation. At Cape Vincent, on Sunday, people at the wharf, including a number of Kingston people, who made the trip over on the steamer America, saw what looked to them like an overturned boat and two men hurried to the scene in a gasoline launch. When they discovered that it was a piece of "floating island." It was feared that someone had been upset.

Off For Quebec. One hundred and fifty people left Tuesday afternoon, on the annual excursion from this city, to St. Anne de Beaupre, conducted by the C.P.R. The train, which was well equipped in every respect, left the K. & P. railway station at 4:30 o'clock.

CORRIGAN'S.

WHAT IT SIGNIFIED.

That Locomotive Works Will Close Down.

Citizens on their way down street halted rather suddenly when they saw the different shop windows large signs bearing the words, "Locomotive Works Will Close Down." Visions of hundreds of men thrown out of employment, the loss of thousands of dollars to tradespeople, and many other things, loomed up in front of them, but, on reading a little further, they were relieved of their fears by noting that the works would only close down for July 24th, the date of the third annual picnic of the employees, at Lake Ontario Park.

This event is always noted as being one of the best picnics of the season, and this year, the men of the works promise to eclipse all former records. The chief attraction will be the two baseball games, the Victorias vs. Irishmen, and the C.L.C. vs. Napanee. There is great rivalry between the two former clubs since their memorable game a couple of weeks ago, and the fans will certainly see a rattling good one on this occasion. Napanee is determined to defeat C.L.C. on its own ground, and for this purpose it is said has imported a Toronto battery to accomplish the trick.

Water sports, foot races, dancing, baby competitions, and many other events will round out a programme which should make the picnic one well worth attending.

GOOD POSITIONS.

Going A-Begging For Want of Good Men.

There are good positions in the civil service going begging for want of men able to fill them, according to Prof. Adam Shortt, chairman of the civil service commission. The rapid expansion of the country is continually opening positions which it is hard to get men qualified to fill. The difficulty is that the salary is not high enough at first. A salary of $800 a year does not seem to appeal to young men, who can pass an examination about equal to the intermediate examination of a good university. Neither does the increase of $50 or $100 a year appeal to young men who have their imaginations fired by stories of self-made men. Still, the salaries go as high as $1,000 a year, and the service is not by any means over-run with able men. Prof. Shortt explains the reason for requiring candidates to pass in many subjects that have nothing to do with their work; an educated man, entering the civil service, with only routine work to do in his short office hours, will either turn into a fossil or go to the dogs while one who has resources in himself will go on qualifying himself for higher positions, to be ready for promotion when it comes.

HAD A GOOD OUTING.

The Thousand Island Region Was Shown Off.

The Wednesday Night Snowshoe Club, of St. James' church, ran its annual excursion to Gananoque on Tuesday evening and it was certainly a grand success. At 7:30 o'clock the steamer America pulled out with just 600 people on board and between five and one hundred were left standing on the wharf, as the steamer had her complement and could not carry any more. It was an ideal night for such an outing, and every person enjoyed it to the limit.

The steamer made a good run to Gananoque. A great many of the younger people went up to Turner's hall for a dance. The steamer then went for a two hours' speed among the islands and Capt. Carnegie showed his passengers all the fine places. The searching was in good order, and added a great deal to the pleasure of the trip. Salisbury's orchestra supplied music for the trip and dance.

Quieted Matters. As a result of the raid made on vagrants who were causing trouble in the vicinity of the round house, yesterday, everything was reported to be very quiet in that district to-day, and no reports were sent into the police. It is stated that there were six or seven in the gang causing the trouble, and of this number the police rounded up two. It is thought that the others have left the city.
