WHITNEY AND KRUGER.

How Sir James Whitney stormed at Jackson's Point, where the politicians picketed, when he reflected upon the power question. He would not have it known that the way had been barred by his government to any man who wanted to test the municipal contracts with the power question. Yet here is the precious clause which deals with the question, and the meaning of which seems to be so clear:

"It is hereby further declared and enacted that the validity of the said contract as so varied as aforesaid shall not be called in question any ground whatever in any court, but shall be held and adjudged to be valid, and binding on all the corporations mentioned in section 3, and each and every one of them according to the terms thereof as so varied as aforesaid and shall be given effect to accordingly."

In contemplation of this act, the Montreal Standard says it reminds one of the methods of Kruger and is more in keeping with the spirit of the Stuart regime than the spirit of the twentieth century.

SEEKING A MONUMENT.

The Banner, of Dundas, where William Lyon Mackenzie was well-known, is urging that a monument to "The Little Patriot" be erected on Parliament Hill, Ottawa, remarks on the "evolution of opinion" amongst public men and political newspapers as to the rebellion of 1837:

"The term 'rebel' as applied to Mackenzie and the Reformer of 1837, is no longer a reproach but an honor. There is a well-authenticated story that, on one occasion, Mackenzie's youngest child complained to him of being called 'rebel Mackenzie's daughter.' 'Never mind my lass,' said the old patriot, 'the time will come when you will be proud of it.' The child of the story is now the wife of John King, K.C., the eminent barrister, Toronto, and the proud mother of the Hon. William Lyon Mackenzie King, M.P., a decoro of his majesty the king, and the minister of labor of Canada. The whirligig of time brings its revenges and surely this is one of them, the grandson of the 'rebel' of 1837, a trusted adviser of the king's representative in the larger part of his overseas dominions."

A MAGNIFICENT PICTURE.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier is the sole member of the Dominion government left in Ottawa. Every other cabinet minister is out of the city on various missions, and the indefatigable prime minister, who has for two years scarcely had a single day of complete rest from the cares of state, is, for the time being, acting head of all the departments of the government. Every day, says the Ottawa Free Press, he remains at his desk in the east block for long hours wrestling with the most difficult of problems, and when he leaves in the evening it is often only to continue the work of the day in his own home. He rarely takes a holiday, and when parliament is in session he is one of the most regular attendants. Hour after hour he sits in the house, forcing himself to be interested in the discussions, no matter how tiresome they may be. Other men may flee from the scene and seek solace in tobacco or amusement, but the chief stays at his post.

There is something especially magnificent these days about the solitary prime minister on the hill. He may be alone, but the people have full confidence in Sir Wilfrid's competency to handle any question that may crop up in any one of the departments of government which have been left in his immediate charge.

ABUSE OF THE OFFICIALS.

It is regrettable that the federal government cannot do anything which will receive the fair, if not the favourable, consideration of the opposition. It is assumed that the Mail speaks for the opposition, it being the chief organ of the conservative party, and it has clearly intimated that it is dissatisfied with the appointment of Mr. Grant as the chief engineer of the Transcontinental railway. And why? Mr. Grant was the assistant to Mr. Lumsden, and is, perhaps, of all the men in the service of the government, the most familiar with the engineering difficulties of to-day. Just why he was not thought of at the first, when Mr. Lumsden persisted in retiring, is not apparent. It may be that the criticism that has been offered was anticipated, and that the government desired to secure the service of one who had no connection with the work and would bring to it a mind absolutely unbiased. The government failed in this, but not because it did not seek the best talent available and for some reason without result. Usually good men are occupied and have to be allured from one engagement to another, and the Transcontinental railway is not for the time being magnetic enough.

PRINCIPALS IN SUTTON MYSTERY

That a criminal court will be called upon to pass upon the peculiar and conflicting evidence given by the young marine corps officers as to the circumstances surrounding the death of Lieut. James N. Sutton, at Annapolis, Md., if the naval court, now hearing the case, fails to return a verdict or place the responsibility for Sutton's death, is the information received by the attorneys handling the case for the Suttons. The case has progressed far enough to demonstrate two things, that the stories of the marine corps officers conflicted absolutely in essential details and that the investigation, conducted by the board of inquiry, the day after Sutton was killed, was most cursory and incomplete.

In any case there is no ground for the suspicion that wrong has been essayed or committed, and that Mr. Grant will not be equal to any crisis that may arise. He is a man of character, of worth, of experience, and he may be expected to discharge the duties of his responsible position with care and judgment. It is not complimentary to him to insinuate that he is in favour of grafting and therefore gets a $10,000 office, and yet that is what the Mail contends.

WEDDING AT QUESNEL, B.C.

A Newboro Girl Weds a Presbyterian Minister.

Quesnel, B.C., July 21.—A wedding of interest to the people of Newboro and Westport people was celebrated in the Presbyterian church here on July 14th at 2 p.m., the contracting parties being Miss Jennie G. Knapp, eldest daughter of Martin Knapp, of Newboro, and Rev. W. J. Allen, Presbyterian minister of this place. The ceremony was performed by Rev. James Turner, a pioneer Methodist preacher of British Columbia, in the presence of a large number of friends. The bride entered the church, on the arm of her uncle, W. T. Ewing, while the wedding march was played by Mrs. Bartlett. The bride looked beautiful in white net over silk. The net was tucked and trimmed with silk medallions and val. lace insertion. She also wore a long veil of tulle, richly embroidered in silk, held in place by a beautiful wreath of orange blossoms, with long trailing ends, which hung far down on the veil. She wore a spray of orange blossoms and carried a large bouquet of natural flowers, tied with satin ribbon. The bride was attended by her two cousins, Miss Gladys Ewing, as bridesmaid, was dressed in white silk and carried a pink bouquet, while Miss Queenie Ewing, who acted as flower girl and carried the ring in a basket of forget-me-nots, and maiden hair fern, was beautifully dressed in blue silk, with ribbon to match. The church was beautifully decorated with flowers and ferns.

After the ceremony the newly-married couple entered their carriage and drove to the residence of the bride's uncle, W. T. Ewing, where a sumptuous repast awaited them. The health of the bride and groom was drunk. The groom made a very fitting reply. The bride received a number of beautiful presents. One worthy of note was a beautiful silver tea service from the Ladies' Aid Society. The happy couple left next morning for a two weeks' trip to several places of interest. After their return they will reside in Quesnel till the end of August, when they will leave for the new field of labor to which Mr. Allen has been called near the coast.

DO NOT BE HUMBLED.
MORE THAN EVER

Dishonorable and disreputable pharmaceutical concerns are flooding the market with cheap and worthless preparations designed to be imitations of "Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry." Some of these are even labelled "Extract of Wild Strawberry," "Wild Strawberry Compound," etc., in the hope that the public may be deceived and led to purchase them, thinking they are getting the genuine "Dr. Fowler's."

Are you willing to risk your health—perhaps your life, to these no name, no reputation, likely dangerous, so-called Strawberry Extracts?

For sixty-five years "Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry" has been used in thousands of families for Diarrhoea, Dysentery, Colic, Cramps, Summer Complaint, Cholera Morbus, Cholera Infantum and all Bowel Complaints.

Do not let the dishonest or unscrupulous dealer humbug you into accepting one of these cheap substitutes, to the detriment of your health and gain to his pocket. Ask for "Dr. Fowler's" and insist on getting what you ask for. Manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont. Price 35 cents.
