By the way, when are the successful pupils in the entrance examination to receive their certificates? It has been the custom in Kingston to deliver them at the convenience of the examiners, sometimes long after the results have been made known.

NO DECEPTION PRACTISED. The Ottawa Citizen and the Hamilton Herald have been industriously at work for the purpose of proving—and they have to their own satisfaction at least—that the Ross rifle, which has been doing such great execution at Bisley, is not the common service Ross rifle.

Higher salaries and longer engagements are regarded by a St. Thomas elector as the things that will retard the institution of teachers. Very likely. Some places should give them a trial.

Samuel Gompers, over in England, is down on the "tipping." He needn't have waited so many years in order to discover the nuisance. It is everywhere and nowhere more offensively than in the country which Gompers claims as his own.

The Ottawa Journal protests against the sentencing of two diamond robbers to a year each in the Central Prison. A miscarriage of justice. Looks like it. Five years each would have been more like it.

THE OLD WOODEN BRIDGE.

The Reference of "Canadian Courier" to It. Passing of the old wooden bridge in older Canada is emphasized by the old covered bridge at Nanapanee.

Naturally Nanapeans are fond of the old bridge. It was there when most of the present men now living came on the scene. The poet says nothing as to the kind of timber in the bridge—which was probably oak; for that was the age of the hardwoods in Ontario, even in the land of the pine. It was built in the woods. The timbers would be cut within twenty rods of the road where the bridge crossed the river.

"But still 'tis sad to part with one Who has so long withstood The blasts of storm, the heat of sun, And foaming, raging flood."

The timbers of the wooden bridge at Nanapanee bridge, the sound, and sold about trees than about anything else in the wide world. They were enemies of trees—because the trees were in the way. In those days no man was able to sell the timber which now no man's money is able to buy.
