ALMOST LOST LIFE
IN ATTEMPTING TO SAVE DROWNING LAD.

Dr. "Harry" Hunter of Kingston, Was Recovered Just in Time by Mounted Police at Brooklyn, N.Y.—The Boy Met His Death.
 Dr. "Harry" Hunter, a son of Geo. Hunter, Justice of the Peace, almost lost his life, in an attempt to save a drowning lad, at Brooklyn, N.Y. The New York World tells the story under a big heading, and gives credit where it is due. The lad lost his life, but Dr. Hunter did all that was in his power to do, to make a rescue.
 Dr. Hunter is attached to the Norwegian hospital, and nearby the hospital there is a swimming pond, used by the youngsters. Little "Jimmie" Griffin, of Brooklyn, was in swimming with a number of other boys, when he was overtaken with cramps. He called for help, but not one person from the crowd assembled on the shore, went to his rescue. A call was then sent to the Norwegian Hospital and Dr. Hunter was soon on the scene. He did not wait to remove his clothing, he jumped into the water, and made for the boy, who was very difficult to get near the lad, however as his clothing held him down, but just as he had got close to the boy, his feet became fast in the mud, and he fell with his face downwards. The little boy then disappeared. By this time mounted policemen had arrived upon the scene, and they immediately went to Dr. Hunter's rescue. By some good work, they soon had him over the shore, and after working over him about half an hour, he fully recovered. The policemen just came to his assistance in the nick of time. A search was made for the boy's body, and it was recovered inside of two hours.
 Dr. Hunter is a popular young Kingstonian, and just returned to Brooklyn last week, after spending a month with his parents here.

PRETTY HOUSE WEDDING.

The Marriage of Miss Carrie Reid and Roy McLeod.
 A very pretty house wedding occurred Tuesday morning, at the home of D. A. Shaw, Barrie Street, when Miss Carrie Reid, youngest daughter of Mrs. Wm. Reid and Mr. Roy McLeod, son of W. H. McLeod, of Toronto, were married. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. A. Waddell, B. A., acting pastor of Brock Street Methodist Church, in the presence of only the immediate relatives. Miss Jessie Reid played Gohengrin's wedding march, as the bride, leaning on the arm of her brother-in-law, D. A. Shaw, entered the drawing room. She looked winsome in her dainty dress of cream silk, over tulle and silk, and carried a bouquet of white roses. The couple were attended by Little Miss Vera Shaw, niece of the bride who made a charming flower girl. After the ceremony the company partook of a sumptuous wedding breakfast, after which the happy couple drove to the outer station, and left for their future home in the Queen City.

The groom's gift to the bride was a pearl ring, to the maid, a pearl pin, and to the flower girl a ring. The bride's going away gown was made of French silk, trimmed with ebony lace, and large buttons, with ebony lace and large buttons, with hat of straw colored mohair trimmed with brown silk velvet and silk flowers to match which was very much admired. The bride received many useful presents, including a handsome reading lamp, the gift of the staff of the Ontario Powder Company, where she was employed as stenographer. The best wishes of a large circle of friends will follow the young couple in their new life.

THREE MONTHS IN JAIL.

Woman Was Found Guilty on Vagrancy Charge.
 In the police court this morning, Margaret Catfield was sentenced by the magistrate for three months in the county jail, when found guilty on a charge of vagrancy. In police court yesterday, she was remanded on bail.

A witness who was called, told about her acting disorderly at night in the company of young men and evidence was also given showing that she had been ordered home off the street, late at night, by the police. She was charged with being a night walker, a wanderer who could not give a satisfactory account of herself. The accused admitted being in the company of several young men, the night she was placed under arrest, but claimed it had all been a scheme to have her arrested. She had never been in trouble before, and pleaded hard for a chance. One night she was ordered home by the police, by she had been sitting up with a woman, whose husband was away, and who did not care to be alone.

The magistrate told the accused that he would have to find her guilty. She appeared to be a public nuisance, and the public would be protected. He would thus have to send her to jail.

The old man named McDonald, who was in a home, but who created a disturbance, and had to be taken in charge was given a chance to turn. He had a wife and family, and the magistrate said that arrangements would be made so that he could leave the home at certain times to see his people.

Puzzle For The Policeman.

Woman's Life.
 An amusing adventure happened on one occasion to Clifford, when he was conducting a series of services in Birmingham. Arriving a few minutes before the commencement the doctor was refused admission by the policeman at the door.
 "I want to get in," said Dr. Clifford.
 "Are you a seat-holder?" asked the official.
 "No, I am not."
 "Then you can't go in."
 "I think," remarked the famous passive resister, "that there will be room for me in the pulpit."
 "I am not so sure of it," retorted the other.
 "But I am Dr. Clifford, and I am due to preach in another minute and a-half."
 "Oh, are you?" said the incredulous policeman. "I have let in two Dr. Cliffords already."

PRESERVES HER BEAUTY.

Enforcement of Building Laws Brings Good Results.
 Paris, Aug. 3.—The agitation for the preservation of the beauty of Paris and for the strict enforcement of the building laws is having excellent results. An instance has just occurred in which a fine prospect has been preserved from partial disfigurement in the Place de l'Etoile. Here a new hotel has just been erected and the surveyors have discovered that the building is about thirty-two inches higher than the law allows. An order has been issued to the landlord to have the building reduced to the legal height, but as he has so far refused to obey it the municipality is about to carry out the work itself at a cost of $11,000. This sum will be recovered afterward from the landlord.

Regarding Titles.

Cleveland Leader.
 "When you're in doubt as to a man's title," said General Jared A. Smith, U.S.A., "than whom there is no better authority on the subject of military courtesy, 'try him with a title higher than you think he is entitled to. If you overshoot the mark he will invariably correct you; but no matter how often you miss the mark by failing to extend to him the courtesy of the title which is his own, he will never fail to answer, thus offsetting your bad manners by his politeness."
 "Remember that it's the height of bad manners to call your medical friends 'Doc' or even 'Doctor' unless you add the name to the title."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

A Look at the Whig Plant.
 Mountain Grove, Aug. 2.—(To the Editor): Lately I dropped into the Whig office to pay up arrears in my subscription, of which I had been reminded by a little printed slip. I had never been through the mechanical departments of a newspaper and as I had a little time at my disposal I asked the young lady clerk in the office if I might see, something of the printing of the Whig. She was very courteous and pressed a button and a young man appeared, whom she called John. She told him to show me the machines. We passed into the jobbing room, occupied by large tables and stands of type, etc. and also the linotype machines. These are wonderful evidences of human ingenuity. One thing about them in which I was greatly interested was the way in which an arm would reach down, take hold of a number of small brass matrices in just a certain way, take them up and deposit them near the top of the machine to continue on their round of helping to make the type (in metal) which soon goes into the galley to be printed. While inspecting those machines John was called to other duties so the manager of the pressroom came along and took us into the basement. Here are several presses for the newspaper and for book and general printing. All made in the United States but one, the first fast English printing press of its class. The Cox Duplex press is a wonderful machine which takes the white paper from the roll, prints it on both sides, cuts it and folds the complete newspaper ready for the reader, with the exception of the address label on the mailed editions, which is put on very rapidly with a small machine in the hands of an operator.

The visitor is sure of courteous treatment in any part of this publishing house and I am certain that if many who are careless in regard to keeping their subscription paid up could see for themselves the enormous cost of installing the plant for a publishing business and the subsequent large pay roll for expert office and mechanical help, that they would change their way and pay up regularly. I was not surprised to learn, during my visit, that members of the Canadian Press Association, then meeting in Kingston, had visited the establishment with no little interest as the model printing office (news paper and jobbing combined) of Ontario.—SUBSCRIBER.
