

Hay's Hair Health

Never Fails to Restore Gray Hair to its Natural Color and Beauty.

No matter how long it has been gray or faded. Promotes a luxuriant growth of healthy hair. Stops its falling out, and positively removes Dandruff. Keeps hair soft and glossy. Refuse all substitutes.  $\frac{3}{4}$  times as much in \$1.00 an 8oz. size. Is Not a Dye.

1 and 50c. bottles, at druggists

Send 2c for free book "The Care of the Hair."

"Patent Hair Spec. Co., Newark, N.J.

Hay's Hairline Soothes

Red, rough and chafed hands, and skin diseases. Keeps skin thin and soft. 2c. druggists.

Send 2c for free book "The Care of the Skin."

Jas. B. McLeod

ANNUAL AUGUST CASH SALE

(14th Anniversary.)

On the Carpet Floors:

Lace Curtains Reduced 20 Per Cent.

Odd Pairs Reduced 25 Per Cent.

On the Furniture Floors:

Special Sale Lawn Furniture

1 Roller Lawn Seat, with Canopy, $18, for $13.50.

1 Roller Lawn Seat, without Canopy, $13, for $9.25.

1 Jumbo Rocker, $15, for $10.50.

1 Lawn Swing, $6, for $4.50.

PHONE 90. YOURS,

T. F. Harrison Co.

We are the Kingston Agents for the Canadian Vacuum Cleaning System. Make appointments now for month of September.

Vudor Porch Shades

Will keep out the sun, wind and rain; will not warp or shrink. Can be rolled up or let down quite easily. These shades are all eight feet long in widths of:

4 feet wide, $2.50.
6 " " 3.50.
8 " " 5.00.
10 " " 6.50.

Come in and see how they work.

R. McFAUL,
Kingston
Carpet Warehouse.

It May Be Your House

Which will be the next to be destroyed or damaged by fire or lightning?

Many people neglect the protection that is afforded by an insurance policy in a reliable company. Be wise in time—don't risk it any longer. Let us explain our reliable policies and liberal terms.

Our Companies protect you against loss by lightning.

McCANN'S,
Real Estate and Insurance Exchange.

Cor. Brock and King Sts.

WOMAN DROWNED

MRS. CHAS. STEER LOST HER LIFE WHEN BOAT UPSET.

Her Husband and a Friend Had a Very Narrow Escape, and Were Rescued By Harry Stanbridge—Boat Upset When Men Changed Off at Oars.

By the upsetting of a row boat, a short distance off Point Frederick, about 3:30 o'clock on Friday afternoon, Mrs. Charles Steer, who lived near the corner of Rideau and Bay streets, was drowned, and her husband and a friend, Samuel Murray, of 498 Montreal street, had a very narrow escape, being rescued in the nick of time by "Harry" Stanbridge, a servant at the Royal Military College, who just a couple of weeks ago made a heroic rescue of a lad named McGowan, son of James McGowan, of the M.T.C., at the Cataract bridge, where the youngster had the misfortune to fall in. Search was made for Mrs. Steer's body, but it has not yet been recovered.

According to the story told by Steer and Murray the boat was upset when they were about to change off at the oars. Mrs. Steer, it appears, was sitting in the stern, Steer in the bow and Murray in the centre rowing. Steer offered to row for a time, and as the two were about to change places the boat was overturned and the three thrown into the water. The party secured the boat at Bowman's livery about three o'clock. They had no particular desire of sympathy. They have been among those of the English immigrants, who have done their best to fit in with the hard problem of settlement in Canada, and have been succeeding. The two plucky little newsboys in the family, known as "Billy" and "Freddie," have made friends by the many way they have stuck to their job. Even yesterday, when told of the loss of one who was a most kind and loving mother, their first thought was their paper route, and ran to their customers. These two lads are members of St. George's cathedral choir, while the eldest boy, aged fourteen, a worker in the cotton mill, and the other two little ones, girls, are regular attendants of the Sunday school.

The little home on Rideau street was made as attractive as possible, flowers being planted around the house, and everything appeared neat from it.

Stanbridge told Murray to keep hold of the boat and he would come to him as soon as he got Steer out, and he reached Steer just in time, as he was so fagged out he could not stand the strain much longer and would certainly have gone to a watery grave. When Steer was landed Mrs. McKenzie and Mrs. Laird commenced to work over him as he was almost in a dying condition. Stanbridge hastened out for Murray and soon had him ashore but he was unable to look after himself and required no attention. While they were working over Steer James Conway happened along with his speedy gasoline launch and he was at once asked to get a doctor as speedily as possible. He made record run to Folger's wharf and Dr. Bogart was sent for. He responded promptly and was hurried over in Mr. Conway's boat, and with the good work of the two women, and the restoratives applied by the doctor, Steer's life was saved. Drs. Angie and Duff were also on hand as soon as they could arrive and rendered assistance. As soon as he had recovered sufficiently to be removed Steer was conveyed to the general hospital in James Reid's ambulance and later to his home. At seven o'clock he had completely recovered and joined the parties searching for his wife's body.

The news of the accident travelled very fast and soon there was a score or more of small boats on the scene, when the search for the body was commenced. Mr. Conway secured grappling irons at both the police station and the yacht club and rendered able service. Several of the young men employed at Wormwith's piano works, also secured a gasoline launch and joined in the search and a party led by Sergt. Cain also lent a helping hand, but in spite of all the efforts put forth the body could not be located. Quite a large crowd of people went over to the point and watched the boats as they searched for the body. James Bevane, a well-known diver, also rendered his services.

Mr. Steer had been worked over for quite a time, before he spoke, and his first words were: "Did my wife get out all right?" "Yes, but she has gone home in a cab," said a soft voice, at his side, and the words, although not the truth, soothed him. Had he heard the truth just then, and in the condition he was in, no doubt, would have killed him. A few seconds later, a thoughtful person was heard to remark, "You had his wife was drowned." "What's that," said Steer attempting to get up on his feet, but he was soon comforted. It was not until he reached his home in the Queen Street Methodist church—Rev. S. Selby, B.A., B.D., pastor. Services at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. Sunday school at 12:15 p.m. Special music—"Love Divine All Loves Excelling," duet by Miss Hinckley and J. M. Shiglock. Mr. Sherlock will also sing "Ninety and Nine," and "He Wipes the Tear From Every Eye," in the evening. The services will be in charge of Rev. Dr. Ryckman.

Appreciate The Good Work. A Toronto lady, who has been visiting here, was so pleased with the happy contentedness of the children of the Orphans' Home, under the kind fathering and mothering of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Smeaton, that she sent them two crates of oranges for present pleasure, and gave a cheque for $50 to cover the cost of some modern appliances for the laundry, thus insuring future benefit.

Have you seen the canoes that Frank Cooke is agent for?

People are complaining that the city scavengers are not taking the trash to go into the yard, but are ringing the front door bell and asking for the refuse.

Frank Cooke's office, 346 King.

evening that he found out the true story. He was told that she had gone home ahead of him, and as she was missing, he had to ask the question. It fell to the lot of his friend, Samuel Murray, to break the sad news to him, and it was a terrible blow.

A White representative called at the Steer home, a little cottage on Rideau street, early last night, and the case, as it presented itself, was a most pitiable one. The father and husband was away searching for his wife's body, and the five small children were all in tears, neighbors attempting to console them. There are two girls and three boys, the eldest a boy of thirteen. The youngest, a girl who was to have celebrated her second birthday to-day, (Saturday), but it was indeed a sad birthday for the tot.

Mr. and Mrs. Steer came out from the old country two years ago, and took up their residence in Kingston, a servant at the Royal Military College, who just a couple of weeks ago made a heroic rescue of a lad named McGowan, son of James McGowan, of the M.T.C., at the Cataract bridge, where the youngster had the misfortune to fall in. Search was made for Mrs. Steer's body, but it has not yet been recovered.

According to the story told by Steer and Murray the boat was upset when they were about to change off at the oars. Mrs. Steer, it appears, was sitting in the stern, Steer in the bow and Murray in the centre rowing. Steer offered to row for a time, and as the two were about to change places the boat was overturned and the three thrown into the water. The party secured the boat at Bowman's livery about three o'clock.

The members of the Steer family are deserving of sympathy. They have been among those of the English immigrants, who have done their best to fit in with the hard problem of settlement in Canada, and have been succeeding. The two plucky little newsboys in the family, known as "Billy" and "Freddie," have made friends by the many way they have stuck to their job. Even yesterday, when told of the loss of one who was a most kind and loving mother, their first thought was their paper route, and ran to their customers. These two lads are members of St. George's cathedral choir, while the eldest boy, aged fourteen, a worker in the cotton mill, and the other two little ones, girls, are regular attendants of the Sunday school.

The little home on Rideau street was made as attractive as possible, flowers being planted around the house, and everything appeared neat from it.

Stanbridge told Murray to keep hold of the boat and he would come to him as soon as he got Steer out, and he reached Steer just in time, as he was so fagged out he could not stand the strain much longer and would certainly have gone to a watery grave. When Steer was landed Mrs. McKenzie and Mrs. Laird commenced to work over him as he was almost in a dying condition. Stanbridge hastened out for Murray and soon had him ashore but he was unable to look after himself and required no attention. While they were working over Steer James Conway happened along with his speedy gasoline launch and he was at once asked to get a doctor as speedily as possible. He made record run to Folger's wharf and Dr. Bogart was sent for. He responded promptly and was hurried over in Mr. Conway's boat, and with the good work of the two women, and the restoratives applied by the doctor, Steer's life was saved. Drs. Angie and Duff were also on hand as soon as they could arrive and rendered assistance. As soon as he had recovered sufficiently to be removed Steer was conveyed to the general hospital in James Reid's ambulance and later to his home. At seven o'clock he had completely recovered and joined the parties searching for his wife's body.

The news of the accident travelled very fast and soon there was a score or more of small boats on the scene, when the search for the body was commenced. Mr. Conway secured grappling irons at both the police station and the yacht club and rendered able service. Several of the young men employed at Wormwith's piano works, also secured a gasoline launch and joined in the search and a party led by Sergt. Cain also lent a helping hand, but in spite of all the efforts put forth the body could not be located. Quite a large crowd of people went over to the point and watched the boats as they searched for the body. James Bevane, a well-known diver, also rendered his services.

Mr. Steer had been worked over for quite a time, before he spoke, and his first words were: "Did my wife get out all right?" "Yes, but she has gone home in a cab," said a soft voice, at his side, and the words, although not the truth, soothed him. Had he heard the truth just then, and in the condition he was in, no doubt, would have killed him. A few seconds later, a thoughtful person was heard to remark, "You had his wife was drowned." "What's that," said Steer attempting to get up on his feet, but he was soon comforted. It was not until he reached his home in the Queen Street Methodist church—Rev. S. Selby, B.A., B.D., pastor. Services at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. Sunday school at 12:15 p.m. Special music—"Love Divine All Loves Excelling," duet by Miss Hinckley and J. M. Shiglock. Mr. Sherlock will also sing "Ninety and Nine," and "He Wipes the Tear From Every Eye," in the evening. The services will be in charge of Rev. Dr. Ryckman.

Appreciate The Good Work. A Toronto lady, who has been visiting here, was so pleased with the happy contentedness of the children of the Orphans' Home, under the kind fathering and mothering of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Smeaton, that she sent them two crates of oranges for present pleasure, and gave a cheque for $50 to cover the cost of some modern appliances for the laundry, thus insuring future benefit.

Have you seen the canoes that Frank Cooke is agent for?

People are complaining that the city scavengers are not taking the trash to go into the yard, but are ringing the front door bell and asking for the refuse.

Frank Cooke's office, 346 King.

DEATH ACCIDENTAL INQUEST INTO DEMISE OF STANLEY SHARPE.

Jury Found That Ontario Park Authorities Had Taken Ordinary Precautions to Protect Public—Sharpe's Skull Fractured

The inquest into the death of the late Stanley Warne Sharpe, who died from the effects of being hit on the head by a swing at Lake Ontario park on Wednesday evening last, opened at the police court at eight o'clock, Friday evening. Coroner Mundell presiding, and a verdict of accidental death was the result.

The following jury were empannelled to hear the evidence: A. O'Brien, foreman; A. E. Shannon, P. Burke, W. Newlands, A. McMahon, A. G. Simons, W. Timmerman, B. J. Laidlaw, John Smith, S. J. Kilpatrick, W. Cunningham and James Kelley.

After roll call at the station, the jury left to view the remains of the deceased, at the family residence, 232 Barrie street. It was a sad twelve men who went up to the sorrowing house, but it was a sadder twelve men who came back, after viewing all that remained of what, ten days ago, was one of the finest and manliest boys in the city, cut off while taking the first steps across the threshold of manhood.

When the jury came back and took their places, the coroner proceeded to take evidence. In all, ten witnesses were examined, the principal ones being Howard Toland, a chum of the deceased, and Dr. A. E. Ross, who attended the deceased.

Howard Toland was first called, and told his story in a clear, low voice, sometimes broken, when he had to refer to something Stanley had said just before the accident. The witness said that after the performance in the pavilion, Stanley Sharpe, Joseph McKee, Robert Patterson, and himself went down to get a drink, found the swing turned off and then came back to the swings. One was occupied, and they waited around until the people left it. Patterson and the witness swung on it, while the swing was being pulled by the eye-bolt.

Prof. A. K. Kirkpatrick produced a plan of the swing drawn by himself during the afternoon. He explained to the jury how the two bars went through the cross-beam, and were solid by the eye-bolt being screwed on the top. He said that the vibration might cause the nut to come off.

H. C. Nickle told of the precautions taken to make everything safe for the public. He said that on the night of the accident he secured water and a towel to bandage up Sharpe's head before he was removed to the asylum.

"I was called by telephone to Mr. Sharpe's home about one o'clock Thursday morning," said Dr. A. E. Ross. "I found Stanley in bed unconscious, with his head bandaged. I raised the bandage, examined the head, but found no indication of fracture, and decided he was suffering from shock. The next morning at nine o'clock I called and found him still unconscious. I examined him again, finding two scalp wounds on the top of the head about an inch long and an inch apart, but could find no lump or indentation. The next call I got was at 12:30 o'clock and when I arrived Stanley was when the arm broke.

Joseph McKee, another lad with the deceased, was next called and told the same story as the previous witness. "I saw the rod come down and strike Stanley on top of the head," said the witness.

Miss Eva Maxwell, an eye witness to the fatality, was next called, and said while waiting for a car some companions and herself went down to the swing and saw some boys on it. A moment after she heard a crash and looked around just in time to see Sharpe falling to the ground.

Robert Patterson, the other chum, was put in the stand and again rehearsed the events leading up to the accident. Witness said he was thrown to the ground when the swing broke and did not know anyone was hurt until Joe told him Stanley was hurt, and he went over and found him lying on the ground.

The next witness called was J. E. Jones, manager of the park. He did not see the accident, but told of the steps he took to prevent it.

"I think ordinary precautions were taken by the company," said Dr. Mundell, to the jury, "to protect the people. Extraordinary precautions were not taken and are not generally taken by anyone until some unfortunate accident occurs, and I have no doubt that steps will be taken to further protect them in future. It is to see to the evidence any trace of any negligence on the part of any one connected with the park."

The jury then retired and after ten minutes brought in the following verdict:

"We think from the evidence that the death of Stanley Sharpe was purely accidental and that ordinary precautions were taken by the park authorities and their employees to protect the public."

Should Number The Papers.

A leading educationist of the city says that the papers of candidates for the high school entrance examinations should be numbered, instead of containing the candidates' names. The number system is followed in the departmental examinations of the secondary schools. He claims that in the entrance examinations, on account of the examiners being local teachers, favoritism is possible through seeing names on the papers. Cases of this kind have occurred before. As the examination is competitive, and open to all schools, it should be held as close as possible.

Get Your Share.

This is the season when you can enjoy Wade's Ice Cream Soda to the utmost. The ice cream is made of pure cream, sugar and flavoring. The syrups are made from juices of selected fruits. The glasses carefully washed, rinsed and polished. Everything in and about the fountain is clean as itself. Wade's Drug Store.

Queen Street Methodist Church.

Sunday evening, Mr. Sherlock will sing "The Ninety and Nine" and "He Wipes the Tear From Every Eye." Miss Hinckley and Mr. Sherlock will sing "Ninety and Nine" and "He Wipes the Tear From Every Eye." Mr. Smith, the new organist, will preside at the organ.

New York Excursion, August 26th.