FATHER AND HIS SON

SHARE IN CHURCH'S ACT OF WORSHIP.

Canon Starr preaches on the Church of the House of Prayer—Rev. E. J. Etherington on Righteousness Needful For Inward Peace.

St. George's cathedral welcomed back, on Sunday, the members of the R.C.H.A. home from Petawawa—they are a much-missed part of the regular congregation at the eleven o'clock service. Shortened matins proceeded, the celebration, and at the offertory J. M. Sherlock, Toronto, sang Campion's setting to "The Ninety and Nine." His clear tenor voice has lost none of its sweetness, and his enunciation and expression seem to grow more perfect with the years. Mr. Sherlock's son, Frank, a sometime cathedral choir boy, has been back in the stalls, with other choristers, for the past few Sundays, and yesterday, was the one to whose turn it fell to take the plates after the altar had been slipped from them to the altar basin for presentation at the altar, father and son taking part in the service in one of the chief acts of the church's worship.

Canon Starr preached from the chief thought in the day's gospel, "My house shall be called the house of prayer." Our churches today, are the temples of old, for worship. Some people consider them houses of preaching, but the position of the pulpit shows this idea to be wrong. It is placed to one side, outside the chance, that the congregation may see the sanctuary, wherein is the altar, the chief place of prayer, and the priest taking part in the service, and the result is that of an inscription in a small kingdom. And to gain peace a man must have self-respect, and there can be no self-respect without righteousness, so that Huxley's advice might have been condensed to: "Be righteous." Plato, Aristotle and the best thinkers of pre-Christian times had realized the need of righteousness, but found no way of attaining it. St. Paul, in his Pharisaic days, and very much in the temper of the Anglo-Saxon who determines to attain a legal righteousness by the might of his own arm, as it were, poses the question in the epistle to the Romans. At last, worn out by the eternal conflict between the spirit and the flesh he exclaims: "Oh! wretched man that I am, who shall deliver me from the body of this death." Later by experience he reached the point, where he saw with St. John, the mystic, the religious, the solution of the vexing problems of his days of attempted legal righteousness in the person of "Jesus Christ the righteous."

Considering the weather the services at Princess street Methodist church were well attended. Rev. G. O. Tredinnick preached fertile and eloquent sermons at both services. The choir sustained their usual reputation for good music in the anthems, "Fare Not, O Land," and "Now the Day is Over." Miss Grace Mitchell took the solos in her clear, sweet voice. The male quartette, composed of Messrs. Armstrong, Mack, Pringle and Timmerman, rendered "Throw Out the Lifeline," in an exceptionally fine manner. Messrs. Armstrong and Mack delighted the congregation with the duet, "Come Unto Me." In the absence of Miss Wilder, who is taking her holidays, Mrs. Sproule ably presided at the organ.

BLIND MAN SHOT DEAD

A COWARD SHOT HIM IN THE BACK.

The Old Man Fell Dead in His Doorway—His Wife Also Shot—A Young Man Arrested on Suspicion.

Simcoe, Ont., Aug. 16.—A shocking crime was committed near the village of White, ten miles west of Simcoe, in Charlotteville township, Michael Hall, eighty-years of age, and nearly blind, was returning to his house after assisting in the evening chores at the barn, and while in the act of entering his door, was shot from behind in the darkness and fell dead on the threshold. Two more shots were fired into the prostrate body by the assailant, who fled and left behind no apparent clue to assist in his recovery. The old man was carried into the house and news of the matter was telephoned to the county police at Simcoe.

Constable Austin was sent to the scene of the crime and arrested Emory Shelly, sixteen years old, who it is said, has been quarrelling with the old man.

There is a rumor current that Mrs. Hall, wife of the murdered man, was also shot prior to the old man, and that although four shots were fired into her body, she is still alive and hopes are entertained for recovery. Shelly has been lodging in Simcoe. An inquest has been arranged by the coroner.

SALVATION ARMY CITADEL.

A Welcome Given the New Adjutant.

The new commanding officers of the Salvation Army, Adjutant Smith and Mrs. Smith, late of Newfoundland, conducted their first services at the army citadel, yesterday. In the afternoon, Rev. F. McCuning, was present and delivered an address. Although the weather was unfavorable, there were good attendances at the different services.

In the evening Mrs. (Adjutant) Smith made her first address. She spoke of the installation of Solomon in his new kingdom. He asked God to give him understanding and endow him with wisdom that he would rule justly over his people. She prayed God to give her wisdom to save men and lead them to Him. She asked both young and old to take God as their helper. God said what you are with Him I will be with you, but if you forsake Me, so will I forsake you. There was no service that gave such satisfaction as the service of God.

Adjutant Smith delivered a very impressive and forcible address. Only parents at the time of the flood, he said, and all the rest of the world perished. Jesus was deeply in earnest. If the Salvation Army officers were so earnest in their work it was because they felt they had to bear the burden of men's sins. Jesus when He said try, meant that they should fight, to go ahead and push their way through to heaven. If they wanted to go to heaven, they must strive to win the goal. They may cry Loach, Loach, but the door will be shut against them if they did not strive for His mercy. There was no harder work than bearing the sins of men and striving to bring them to God. Jesus' heart was broken on owing to the sins of the world. The late adjutant strove with all his heart to win souls for God. God strove in different ways to bring men to Him. He gave them affliction to bring men to Him. If they must strive and reach heaven, they must strive and reach heaven. They must strive and reach heaven. They must strive and reach heaven. They must strive and reach heaven.

The people in Noah's time were indifferent and God destroyed them. God closed the door against them. Men were cut down by death day by day and had to stand before Him and render an account of their works. Jesus will hear their afflictions and bring them to Him if they only asked Him. Jesus had to walk the bloody way to Calvary all alone. If they wanted to reach Jesus they must make sacrifices and take up their cross and follow Him. They must strive to bring them ruin. Workly companions would damn them. Shame their worldly companions and seek a friend in Jesus. There was a pleasure in serving God and the cross of Christ would lift them up to Him. Instructions which were listened to with intense interest.

Adjutant Smith and his wife are earnest and impressive workers. During the services the band played many creditable selections.
