DRIVE AT WHITNEY.

One clause of the Lloyd-George budget bill before the parliament of Great Britain provided that there should be no appeal from the valuation for taxation of property made by the government officials. The lord chief justice drew attention to the fact that this was in contravention of the constitution, and the government promptly amended the bill. The English radicals have more respect for great constitutional principles than some in Canada who call themselves conservatives.—Montreal Gazette.

This is unmistakably a drive at the Whitney government which, with regard to the power question, has forbidden an appeal to the courts for redress on the part of the individual or the municipality.

TAXES NOT NEEDED.

It is said, in excuse of the government, that the new corporation tax, which the U. S. congress has authorized, "is not levied because of the necessity for revenue." Well, what is its object? Publicity, regulation. The corporations must give evidence of the basis on which the tax is raised, and it enables the government, or one of its departments, to examine the records and judge whether control, monopoly or coercion is attempted. At the same time the revenue is desired. Last year there was a deficit in the national finances of nearly $100,000,000, and the revision of the tariff certainly means an increase in the receipts. Regulation may be the primary aim, but revenue is the secondary and the main design. One thinks of our council and its laundry tax. The idea is regulation, but it involves conditions that are obnoxious in their effect. The true purpose of some laws is somehow thus concealed.

A GRAND OLD MAN.

Lord Strathcona is entitled to be called "the grand old man." He is about ninety, and has just landed in Canada for another rapid run across it on business. It is seventy years since, a braveno young Scotchman, he entered upon his life's work as an employee of the Hudson's Bay company. He had the qualities for success—intelligence, industry, perseverance, persistency—and in time reached the highest position in the gift of his company.

During his residence in the North-West he saw its immense possibilities, and first came into notice as a public man when he entered parliament. Here he commanded attention by his absolute and fearless independence. There is no more vivid passage in Hamsard than that which deals with the episode in which my lord (then D. A. Smith), figured in the Pacific scandal. He was then reproached by the men who afterwards saw his virtues and placed him in the honourable position which he occupied to-day.

His retirement has been rumoured many times, but it will only come when he desires it. He has filled it as perhaps no other man can. He has the capacity for effective service, being yet, notwithstanding his advanced years, bright, alert, energetic, patriotic, the ideal man for an exalted office and requiring rare attainments. May he be long spared to give to this country the splendid services for which he has been especially equipped and to which he has been eminently devoted.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Couldn't the city suspend sidewalk making for a while and give the people a block or two of pavement—for the object lesson it would afford?

Jerome will be a candidate again, for the office of district attorney in New York. The great city cannot get along without the picturesque figure in its criminal courts.

Hamilton is giving the people, and especially the babies, pure milk. And it is not pasteurized, which adds to its value. The government commission should be heard from on this subject.

Brantford puts the concrete on certain streets by day labour, and the Warren company surfaces them with bitulithic for $1.63 per yard. Here, something our aldermen can properly consider.

Our local member is referred to as the moving spirit on the milk commission. This must be a pleasing announcement to that experienced dairyman, Mr. Dargavel, the chairman of the commission.

The Globe is catching it these days for its reference to the militia as a civil rather than a military institution. For the land's sake! If the exhibit of arms and accoutrements and uniforms and all the rest of it is not military the people have been grossly deceived.

Winnipeg without manufactures? It is credited with sending out goods, made in it, to the value of $18,983,290, in 1908. No wonder the Free Press kicks against the depreciation of the city's merits.

Since 1902 the federal government has remitted to the Manitoba government, largely on school account, $905,338.92. What has been done with the money? The question is pertinent in view of the clamour of the people for better schools.

The McNaught act, regarding bread and its weight, is a dreadful failure. What is wanted—and what the people must get eventually—is a standard loaf, one the bakers must produce or suffer the confiscation of their bread.

Flour is down—it dropped with the Minneapolis millers 25c a barrel in one day—and still the small loaf is in evidence. The benefactor of the people—the man with the desire to give the people the benefit of cheaper bread—has not yet appeared.

DR. PECK'S AFFLICTION.

Bitten By Viper; Death May Ene.

London, Aug. 25.—Dr. Herbert Peck, medical officer of health for Chesterfield, is lying in a critical condition at Ramsley Lodge, near Baslow, owing to a remarkable adventure with a viper.

The medical officer paid a professional visit to Ramsley reservoir on Thursday, taking with him two children with him for the drive. During the afternoon, being an ardent botanist, he was explaining some specimens he had found to the children, when he saw what he believed to be a common grass snake moving in some bushes.

Just as he was about to pick it up to show to the children he was alarmed to notice that it was an English viper. The reptile fastened itself to the doctor's wrist, and before he could beat it off it bit him three times.

The venom was injected into both hands, and Dr. Peck at once sucked the wounds and applied a ligature. He proceeded as quickly as he could to Ramsley Lodge, where another doctor was hastily summoned.

Dr. Peck by this time was in a state of collapse. Various remedies were applied, but his life being considered in danger, relatives and friends were summoned from Chesterfield.

SAVED BY PLAYMATE'S PLUCK

Little London Girl Badly Burned By Gas Stove.

London, Ont., Aug. 25.—While passing a gas stove the light clothing of Lila Mitchell, little daughter of Capt. John Mitchell, of No. 5 fire hall, caught fire, and the child was badly burned about the shoulder, back and arm. Only the prompt action of her little playmate, Jennie McKay, saved her life. The latter seized a sheet, and wrapped it about her, smothering the flames.

Reforms Are Following.

Some months ago a committee, appointed by the governor of New York, reported on the operation of the great exchanges of the state. The production was a moderate one, pointing out what it was not practicable to do, but showing certain weaknesses which it was advisable to remedy. The whole was seemingly weak, compared with documents in denunciation of abuses the United States public had become used to. That many a producer to suit the time it was issued, however, the stock exchange has ceased dealing in unlisted securities. The Metal Exchange, which was somewhat severely handled, altered its way of making quotations. Now the Mercantile Exchange, which has been accused of making quotations on the basis of the interests of its committee, has resolved that prices hereafter shall be based on business done. The men of quiet methods have scored.

Somebody.

Chicago Record-Herald.

Somebody comes to our house, That I'd just like to catch. He's always into mischief, He'll never get his hands off my book. He steals our morning paper, And does not leave a track. He borrows father's pencil, And does not give it back.

He leaves the screen doors open, Till the house is filled with flies, He brings mud on the carpets, He'll buy mother's shoes and sighs. He hides poor grandma's glasses, In the last place you would look. Sometimes she hunts and hunts for them, And finds them in her book.

And often, in the morning, When it's time to start for school, My cap or mitts, or books are gone, For it's Somebody's misling. To make things turn up missing, When I'm in the greatest hurry, And when I hear the school bell ringing, It's enough to make me worry.

For Somebody has been here And mislaid all our things, This Somebody, who is he? He surely can't have wings, And yet we never catch him. Nor meet him face to face, But still he's into mischief, And goes and leaves no trace.

Good For The Farmer.

Owego Times.

To the farmer, who has averaged hardly twenty cents a pound for the butter he has sold, between three and four cents a quart for his milk, and about one and one-half cents for each egg, and even to the consumer, who has paid prices much above these, it is a striking fact that the value of the farm products of the dairy cow are getting close and closer to $800,000,000, and that the eggs and poultry produced on the farm are worth as much as the cotton crop, and included, or the hay crop or the wheat crop." It is the interesting comment of Secretary Wilson in his forthcoming annual report.

After an idleness of two weeks, orders have been issued for a resumption of work at all the Lehigh Valley Coal company's collieries.

THE SIMPLE LIFE.

His Majesty Resting After Busy Social Season.

London, Aug. 25.—King Edward is enjoying a much-needed rest at Marienbad after what has probably been the busiest season he has ever known. Not only have visits from the czar and the Russian dowager added to his social duties, but he has fulfilled an unusual number of engagements in London and the provinces.

In Lancashire, Gloucester and Birmingham many of his subjects saw him for the first time since he has been king of England. At Epsom a tremendous crowd cheered his victory in the Derby race, and at Wellington and Rugby schoolboys heard him speak on the duties of citizenship. He has opened museums, reviewed artillery companies and boys' brigades, inspected hospitals and attended many dedication ceremonies.

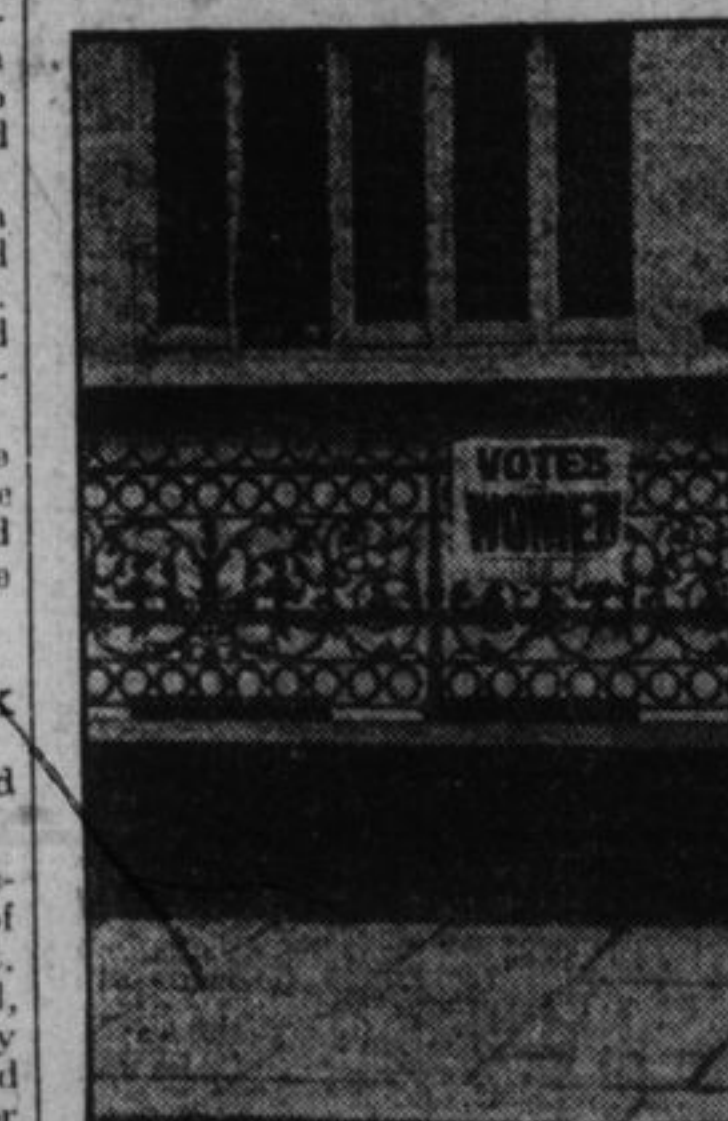

As to the state functions of the season, it is impossible to do more than hint at them. There were the usual levees, investitures, receptions and balls, and, in addition, the press delegates from the colonies and a delegation from the Turkish imperial parliament were entertained. With all this, the king did not omit visits to his friends.

He made fourteen week-end visits to country houses. He dined with many of his friends in London also, and found time to appear at the opera at Covent Garden seven times and the theatres nine times, which included the matinee performance of "His Borrowed Plumes" by Mrs. Cornwallis West. He attended two fashionable weddings and countless bridge parties, besides gala days at the horse show and other public affairs.

Now, after this whirl of business and pleasure, the king is leading the simple life at Marienbad, rising at 8 a.m. to drink the waters while walking to the golf course, after breakfast giving three hours to correspondence and state matters, then after a simple lunch more walking, a little croquet, more waters, an early dinner and to bed at eleven or thereabout.

WOMAN AGAINST WOMAN, OR THE MILITANT SUFFRAGETTE.

The above picture shows a rather extraordinary occurrence which took place recently outside the house of Augustina Birrell in London. Mr. Birrell is a member of the Asquith government, and of course, is marked out for the usual course of harassment by the suffragettes which goes with such a position. As a result of the picketing scheme which the ladies originated recently, British ministers are unable to leave their houses without being accosted by a mob of earnest seekers after female suffrage and subjected to considerable annoyance. The picture shows the entrance to Mr. Birrell's house. The little band of patiently waiting suffragettes is urging the point with Miss Birrell the minister's daughter, who tells them to go away or she will have to call the police. Meanwhile the spectacle of a great statesman's daughter talking back to a suffragette meeting was, no doubt, highly entertaining to the crowd which was sure to be in close attendance.

winning both ends of a double-headed...

There is some talk of bringing "Doc" Kearns into the Ottawa football game again this fall. While playing for Ottawa College some years ago, he was the most dashing quarterback in the game.

Jockey "Johnny" Malin is said to be very ill at Woodbine, Toronto, of quick consumption. A subscription is being taken up among race followers for him. Malin's illness is due to excessive reducing to make weight.

The injury to Russell Blackburn, the $9,000 shortstop with Providence, has proven a real misfortune to that club. He is a 300 hitter, and the best fielding shortstop in the league, but has been out of the game from injury for over a month now.

Charlie Disney and "Jack" Williams of the Ottawa football team, are back from an extended visit to the Maine coast. While away they met several of the famous American College football players. Both look in excellent shape for a stiff rugby season.

Efforts are being made by the Ottawa Football Club to get Horace Merrill, the single padding champion of Canada and one of the best all-around men in the capital, out for this season. Business has kept Merrill off the gridiron for three years. In 1906 he played middle wing for Rough Rider II and was slated for the senior team the following year, but could not find the time to practice.

BAREFOOTED; WORE VEIL.

Parricide's Dress at Recent Paris Hanging.

London, Aug. 25.—When Duchemin, the man who was guillotined in Paris the other day for murdering his mother, stepped from the prison van which brought him to the guillotine, he was barefooted, and a black veil covered his face, for the Code Napoleon provides that parricides must appear in this guise at their execution.

Before the revolution a female parricide was burned or hanged; a male parricide had his right hand cut off and then was broken alive on the wheel. His body was afterwards burned, and the ashes scattered to the winds. Under the revolution parricides were treated like other murderers, but the authors of the Code Napoleon considered the ordinary method of execution insufficient, and introduced a black veil, bare feet, and reading the sentence. They also reinstated the chopping off of the right hand, which was abolished again in 1832, when the code was revised.

A Lively Family Row.

The United Irish League and the Sinn Fein members are on terms which may be described as the north side of Friendly. There was a demonstration in West Meath the other day to celebrate the anniversary of "Myles the Slaughter." The league had a meeting on one side of a bridge and the Sinn Fein held one on the other. When the league leaders had finished cutting they turned upon their followers, marched across the bridge and promulgated right through the rival gathering. Then the fun started, and the police had a lively time for a while. Sinn Fein followers ultimately moved off, escorted by the police, and the league remained masters of the field. Thus was the anniversary of redoubtable Myles fittingly celebrated.

MONTREAL PRODUCE MARKET.

Prices Paid For Various Products.

Montreal, Aug. 24.—The market for cheese closed very strong last week with prices advanced as a result of the keen competition for the first of the August made cheese offered in the country. Higher prices were generally expected last week, but it was hoped that they would not be rushed up too fast, and interfere with the demand from Great Britain. That is exactly what occurred, and as a result the orders from the other side have stopped, and the opening markets this week are at a lower level, with a every prospect of still lower prices ruling before the end of the week unless the British trade comes on again.

At Campbellford on Tuesday morning the offerings were all sold at 11 1/2¢, but in the afternoon at Stirling 12 1/2¢ was the best price offered, and most of the buyers were out of market even at this price. Everything depends now upon the demand from Great Britain, as dealers here will not act independently, their operations last week being entirely influenced by the strong demand for export. If the demand for export is strong, the prices will be steady until we come to the point at which the importers over there are ready to buy again. The setback in prices at this period of the season is regrettable, but was only to be expected after the too sharp advance of the past week.

The receipts of cheese into Montreal continue to show a steady increase over last year, although this week's are not as much ahead of last year's as they were a week ago, the total for this week being 81,494 boxes, as compared with 78,281 boxes last year, an increase of 2,757 boxes only, whereas the previous week the increase was 13,480 boxes. The average, however, represents an increase of almost twelve per cent. over last year. This increase is likely to be maintained, as reports from all parts of the country indicate very favorable prospects for cheese-making.

The shipments during the past week were not very heavy, amounting to only 69,582 boxes, and there is no doubt that a large proportion of the cheese bought last week have been put away in cold storage for future requirements. The total shipments to date, however, amount to over one million boxes—now, and is actually 50,000 boxes more than we had shipped up to this date last year.

The market for butter is strong and prices are advancing steadily. The country markets last week and sold at as high as 23 1/2¢ was paid at Farnham in the Eastern Townships. There is an increased demand for export and the shipments last week which amounted to 5,313 packages, vouch for this fact. There is also more interest manifested in the article by the local trade in a speculative way. Butter looks a good purchase in the face of the small make going on in the country at present, and if prices are not advanced any further, there is likely to be a considerable quantity shipped to the other side, which will relieve this market of the surplus over and above the local requirements. Finest Eastern Townships creamery, Finest Eastern, is quoted at 23 1/2¢ to 23 3/4¢, with ordinary finest at 23¢ to 23 1/4¢ per lb. Dairy butter is quoted all the way from 16¢ to 19¢ per lb., according to quality.
