IS TO FLY ACROSS

GATHERING OF AERIAL NAVIGATORS IN TORONTO

American Aeronautic Society's Bi-plane "Golden Flyer" Will Make a Series of Flights Across the Lake From Scarborough Beach—May Land Near Hamilton.

Toronto, Aug. 27.—Although it will have no direct connection with the exhibition, probably the biggest event in this city during the next fortnight, not even excluding the visit of Lord Charles Bessford and other notables, will be the series of trials of the aeroplane of Glenn H. Curtiss, the American aviator, who has been winning aerial races at Rheims during the past week. The aeroplane is the property of the American Aeronautic Society, the leading spirits in which are the Wright Brothers. The aviator in this case will be Charles F. Willard, who a fortnight ago eclipsed the Wright Brothers' record for long distance flying at the Aeronautic Society's grounds near Mineola, L.I. The bi-plane has already arrived here. It is an enormous affair, over forty feet long, and has a speed capacity of sixty miles an hour, being the only bi-plane at present in America which has been successful at long distance flights. A number of prominent members of the American Aeronautic Society will be here for the experiments, and an invitation has been extended to Messrs. Baldwin and McCurdy, the Canadian aviators, who recently made some interesting experiments in aerial navigation at the Petawawa military camp. Lord Charles Bessford will also visit the exhibition while here. The management of Scarborough Beach, Toronto's big amusement park, has provided the ground for the experiment, and the "Golden Flyer" will be on exhibition there between flights. Mr. Willard, who is a quiet, unassuming individual, declares that he hopes to strike Niagara-on-the-Lake in one flight, or, if the wind is propitious, he may attempt the landing near Hamilton. Mayor Oliver is greatly interested in the flights, and he will ask the captains of the different lake craft to look out for Willard and the "Golden Flyer," and to render any assistance that may be necessary. The flight will probably take place on Saturday.

Liver and Stomach Wrong
INDIGESTION, BAD COLOR,
PALE, FATIGUED.

Those Oppressed by Palpitation and Heart Pains Will Find Interesting Facts in This Article.

The following letter is printed with the hope that it will show a clear road to health to those who suffer the pangs of indigestion and weak stomach.

"I am anxious to send the message of hope far and wide to all who are in poor health, as I was a year ago," writes Mrs. Ernest P. Gomez, from Meriden. "For years I have had a weak stomach and have experienced all the distress caused by indigestion. I may say that the heart pains, watery risings, pressure of gas from fermentation at times almost drove me wild. For a time I could scarcely eat a mouthful without causing myself endless misery. I could not sleep well, my color was fearful, dark circles under my eyes, bad dreams, etc.

"As a last hope I was persuaded to try Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Maudsley and Buttenut. As I persevered with this treatment, my appetite gradually returned, and I began to relish my meals. My strength slowly returned, the headaches and nervousness grew less severe, and at last I began to look my old self again. Dr. Hamilton's Pills cured me, and I use them occasionally still because I find a system regulator and health-supporter no medicine is equal to them.

"The same medicine that so wonderfully restored Mrs. Gomez will also cure you, 25c. per box, or five boxes for $1. Beware of substitutes. By mail from The Catarhizone Company, Kingston, Ont.

WEAK STOMACH MISERY.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Restore Despondent Sufferers to Health.

Nothing is so distressing as a weak stomach—the victims of this trouble suffer from indigestion, biliousness, dizziness, and frequent headaches. No food agrees with them—meal time is a time of misery, not a time of pleasure. Relief from this suffering can be found through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills—they never fail to make the weak stomach strong; to banish the distressing headaches, biliousness and dizziness. Mrs. C. S. Steeves, of Hillsboro, N.B., is one of the many who have been cured through the use of these pills. She says: "I suffered very much from stomach trouble and would often leave the table without tasting food. I got no relief worth speaking of till I began the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They gradually restored my health and strength and now I am as well as ever I was. I would earnestly recommend them to all those who suffer as I did."

It is the blood—bad blood—that is the cause of nine-tenths of the ailments from which both men and women suffer. The blood is the life-giving fluid of the body. When the blood is bad it is bound to poison some part of the human system and that is that rheumatism, kidney trouble, indigestion, headaches and backaches and a host of other troubles, make their appearance. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cure all these troubles—and they cure them thoroughly—simply because they fill the veins with rich, red blood. The genuine pills bearing the full name "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People" are sold by all dealers in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

ELEPHANT HUNTING.

Rev. Dr. Rainsford Tells of Experience in Africa.

Rev. W. S. Rainsford, of New York, contributes an interesting account of his travels in Africa to the World's Work.

One morning in early October, he says, surely a red-letter day, we broke camp very early and had ridden about three hours through a rather swampy country, when suddenly, without any warning, I heard a far-off shrill note blown. It sounded more like the clear note of a high organ stop than any thing else I can think of. Hoey had said to me, not five minutes before "This is the first morning we have had in 10 days that I should call a really good morning for elephant hunting. The breeze is fine and steady."

Here at last were the elephants, in their own chosen home, not harried, nor expecting to be harried, by floor settlers or Nile plateau, or hunting safari, but resting in their own lane under the shadow of the great mountain that had sheltered their herds for countless number of years. It seemed like a banquet to enter.

The shrill, carrying, but far from unmusical sound was borne to us on the cool morning breeze from a distance of quite a mile, and strange to say, whether it was that they recognized the note, or sniffed the wind tainted with the smell of their fear, our males absolutely refused to be led or driven one foot nearer. So we left them there and went forward on foot.

Crowning the next long swell of ridge, standing sleepily under the shady trees, we saw some twenty great black backs rising above the yellow grass and outlined against the sky. Somehow, as they solemnly and slowly moved forward (for they didn't stand still very long), threading their way through the rank grass, yellow as ripe wheat, they reminded me of nothing so much as the big black whales I had often rowed near to, on the Lower St. Lawrence. The herd—we now saw they numbered about 30—moved out of all cover into the wide open prairie. But they were far from suspecting any danger, and had evidently no idea of travelling. They amused themselves by tearing great wisps of their grass and throwing them over their own and their friends' shoulders, and spouting red, dusty showers on each other. The finely curving tusks often touched, and were slowly carried from side to side, or round the little black totes (calves) that, almost invisible, moved along by their mother's sides.

"I was to take the first shot, and Hoey was to fire after me. My bull shot moving his head up and down, so I determined, rather than risk the bad shot, to take it in the shoulder and hit forward. I picked my shot and fired. Hoey firing immediately afterward.

Then arose pandemonium! First they all seemed to rush together, then wheel around, facing in all directions. Then such trumpeting and noise of mingled cries! My bull stood for a moment, and, as it wheeled, I shot it again, when to my surprise, I admit, it crashed to earth with a rambling noise, and never seemed to stir again. Now he herd swayed and rocked, all huddled together. At one moment, it looked as if they would sweep forward; the next, they swayed backward. We reloaded as fast as we could, and fired again at the second bull, and it was, I think, well that we did so, for this seemed to decide them, and they rushed off.

Once more we drew up as close as we dared, not nearer than 70 or 80 yards this time, and tried to pick out the second wounded bull. But the cows overed it, and an adventurous young bull came forward by itself, evidently sent on mischief. It walked out of the herd, its trunk held high, looking very ugly indeed. Sharper-eyed than the rest, it must have been for it came perfectly straight on. I didn't want it, as its tusks were much smaller than the other two, but there was no sign of turning about in it. It now saw us plainly, and was coming right into us, when two bullets took it full in the heart and it fell in its tracks. At its fall, there was more rustling hither and thither of the bewildered and angered herd, and both Hoey and I began to wish we were in at least sparsely wooded country and not on a shelterless plain. There was nothing to do, alas, except to wait, but to be still and let them quiet down, then follow up our wounded bull.

As we anxiously waited, it came out our way, slowly heading to our right, a very big fellow, with good ivory on one side, and on the other a stumpy, heavy tusk broken off. Again, as I crawled as near as I dared and saw close above me its great black side, I could not help thinking what a game of bluff it was. But it offered me a fine broadside, and crashed down to the double shot.

Both leaders had fallen, and those elephants stood without moving 20 yards for, I should say, a quarter of an hour, while we profoundly wished they would take their leave and let us crawl away. I tried once more to get near enough to take a good photograph while Hoey came alongside, covering my advance with his rifle; but, before I got within 50 yards, the cows screamed so, and so evidently were ready to charge in a body, that I had to content myself with, I fear, an unsatisfactory "snap."

At last they began to move—very slowly indeed, and as they went one way we gladly crawled the other. Three bulls down, two of them moving not more than 50 yards from the shot—we had been fortunate indeed, and we knew it.

The long waisted Middle Ages frock bids fair to hold its popularity through the autumn, for the close-fitting models will be worn on the street until cold weather makes a heavy coat necessary.

This is a graceful adaptation of the severe Middle Ages mode, the curvaceous bodice being embroidered with small jet beads and the skirt falling in soft, shirred folds from the hips.
