DOG WAS SHOT.

And Barfield Men May Go to Law Over It.

As the result of the shooting of a dog on Barfield common on Wednesday, two prominent Barfield residents will probably go into the courts over the case.

The dog, which figured in the case, is a fine collie, and the owner keeps some cows in pasture on the common. The man accused of shooting the dog, has some sheep on the common, and his claim is that the dog has been annoying his sheep, but the owner of the dog says that this is not so.

Report from Barfield says that the dog did not die from the one shot given it, but that later, the poor animal had to be put to death, to end its suffering.

Cross The Same Size.

Many inquiries have been made concerning the cross on St. Mary's cathedral tower. The general opinion is that the cross is smaller than the former one, which was destroyed by lightning. Architect H. P. Smith, who supervised the erection of the new cross, says it is exactly the same dimensions as the old one.

Section of it being of galvanize iron, it may appear smaller, but it is not. The brightness of the sheeting at its base also has the effect of making it appear smaller than it really is.

Architect Smith had the dimensions of the old cross, and he also measured the latter in sections after its destruction.
