WHITNEY EXPLAINS

RELATIONS WITH DR. COOK AND COMMANDER PEARY.

Confirms Former's Words—Never Heard Cook's Eskimos Say
They Had Only Progressed Two
Sleeps From Land.

St. John's, Nfld., Sept. 29.—The Arctic vessel Jennie, with Henry Whitney, the New Haven big game hunter, on board, has arrived here from the Greenland coast by way of Indian Harbour, Labrador.

Mr. Whitney was questioned regarding the statements made to him by Dr. Frederick A. Cook in Greenland.
He said Cook arrived at Annotok in April of this year and declared that he had reached the North Pole a year ago. He pledged Whitney, however, not to tell Commander Peary, who was to be informed only that Cook had gone farther north than Peary's previous record, eighty-seven degrees six minutes. Continuing, Dr. Cook told Whitney that he had accomplished all he expected to, and more besides, and that he was through with the northern country. Whitney did not communicate the latter part of this statement to Commander Peary.

Continuing, Mr. Whitney said that Dr.
Cook had complained to him of Peary's taking over his house and stores, but declared that he had suffered no unfairness. Peary's steward, William Pritchard, was present when these statements were made, like Mr.
Whitney, he was pledged to secrecy by Dr. Cook. Murphy, Peary's boatswain, who was in charge of the stores, was absent at Etah on this day and did not hear Dr. Cook's communications.

There were two houses on the Greenland shore, one at Annotok holding Cook's stores, and another at Etah, holding Peary's stores. The three white men, Whitney, Murphy and Pritchard, sometimes occupied one and sometimes the other of these houses.
Murphy was in charge of both houses.
He is not able to read or write. He had written instructions from Peary, which Whitney, at Peary's request, read over to him from time to time.
These instructions were very stringent.
They directed Murphy to use Cook's stores first and Peary's afterwards.

Murphy was told in them that he was to give Dr. Cook every help in his power, and to keep the stores in the best possible condition, and another at Etah, holding Peary's stores. The
and sometimes the other of these houses.
Murphy was in charge of both houses.
had written instructions from Peary,
which Whitney, at Peary's request,
read over to him from time to time.
These instructions were very stringent.
stores first and Peary's afterwards.

When Dr. Cook and his Eskimos arrived at the house they had no sledges; being too tired to drag it over the rough ice, they had left it twenty miles from Etah. The following day some other Eskimos went out, recovered the sledge and brought it in.
On it were Dr. Cook's instruments, clothes and food.

After spending two days at Annotok, where Cook first met Whitney, Cook started for Etah. Whitney accompanied him. The two remained for three days at Etah, organizing for his trip south to Upernivik. The doctor had figured out roughly the date that he would likely get to Upernivik, and when the Dundee whalers or the Danish store ship, would reach there, and he argued that he had no time to lose. He planned originally to take two Eskimos and two sledges, but one Eskimo fell sick and this made it necessary for him to cut down the sledges he could take with him south.
He subsequently asked Whitney to take charge of the instruments with which he had made his observations at the pole. There were three cases, one containing a sextant, another an artificial horizon and the third an instrument which Mr. Whitney said he could not recall. It possibly might have been a chronometer. Cook left no written records with Whitney that Whitney is aware of. There may have been some records, however, in the other boxes in which Cook packed his clothes and his personal effects, but Cook did not tell Whitney specially that he was leaving any written records with him. Mr. Whitney was very positive about this.

After Cook departed for the south, Whitney resumed his hunting. He took over Cook's two Eskimos, Etukishuk and Arwalak, to show him the country where Cook had shot musk oxen.
This the two men did, and Whitney bagged all the oxen he could carry out on his sledges. He said he found these two Eskimos to be quite satisfactory in subordinate capacities, but he knows nothing of their value in a dash across the polar seas.

Continuing, Mr. Whitney said that last month, when Peary, on board the Roosevelt, reached Etah from the North after his winter's work there, he (Whitney) informed him of Dr.
Cook's arrival in April, adding that Cook had told him (Whitney) to tell Peary that Cook had gone beyond Peary's farthest north. Peary made no comment on this, and Whitney said he was not asked any other questions by Peary. But the next day Cook's Eskimos came to Whitney and asked him what Peary's men were trying to get them to say. Peary's men had shown the Eskimos papers and maps, but the Eskimos declared they did not understand these papers. So far as Mr. Whitney is aware, Cook's Eskimos never admitted that while with the doctor they had only progressed two
"sleeps" from land.

The day the Roosevelt was leaving Etah for home, Whitney informed Peary that Cook had entrusted to him certain belongings to bring home on the vessel that was coming up for Whitney, but as this ship had not arrived, Whitney was at a loss what to do with this property. Peary declined to permit Dr. Cook's belongings to be brought aboard the Roosevelt, and he put Whitney on his honor not to include anything belonging to Dr. Cook in his own luggage. Whitney thereupon went ashore from the Roosevelt, separated Dr. Cook's property from his own baggage, and, with the aid of Capt. Robert Bartlett, commander of the Roosevelt, whom he had asked to help him, re-packed Cook's property in boxes.

After this had been done, Whitney and Bartlett washed all Cook's property in a cave in the rocks. They built up the cave securely with stones and turf and left it and the property in charge of one of Dr. Cook's Eskimos. There was nowhere else to put Dr. Cook's property, as Peary's house had been dismantled and his stores given to the Eskimos, and all the material and stores in Cook's house at Annotok had been destroyed. It may be remarked in passing, Mr.
Whitney went on, that ten years ago Peary did with the explorer, Sverdrup, who was cruising in Smith Sound, what he has done with Cook; he refused to bring back any of Sverdrup's letters or records.

Continuing his recital, Mr. Whitney said that when the Roosevelt left Etah she proceeded south, and on meeting the Jennie Whitney transferred to this vessel.
Asked why he did not return to Etah and get Cook's property after he had joined the Jennie, Whitney replied that he and Capt. Bartlett debated that point at length. Bartlett wanted him to go back, but he was in this predicament: he had promised his chief Eskimo a Winchester rifle which was to have been brought up by the Jennie. But for some reason or other this weapon was not on board the Jennie, and before Whitney left Etah he had arranged the matter with the Eskimo by giving him an equivalent for the rifle. He explained that he did not like to go back to Etah and when asked for the rifle have to admit that it was not on board. Mr. Whitney, therefore, decided to go back hunting. In conclusion, Mr. Whitney said he regretted being dragged into this controversy. He said he had found both Dr. Cook and Commander Peary most courteous and considerate ones that he had never met any men whose conduct generally was more commendable or whose dealing with him had been more fair.

NO FAMINE AT STOCO.

Lots of Bread There, and a Bear is Near at Hand.

Stoco, Sept. 28.—Michael J. Cassidy, of the Tamworth neighborhood, was here on Sunday. The possibility of a bread famine in the village is now out of the question as the Tweed millers continue to pour in the staff of life in unstarved quantities as a result of the keen rivalry at present existing between them.

Martin Dowling, of the Larkin neighborhood, was confronted by a large black bear prowling along the Bay of Quinte railway track, on his way home from the village, one night last week. The animal was evidently not of the ferocious kind as he did not resent the intrusion of his nocturnal visitor to any greater extent than standing on his hind legs, while Mr. Dowling passed on the track a few feet from him.

Mr. McKinnon, of the vicinity of Ottawa, was here to-day in connection with his timber purchases in this locality. Miss Keenan, of Orillia, is now in charge of the Park's school, recently conducted by Miss Draper.

The iron structures for the new bridge across the Moira at this place, is now on the ground, and as the piers are already built it is expected it will soon be placed in position. John Keegan continues in the orn-cutting business. Mr. and Mrs.
Adolphe Burzynecki drove out here from Belleville on Sunday morning.
John Carl and Patrick Mulrooney left for the lumber woods north of Peterboro last week. W. J. Cassidy left for Saskatchewan and Alberta a few days ago. James Mulrooney, who has been on a visit to his father and other relatives, in this vicinity, returned to his home in Chicago on Friday.

Two Great Conventions.
Preparations are being made for two big labor conventions at Toronto. The American Federation of Labor will hold its annual convention in November, bringing 500 delegates. A big effort will be made to give the visitors a welcome. Massey Hall will be thrown open to the federation for the meetings. The premier of Ontario will tell the delegates that Ontario is glad to see them; Mayor Oliver will tell them that the Ontario capital is so glad also, and Hon. W. L. King, minister of labor, will welcome them on behalf of the government. There will be band concerts and street car rides and such other forms of entertainment as the lateness of the season will allow. Local labor men, fighting on the system of affiliations at the trades conventions in Ottawa and Quebec, see in the Toronto meeting of the American Federation a boost for the International Union idea.

The other convention is that of the Amalgamated Association of Street Railway Employees, at the Labor Temple, in October, which will bring together 300 delegates from the United States and Canada. There will be a general reception, including the customary civic welcome. The programme includes a banquet and an excursion to Niagara Falls. The convention will take up an all important question for the street railway men, a reorganized system of insurance. It is proposed to increase the monthly dues and correspondingly to increase the benefits.

Osteopathy Thoroughly Scientific.
New York Evening Journal, Sept. 9, 09.
Osteopathy is a science, and a science of the greatest importance. It cannot entirely replace medicine; it does not pretend to do so. It cannot, of course, replace or do away with surgery, and it does not pretend to do so. But osteopathy cures, has curred and will cure many diseases; it will save many lives. Osteopathy in many cases makes surgery and medicine unnecessary. There is nothing of the quack or the transcendental faith healer about the able osteopath. When he understands his profession, which implies that he understands thoroughly human anatomy, blood distribution and the distribution of the nervous force, the osteopath is a scientific man, valuable to the human race.

Osteopathy, briefly, cures disease by sending a full supply of blood to the parts of the body that are diseased by freezing nerves from pressure, due to defective structure of the skeleton, by stimulating through manipulation the activity of certain organs, notably of the liver and of the spleen. Many of the greatest living doctors of the old school recognize the great value of osteopathy, and all of the old school doctors, as they become modern and open-minded, will tell osteopathy to their aid, just as the intelligent osteopath does not hesitate to call in the surgeon or the man skilled in materia-medica.
