Carpets, Curtains Furniture,

CARPETS

We are perfectly justified saying that Kingston was never so well supplied with House Furnishings as it is at the present time. Furniture for every room in the house in artistic designs, at a moderate cost.

In selecting our Carpets for this fall we have been very careful to secure up-to-date designs and colorings. Our Brussels and Wiltons have been most successful. A great deal of the success is due to the quality of the goods.

Our new Drapery Department is making new friends every day. Fine Point Venice-Brussels, Duchess, Battenberg and Swiss Curtains are here in abundance together with Silks, Velours, French Tapestry, Monks Cloth, Velour and Serges, for Portiers and over Curtains.

BUY THAT HOME NOW

Do you realize that property values are advancing all over the country, and that every year you put off buying a home it is going to cost you that much more?

It's a fact, and that is why statistics show that one-third fewer working men own their homes now than did 10 years ago.

The big advance has not struck Kingston yet but it will soon. The man who puts it off for even a year will reduce his chances of ever owning a home.

Here's where YOU can get in.

We have some good properties to offer.

FINE FAIR AT ODESSA

THE NEW AGRICULTURAL HALL OPENED.

The Exhibits Were the Finest in Years—New Race Track Was Too Heavy For the Horses on Account of the Rains.

At Odessa on Friday, the seventy-fourth annual Ernestown exhibition was held. This is always a fine one, and draws a large crowd, but this year broke the record, in every way. From early morning till afternoon, the people came in scores from all over the country, came with their choicest live stock, best and biggest vegetables, finest samples of grain and fruit, and the housewives came with that kind of bread that cannot be equalled by any baker, except the one that uses her own little oven to cook for her own family. And besides these came the sight-seers, those who thronged around the grounds, seeing what their neighbors or friends had brought in to exhibit. Fully 2,000 people were around the grounds during the afternoon, and had a really glorious time. The weather was very threatening all afternoon and did manage to land a few showers, but this did not succeed in dampening the ardor of the sight-seers.

Many improvements were noticed over last year, the main one being the new agricultural hall, which was opened for the first time. The new building could not be better, sitting in its purpose exactly. It is a large, light, airy, well-ventilated, well-lighted room, and well provided for the showing of the different articles and all was arranged for the convenience of exhibitors and sight-seers. The management are to be complimented on their new show hall.

The different exhibits shown were fine, and far better than last year's. Especially well represented and the judges had a difficult time of it awarding the many prizes for the different grades. The exhibit of ladies' home-made work was one of the best seen at any fall fair this season, and that certainly saving a good deal of money, other things were some hand-painted china, that the owner can well be proud of. This exhibit was the recipient of more than one compliment.

The live stock was placed at different points around the grounds, and drew large numbers of spectators. All classes were well filled, horses, cows, pigs, sheep, and poultry, and all were of the finest order. The different grades of horses were excellent. Lieut. Col. Fleming, D.O.C., inspected the transport horses and commended them highly. The carriages, saddles and general purpose grades were filled with first-class animals.

Besides other things that were used for the first time was the new half-mile track. The course is well laid out, and would have been in fine condition only for the heavy rains of the last couple of days. It was very heavy, and no horse could do itself anything like justice on it. The only one attempted was the township race, won by Mr. Taylor, in two heats. It was certainly a grind to go around the track twice when it was in such a condition. A few foot races for boys were pulled off, on the track, but the going was anything but good.

Many Kingston merchants had exhibits out, including John McKay, who had a fine exhibit of furs in the building, and also had Robert Wilson's fine team of grays hitched to an attractive wagon, from which they were giving out seeds distributed to the people. This exhibit called for much notice. George Mills' Teddy Bears were on hand and created the usual amusement for the crowd. Campbell Bros. and the Siger Sewing Machine company were also represented.

In the evening a concert and dance was held in village hall, and many from the city who could not get out for the afternoon went out for the evening festivities.

GIVING UP BUSINESS

WILLIAM ADAMS IS RETIRING THIS WEEK.

Well Known Shoemaker Has Been in Business in Kingston For Forty Years—He Has Been a Resident of the City For Seventy Years—A Sketch of His Career.

One of Kingston's oldest residents, and at the same time, one of her oldest business men, is retiring, this week, in the person of William Adams, 70 Brock street, who has for forty years, been in the boot and shoe business in the old Limestone City. hale and hearty now, at the age of seventy-three, Mr. Adams is giving up his business, after the most successful career he has been a resident of the city for seventy years, and, of course, is one of the best-known men in the city.

Mr. Adams was born in the county of Longford, Ireland, and was the second of a half dozen of children when he came out to Canada, with his parents, who came direct to Kingston, and settled here. In those days, boys and girls received what little education they were able to obtain in private schools. Mr. Adams has been blessed with a good memory, and he recalls, when in a little chap, at the head of a private school, at the head of Queen street, a lady by the name of Miss Fisher, was the principal, and "Dear old school days," he remembers about ten years of age, his parents moved to Port Hope, where they stayed a few years, but afterwards came back to Kingston, and remained here the rest of their life. At Cobourg, Mr. Adams made his first start in the learning of the shoemaking trade. He followed the same line in Prescott, but after a very short stay in both these places, he returned to Kingston, and went in with Samuel Chown, with whom he stayed, and finished learning his trade. Before he had completed ten years of age, he had completed his time, and carried off high honors after learning his trade, he worked for different people, when he started up in business for himself, and his first boot and shoe store was situated on Brock street, just about opposite to the store which he is now giving up. In his long career of forty years carrying on business, he has had the two stores, something which is somewhat unusual. There are business men who have made a score or more changes, in that length of time. Mr. Adams stayed in this first store for the street to the place which is now leaving for good. Mr. Adams is giving up the business of his own accord. He has had a most successful career, but as he is getting up into years, believes that it is best to step aside and let the other fellows have a chance. He has a family of five daughters and two sons, his wife being called to the great beyond, just two years ago.

Although always busily engaged at his work, Mr. Adams, at all times, took a keen interest in the affairs of Kingston, and has served six years in the city council, as a representative from Rideau ward. He made a good address, giving all the questions before the people able thought and consideration. He dropped out of municipal affairs of his own accord, as he felt that had not the time to give to it that was necessary, and when he stepped out, the city lost a good city father.

Mr. Adams was a member of the first militia formed in this city, joining under Capt. Shaw. He was also a member of the first band formed, for Kingston, and has been a member of St. George's church.

COULD NOT SEE TRAIN

FURTHER PARTICULARS OF A SAD FATALITY.

In Which Mrs. A. E. McAdoo and Son Were Killed—Buildings Shut Out View of the Train and They Did Not Hear the Whistle Blow.

The Detroit Free Press, of Thursday morning, had the following account of the accident in which Mrs. Andrew McAdoo and her son, E. McAdoo, were killed. The accident occurred at Ypsilanti:

"Caught by a train which they could not see as they approached the crossing, Mrs. Andrew E. McAdoo and her son, E. McAdoo, were struck at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon and killed. The accident occurred at the Cross street crossing while Mr. McAdoo was driving his mother to the station, where she expected to take a train for Detroit. The train which struck them was the westbound express.

Mr. McAdoo was instantly killed, while his mother survived about 15 minutes.

At the scene of the accident the railroad crosses the street at a slight angle, and buildings shut off the view to the street, in which direction there is a slight curve in the track a few hundred feet distant.

There are gates at the crossing, and the gateman was expecting the west-bound train, but the curve shut off his view up the track, and the noise made by a wrecking outfit at work nearby, clearing up a freight wreck, which had happened in the morning, prevented him from hearing its whistle. Consequently the drivers were not down when Mr. McAdoo drove up.

He had no more than gotten fairly started across the tracks than the train, coming at a high speed, rounded the curve and was upon him in a second or two. It struck the horse, killing it instantly and carrying it and Mr. McAdoo about 150 feet up the track. Mrs. McAdoo was hurled from the rig by the force of the impact and landed 300 feet away. She was alive when picked up, but died in a few minutes.

The horse evidently saw the impending danger before the occupants of the carriage, and made a heroic effort to get across ahead of the train. The horse was being driven in the centre of the street. When struck he was at the north end of the crossing. Eye-witnesses say that when upon the crossing the horse lunged forward, in a frantic effort to cross, but the speed of the train was too great.

Mrs. McAdoo was 75 years old, and her son 45, both unmarried. Four other children of Mrs. McAdoo survive, Mrs. W. P. Litch, Mrs. Plews and Loren McAdoo, of Chicago, and Mrs. Schemmel, of Montreal. Mrs. Litch is the wife of W. P. Litch, of the Chicago American.

The McAdoo came here from Chicago about three years ago. Mr. Litch had purchased the George H. Hammond stock farm south of the city, and Mr. McAdoo and his mother were looking after that. They were prominent and frequently had house parties at their magnificent home south of the city.

A peculiar feature of the accident is that Mrs. McAdoo was to take the steam travel on the electric line. In April, 1908, she was a passenger on an electric interurban car when it couched head-on with another car at Smith's switch, three miles east of here, several persons being killed. Mrs. McAdoo was not injured, but never since that time had anyone been able to persuade her to ride on an electric interurban car.
