SUBDUING THE WOMEN.

Two of the leader writers of the London Daily News have resigned their places as a personal protest against the action of the government in forcing food upon the imprisoned suffragettes in Birmingham.

Some of those women have been making a public nuisance of themselves. They have acted like so many insane persons in their boisterous and offensive conduct in London. At Birmingham they undertook to drive the premier of the platform at a meeting where he was called to discuss the budget. They assailed the car in which he rode, climbed to the top of the buildings along the line of street and hurled missiles, even the slates from the roof, and created very disorderly scenes when the police undertook to check them.

Nine of them were sentenced to periods of imprisonment in the jail, and they there undertook to smash the furniture. Meals they refused, and when this went on for three days the Home Secretary authorized the prison doctors to pump food into their stomachs. When two of them had been served the rest surrendered.

It is against this episode, the use of the stomach pump, that the two editors protested. It would be interesting to have them prescribe the treatment which should be accorded a lot of women who are assuming the functions of men because they have nothing else to do. The women of the working classes do not demand the franchise, and are not in sympathy with the unwomanly conduct of their wealthier sisters.

MUDDLE IN MOROCCO.

The Spanish-Moroccan imbroglio is difficult to understand. The will of Isabella said that "Spain's future lay in Africa," but in what way was not made apparent. But it has been the inspiration of the capitalistic classes, which have not hesitated to involve the nation by their imprudences.

The Rif territory is part of that which the Spanish government is supposed to protect, and yet, through one of its members, or ex-members, it has had to resist demands for the recognition of a mining corporation at Melilla, which the sultan of Morocco emphatically refused.

One of the demands was that the sultan should confirm a concession made by a distinguished rebel named El Roghi, and the idea was outrageous. Then followed the murders of four alleged Christians at the mines, and the attempt of the Spanish government to enforce punishment of an exemplary character. The clash of troops that followed, the defeat of the Spaniards, their success and again their defeat, have tended to demonstrate that Spain, awakened to danger, and vigorous beyond expectations, is unequal to the conquest of Morocco.

Spain, says a contemporary, is acting in this case as the policeman, or agent, of civilization. It looks to some as if the national government had blundered into an allegiance with the freebooters, otherwise the concessions, and that some other power either France or England, or both, must come to the relief. Meanwhile the young king, Alfonso, is in great anxiety. The failure of his government will encourage the socialists and anarchists in their disorders, and it will be well for him if he does not lose the throne.

HERE'S WHOLESALE GRAFTING.

It is several years since the people of the state of Pennsylvania, were shocked with the revelations of wrong-doing at their state buildings. There was a pretence of contracting and of securing to the taxpayers full value for the money they had to pay, but there was somehow a scandalous neglect of duty on the part of the public officials and a criminal violation of all agreements on the part of the contractors.

For ornamental plaster there was substituted plaster of Paris, a cheaper and less durable material; the hot air system provided for the inlet of fresh air but not for the escape of foul air; boilers were put in of which the commissioners on building knew nothing; over eighty more windows were made than were required; Circasian walnut was substituted for mahogany in the furniture, at a loss to the people of $25,000, electricians put in the light fittings at their own price, and charged ten per cent. for superintendence, ten per cent. for storage, and ten per cent. for insurance; and in addition there were charges for pictures, for framing, for bric-a-brac which ran into the thousands.

But all this occurred some years ago, and under an administration that has been out of office long since. The grafting has been denounced in severest form, but it has been tolerated, and only now is public sentiment forcing a prosecution of the indicted ones. There may be the desire to make a complete job of it, to have a thorough purification of the public offices. There has been a great loss of time, however, and it may be impossible at this late date to secure convictions. Robbery so extensive and covering a period of years—must have been carried on by a large number of persons. The city hall must have been a hive of thieves for the time being, and they may have destroyed the evidence which must be had in order to clear up the situation.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Wouldn't it have been time enough to engage naval experts when parliament has decided to have a navy?

Thaw, through new attorneys, is still trying to have the courts say that he is sane. So far without result.

Mr. Taft went on an extended tour across the continent to soothe the party on the tariff question and failed. One term is all he can have.

Lansdowne and Asquith meeting at Balmoral castle and with the king. There is something doing. In a great constitutional struggle the monarch has his place.

Bourassa is a great critic, but he is not a constructionist, and Canada wants as its leaders men who can do more than talk. As a legislator his record is barren of result.

The C.P.R. stock holders who have the money to spare and can buy what they like of new issues of stock are constantly living in the melon patch. It's worth many millions.

Jerome, the spectacular, has spent his force. As an independent candidate for the district attorneyship of New York he has not so far aroused any excitement and thinks of retirement.

The Associated Churches of the town organized in the towns and cities. The aim is to prevent imposition and duplication of grants in the practice of benevolence. There is great need of such an organization.

"Canada, for the Canadians," is to be the motto of the government on the naval question. It will have to find, however, a man of the stamp and nerve to undertake the equipment of a yard for naval purposes.

A traveller of the Willis Fabre company, in Montreal, in fire insurance, has precipitated a legal tournament in which the constitutionality of the federal insurance act is the issue. It's a big one, and mightily expensive.

In the issue of $30,000,000 of new stock by the C.P.R. the proposal is to give it to the old stockholders at $125 per share when it is worth $188. Why should it not be put on the market for what it will bring?

The parents who want their sons and daughters to succeed in school and pass examinations had better top-excusing their absences, on petty count. There is a time for study and a time for play. And too much diversion is not good for the intellect.

The Paris postal officials, who struck themselves out of a job, have started a post office department of their own, and appear to be succeeding. In Canada no one can engage in the business of his majesty, or use in the postal clerks striking, herefore.

The new teacher glanced smilingly over the school and was delighted to see so many bright young faces among her new charges.

"Now, children," she said, "do that I may find out what you know I will test you on arithmetic. Maggie Wilkins, if I were to divide three bananas among seventeen boys what would be the result?"

"A riot," said Maggie, speaking up like a little drum major.

"Possibly," said the teacher, "but that is not what I mean. Tommy, you may take the question. Three bananas among three boys—that would be one banana apiece for each boy. Now, three bananas among seventeen boys would be what?"

"Three bananas, mim," answered Tommy.

"I know, but three into seventeen is—said the teacher.

"Three bananas would go into seventeen boys once and now over," said Tommy confidently.

It was then that the new teacher resigned.

TOWN OF GANANOQUE

UNTAGGED DOGS ARE TO BE DESTROYED.

Water Power Supply is Short—Yellow Jack Reported in Clayton—Spring and Axle Factory Starts Another Plant.

Gananoque, Oct. 9.—At St. John's church rectory on Thursday evening, Miss Flossie McAvany, youngest daughter of Mrs. William McAvany, Charles street, was united in marriage to Lorne Sherby, son of William Sherby, King street. The marriage ceremony was administered by Rev. Father John P. Kosko. The bride was attended by Miss Mary Sherby, sister of the groom, while Bernard Pelow acted as best man. After the ceremony the bridal party repaired to the home of Mrs. William Richardson, sister of the groom, where a reception was held. Mr. and Mrs. Sherby will reside in Gananoque.

The Citizens' band held another well attended assembly in Turner's assembly hall, last evening, the band orchestra furnishing music.

The Scranton Coal company's schooner Briton has cleared light for Oswego for another cargo.

Court No. 1, A.O.H., of this town, has instituted another series of such parties for this fall, a very successful one being held in their lodge rooms, Bennett's block, on Thursday evening.

On account of the press of orders, the Gananoque Spring and Axle company has decided to start their auxiliary plant on Mill street, known as the lower shop, which has not been operated for several months past. They expect to begin operations there at an early date.

The local tax collector, E. O. Webster, who, when appointed, was given as part of his duties the collection of the dog tax, has issued his mandamus to the owners of canines, to the effect that all dogs must be tagged on or before November 12th, after which date the constabulary will be authorized to destroy all dogs found on the streets untagged.

The Gananoque Water Power company has found it necessary to shut off the supply from the local factories to-day, giving only five days' power this week. The water being shut back at Lynchburg has caused a considerable diminution in the supply.

The Y.P.S. of Grace church held a very nice session under the auspices of their social committee last evening. There was an excellent programme. A prize for the best pumpkin was on condition that the prize be carried from one side of the lecture room to the other, the prize, a seventy-pound pumpkin, being won by Mrs. Griffin, Garden street, and Mrs. Cole, King street.

The Young People's Club of Christ church elected these officers: Honorary president, Rev. J. R. Sessor, president, Stanley Moore; vice-president, Miss Annie McIntyre; secretary-treasurer, Miss Maggie McKenzia; executive committee, Miss Berry, Miss Edwards, Miss Standen, R. Kidd, T. Mills, Dr. C. H. Bird.

Mayor James Donevan, who has been quite seriously ill for the past week, is again able to attend to his duties.

A report was circulated, yesterday, to the effect that several cases of yellow jack have broken out in Clayton, N.Y. The report spread like wildfire, causing the greatest consternation, as there is still the semi-daily ferry service between these two places, the rumor, however, has not as yet been officially verified. It will likely have the effect of keeping Gananoqueans to their own side of the river.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Jex, Pittsfield, Ill., old residents of the town, are renewing acquaintances here. Miss E. Bryant, Garden street, and Miss L. Ferris, Brock street, have returned from a tour with township friends. Dr. F. J. Donevan, Seely's Bay, was in town, a short time, during the past few days visiting his parents, Mayor and Mrs. James Donevan.

The Man On Watch.

The Lampman notes with satisfaction the good news conveyed by one of the town physicians that it is all right to have a hospital for consumptives right by a populated district and that damp rooms, as well as dry air, smallpox hospital beside the town institution, and gather together all the sick, the Lampman suggests.

One evening this week, the Lampman had a talk with some of the members of the town garrison, and learned that the recent commandant of the Military College was a total abstainer from liquor. The average military colonel, he says, is generally looked upon as a good whiskey drinker, an adept in speaking both the English and profane languages and as being also a social ornament. The ex-commandant, the Lampman states, was none of these. He was a strict disciplinarian, with staff as well as cadets, and of rare piety, for a military man. The former commandant, the Lampman hears, has had more experience in both military and diplomatic service than his predecessor, and is one of those real professionals who follow to the jolly officers who used to be stationed at the town of Kingston forty and fifty years ago.

The Lampman is convinced that the five-cent show houses that have been doing business in the town for the past two years have done a good deal to decrease liquor drinking and cigar ette smoking. There's no doubt, he declares, that hundreds of five-cent silver bits are going into the hands of the moving picture men, which former went into the pocket of the saloon keepers. Statistics show that last year there were less cigarettes and whiskey sold, and in Kingston the cheap shows are mainly responsible for this. The liquor men know this, and, of course, are not over pleased. According to the town police reports, there were no arrests for drunkenness during the past twelve months than in the preceding twelve months, but that, the Lampman rightly claims, is no indication that liquor drinking is increasing. It only means that a few more men were foolish enough to take a horn or two too much and fall into the hands of the peelers. On the other hand, he says that the police records may show a smaller number of drunken men before the cadi, and yet liquor-drinking may be on the increase in the home and in the club, where only the few know of it.

An article in the Whig, the other day, on appendicitis operations being criminal, reminded the Lampman of what he had been told about a doctor, who has a mania for cutting open his patients, or cutting a piece of them. It's interesting, he says, to act the part of butcher at a hospital operating table, but what of the poor patient who afterwards learns that a mistake was made. What he had no appendicitis, and did not require the knife! More than one person in Kingston, the Lampman says, has been operated upon when all he or she needed was a dose of physic, and some mourn the fact that the knife has relieved them of parts of their anatomy that the knife had no business touching.

is no intention of financial solicitation but that the work now being so aggressively and successfully carried on along religious, educational, physical and social lines, may be presented in its general scope and in the local field. The following speakers will take part: C. W. Copeland, provincial secretary; J. W. Hopkins, field secretary, provincial committee; T. F. Best, general secretary, Y.M.C.A., Hamilton; J. L. Hess, general secretary, Belleville. The local staff will take part also. Messrs. Laird and Harrison will take a special service in Zion church. Full particulars of the various churches will be found in the church notices. There will be a mass meeting in the opera house at four o'clock, at which T. F. Best will deliver an address, "A Call to Men." A large male chorus will sing, and the Y.M.C.A. orchestra lead. A silver collection will be taken to pay expenses. If the afternoon meeting receives the hearty support of the men, it is the intention of the Y.M.C.A. to bring a number of the strongest speakers in America here during the winter. John R. Matt, of New York, a man of continental reputation in religious work, will be one of the number. Dr. J. G. Shearer, Dr. R. Dudley, C. K. Calhoun, W. P. Archibald and others are all booked for the winter. The meetings will be strongly evangelical in their tone, and good results are anticipated.

Meredith's Advice To Stead.

W. T. Stead tells a characteristic story of George Meredith, which is all the more appreciable as it is told against himself.

"He was a true friend," says Mr. Stead, "not less faithful in criticism than he was cordial in his appreciation. Of the former I remember well the great day when he put me out of conceit with my first attempt to write a story. I sent him my little effort with fear and trembling. My titillation was on the Old World to the New," he wrote. "Some of the characters are interesting and well drawn. One of them especially reminds me of Cecil Rhodes. But if any of your friends tells you that he likes the story as a story don't you believe him."

The Wrong Color.

Saturday Evening Post.

Booker T. Washington, on a tour of New England, formed a habit of eating Washington pie. Washington pie is a two-layer cake with a custard filling and covered with white icing. It is served in pie-shaped pieces. Stopping at a country hotel Mr. Washington called for this delicacy. The waiter brought him something that resembled it, but the icing was chocolate instead of white. Mr. Washington looked it over, then turned to the waiter and said, "You've made a mistake. I wanted George, not Book-
