A Great Man Gone.

Hamilton Herald.

When a man had he ran away from home and travelled in foreign countries to learn the secrets of their superiority and of Japan's backwardness. Since then his whole life was devoted to the service of his country. He was the first to propose the abolition of feudalism, and with that end in view he was entrusted nearly forty years ago with a mission to obtain from the powers their consent to the necessary revision of treaties. Later on he reconstructed the government, and he is rightly regarded as the father of the existing constitution of the empire. For many years he was premier. It was he who arranged the terms of the relations between Japan and Korea, and since the Russo-Japanese war his energies have been devoted to the gigantic task of reconstruction in Korea. At once the Bismarck and the Gladstone of his country, it is doubtful if any statesman of his time accomplished more and greater things than did Prince Ito.
