

GET REWARD

Fifty Heroes to Receive Carnegie Gold.

ACTS OF BRAVERY

SOME $33,000 AND MEDALS DISTRIBUTED.

Ohio Merchant Draws $1,000—Rescues Two Men and a Woman at Risk of Own Life—Gift Pays Indebtedness For Little Store.

Pittsburg, Nov. 5.—With the regular fall meeting of the Carnegie Hero Fund Commission, came the rewarding of fifty persons throughout this country and Canada for acts of bravery and illustrious conduct during the past three months.

With the exception of one award, made to a citizen of Canada, the entire list of persons remembered by the Carnegie commission are residents of the United States, twenty-two being persons living in Ohio.

Approximately $33,000, twenty-three silver and twenty-seven bronze medals were awarded by the action of to-day's meeting of the commission. Of the fifty heroic acts approved, fourteen of the persons responsible for them met their death. In these cases next of kin received the award.

Deeds of heroism during the flood at Athens, Ohio, on March 1st, 1907, received the greater part of the attention of the commission.

The acts of courage brought to the attention of the commission included: Saving children from fast running passenger trains, rescuing from raging flood rivers, stopping unmanageable runaway horses and carrying persons from burning buildings.

Prominent among the awards and probably the most spectacular act of bravery called to the attention of the commission was the case of Halley M. Woods, a merchant of Athens, Ohio, and an expert swimmer.

During the floods of the Hoopkin river in March, 1907, Woods, unassisted, rescued two men and a woman from almost certain death when he rowed a flat-bottomed skiff through a wild running river current into the second storey window of a half-submerged house, carrying his rescued fellow-citizens to shore to safety.

In investigating the case of Woods the commission found that he was in debt in excess of $1,000 for his small merchandise store, and presented him with a check for $1,000 and a silver medal.

Another instance called to the attention of the commission was that of William F. Sayle, of North Attleboro, Mass., an eighteen-year-old boy, who, unassisted and heavily dressed, jumped into a hole in the ice broken by the weight of a boy and a girl who had been skating on the thin coating, and buoyed the couple up until assistance came. Young Sayle refused aid, himself until the couple had been taken from the ice hole and were on their way to safety.

A particularly worthy award was the case of George E. McCue, colored, of Garden City, Kan., whose heroic act in rescuing a baby from in front of a fast travelling passenger train was brought to the attention of the commission by city officials of the town where the colored hero lived.

McCue was given a bronze medal for his act and $500 for educational purposes.

In Philadelphia the commission found William M. Edwards, a longshoreman, twenty-five years old, who forgot race prejudice in his anxiety to be of service to his fellow men.

While the Arcadia, a freight steamer plying between Hamburg and Philadelphia, was being unloaded during June, 1908, an explosion in the cargo occurred. Most of the stevedores working below decks were knocked down and bruised, some being burned.

Many deserted the ship. Smoke and flames came from the hatches. Edwards volunteered to attempt the rescue of the imprisoned men.

Tying a rope to a lighter, Edwards slid into the burning hold, but could not find anything. Hearing groans, he deserted his guide rope, and after a long search located Lucius Hubbard, colored.

Bearing his unconscious and injured fellow-workman to the open hatch he had him hoisted to the deck and safety, following Hubbard with assurance there was no other person in the burning vessel.

A silver medal was given Edwards and the sum of $1,000 to be applied to the purchase of a home or such other worthy purpose as may be approved by the commission.

In each of the fifty awards a human interest story of real heroism is told. The Canadian award was to Bertha Rattenbury, Charlotetown, P.E.I., daughter of Nelson Rattenbury, wholesale grocer, who saved the life of a Miss A. Wellner, Charlotetown, last summer. Only a school girl yet, she exhibited great presence of mind in the emergency. When Miss Wellner, who was bathing and unable to swim, got beyond her depth and was in the greatest danger, Miss Rattenbury grasped the girl by the hair and brought her to shore only just in time.

CLAYTON IS DRY.

No Summer Booze at Island Gateway.

Watertown, N.Y., Nov. 5.—A thirst that can be quenched only with the waters of the St. Lawrence or from the soda water fountains awaits next season's summer man at the Thousand Islands, so far as Clayton and other of the resorts, excepting those near Alexandria Bay, are concerned.

The prohibitionists have carried Clayton, and no more "booze" can be legally sold there after October 1st. Even the drug stores, where one could perhaps get a nip, are under the ban. The only relief in sight for thirsty ones is Alexandria Bay, twelve miles away. Drinks can no longer be sold at the palatial Frontenac hotel.

Antwerp has gone dry, so has Hounsfield, while hotels only can sell liquor in Henderson, Pamela, Theresa and Lorraine. Twelve towns in the county will have no license.

Drinks in Cape Vincent can be obtained only at hotels. At Sackets Harbor everything will be dry.

THE REBELS SUCCEEDED.

Hundreds of Lives Lost on Both Sides.

New Orleans, La., Nov. 4.—A cable message from San Juan Del Sur, Nicaragua, says the revolutionists met Zelaya's army in a terrific battle, yesterday. Hundreds of lives were lost on both sides. The rebels captured Las Lagunas. This opens the way for Estrada to the capital. The fact that the message comes from San Juan Del Sur indicates that the rebels hold the west coast.

JURY REFUSED TO INDICT.

Killed Farmer Who Had Ruined His Home.

Gallatin, Mont., Nov. 5.—Believing Otis Claycomb, a young farmer, was justified in killing the man who wrecked his home, a grand jury refused to indict him for killing John Ward, a wealthy land owner, and Claycomb was given his liberty. Claycomb killed Ward, who was sixty-one years old, for taking Mrs. Claycomb from her home and six children.

Charged With Murder.

Syracuse, N.Y., Nov. 5.—Francis F. Nally, of this city, was arrested, yesterday, charged with murder in the first degree in killing John and Peter Boli in their hut near Phoenix, Oswego county, October 10th, 1903. Nally's son, William, was also arrested. The Oswego county authorities claim to have strong circumstantial evidence.

FIGHT IN A MINUTE.

BOTTLE EXPLODED BY FIGHTING GERMS.

Typhoid Bacilli and Those of Chocolate Creams Wage a Gigantic War.

London, Nov. 5.—Soon after the opening of the medical exhibition at the Horticultural Hall, Westminster, a large glass bottle, which had been betraying symptoms of uneasiness, exploded and scattered its contents, a creamy foam, over the rest of the stall of Messrs. A. H. Cox & Co.

Originally the bottle contained milk—just milk and a few million typhoid bacilli, which lived and grew happily together in this culture medium. Then, for demonstration purposes, a horde of 10,000,000 hungry monsters, known as the bacilli of Massol, were introduced into the cultured civilization of the unhappy typhoid tribes, and remorseless war was raging in a moment.

A storm in a teacup was nothing to the battle in the bottle. The milk grew turbid with the bodies of the slain, and still the Massol militia slew and devoured their victims. When a Massol bacillus had filled himself to bursting point he burst, and each of his 800,000 or 1,000,000 fragments became a hungry young Massol bacillus, which fought and ate in turn.

Finally the milk foamed up with the rapidly multiplying generations of Massolites and the bottle exploded. The demonstration arose out of Prof. Metchnikoff's assertion that the bacillus of lactic acid (the Massol bacillus), he holds, by rendering internal organs antiseptic, lengthens a man's life to an extraordinary extent, and he quotes the exceptional number of centenarians in Bulgaria, where the inhabitants live largely on soured milk, which contains the bacillus.

Massol bacilli are now presented in a novel form—that of chocolate creams, each containing 10,000,000 bacilli, and it was one of these chocolate creams which caused such havoc among the innocent typhoid microbes in the bottle.

BUDGET BILL

Passed the British House of Commons.

THE VOTE 379 TO 149

THE SCENE IN HOUSE WAS MEMORABLE ONE.

The Nationalists Refrained From Voting—The Party Favored Land Tax But Not the Liquor Taxes—The Chief Men of the Two Leading Parties Spoke.

London, Nov. 5.—The House of Commons, last night, passed the third reading of the finance bill by a vote of 379 to 149. The scene in the house was a memorable one. Seldom has there been a larger attendance of members and peers, and the diplomatic galleries were crowded to their utmost capacity.

Chancellor Lloyd George, Premier Asquith and Mr. Balfour leader of the opposition, all spoke during the evening, and there was intense excitement through the session. John Redmond, the Irish nationalist leader, announced that the members of that party would abstain from voting on the finance bill. The party, he said, strongly favored land tax, but was hostile to liquor taxes, as these were unjust to Ireland.

Mr. Asquith, in a brief speech closing the debate, said it was incumbent upon those who objected to the government's taxes to provide some alternative scheme to meet the nation's necessities. Where was this scheme, he asked. The premier added sooner or later Mr. Balfour must show his hand, and it would have to be a hand that would suit the game of tariff reformers. The government, continued the premier, might well be content to rest themselves in patience. There were only two issues before the house, the taxes proposed by the budget, the tariff reform.

The announcement of the vote showing the government's majority to be larger than expected, was greeted with prolonged ministerial cheering. The conservatives had counted upon a score of liberal abstentions, but, apparently, only two liberals joined the nationalists in not voting.

The bill will be formally passed on its first reading in the House of Lords, to-day, and the date, on the second reading, which will determine its fate, will take place November 22nd.

Smith, whose husband is a business man in Utica, was instantly killed in an automobile accident at New Hartford, a suburb of this city, and Charles Nover, of New Hartford, a victim of the same accident, is in a critical condition. The auto, which contained, besides the chauffeur, a man and two women, was travelling along the state road at New Hartford, at a rate exceeding fifty miles an hour. As it approached a bridge, the passage-way of which is considerably narrower than the highway, the driver lost control and the machine crashed into the iron supports of the bridge. The occupants were all thrown out and Mrs. Smith struck on her head, breaking her neck and fracturing her skull. The other occupants of the car received only slight injuries. Nover was crossing the bridge at the time and was struck by the machine as it rebounded from the crash. He was found underneath the wrecked car with a broken leg and serious injuries about the head. It is believed that he also suffers from internal injuries.

AWFUL CONDITION.

SEVEN IN A FAMILY SICK AND STARVED.

Montreal, Nov. 5.—A terrible case of poverty and starvation was brought to light by two police officers. In a lane off Richmond street a family was found, the mother ill and terribly emaciated, a nine-months-old infant lying dead beside her on the bed, and six other children all far gone from starvation. Two weeks ago the father, a man called Joseph Cadieux, had left for the States to take up a job he had secured, leaving his wife and seven children with forty cents to buy food. He was a heavy drinker, and it is thought he may have gone on a spree and forgotten his family as he did once before. The three rooms they lived in were found in an indescribable state of filth and neglect.

Wednesday night Detective Murphy, who arrived here during the morning, learned that a young man, well dressed and answering Ripley's description, had called at the home of William A. Latham, five miles west of the town, Tuesday noon, and was given food.

SMUGGLING CAPTURE.

$10,000 WORTH KINGSTON FURS AND DRY GOODS.

Captured Near New York—The Goods Were Smuggled by Well-to-do People—Spotters Traced the Goods From Here.

Word comes from New York that about $10,000 worth of furs and dry goods, smuggled from Kingston during August and September, have been captured en route there. These goods were known to have been purchased here by well-to-do people who summer in Kingston and the Thousand Islands.

There has been so much smuggling of goods from Kingston during the summer time that the United States customs officials decided to use every means to stop it, and during July and August spotters were engaged here watching prominent New York people who when they bought extensive quantities of goods were also secured from local spotters, and it is understood that one local party will receive a good-sized reward for information that helped materially to lead to the tracing of the goods.

Some of the goods were taken to the Thousand Islands in private yachts and thence shipped through New York state. No hurry was taken in doing this but the customs officials had their eyes open and every suspicious box or trunk was examined and finally this week the long-sought goods were discovered and there will be large fines as well as a duty to pay.
