THE SPORT REVIEW

VARSITY MAY LEAVE THE INTERCOLLEGIATE

And Join the O.H.A.—Changes in Hamilton Tiger Team—Agitation to Modify United States Rugby Rules.

The rugby season will likely extend into December. Hamilton Tigers received $3,000 from the Ottawa game.

The Montreal lacrosse club made over $3,000 last season. Rube Waddell refuses to be chased to the minor-league leagues.

An agitation has been started to modify the rules of football in the United States. A Victoria schoolboy writes: "Why is football not more popular in Hull, where there are so many matches?"

The Quebec hockey club will import players to take the places of the men who are dropping out of the game. Says Jeffrey: "There is only one man that I want to beat before I step down and out." His name is Johnson.

Baseball has just finished in the Pacific coast leagues. San Francisco won a Portland was second, and Los Angeles third.

The football critic of the Toronto Telegram thinks Queen's could give either the Ottawa or Tiger teams a good hard run.

Montreal Star—Mr. Simpson, of the Hamilton team, is all right again, but right except on top. Try as he will, B. Simpson cannot make his hair grow.

London will have an intermediate, and perhaps a junior team in the O. H. A. Kenneth Caselman has been elected president of the club, and Percy Scott manager.

"This football can't be so bad a game after all," commented old Aunt Martha. "I see where one of them great half-backs made three conversions in one afternoon."

Toronto Telegram—No. "Art" Moore, of Hamilton, is not going to quit football; he's only going to get married, which is another and not nearly so important a matter.

The fact that Montreal Shamrocks had gate receipts of $13,024 and could only show a surplus of $642 for the past season shows that professional lacrosse is growing more costly year by year.

Toronto World: Hamilton are talking of securing Chaucer Elliott as coach for the balance of the season. The Argos would like to see "Chaucer" leave Saturday for more reasons than one.

English rowing authorities seem to be of the opinion that it will be a long time before Richard Armitage loses his title as champion sculler of the world.

OUR OLDEST JOURNALIST.

Sir Mackenzie Bowell Has Been at Work For Seventy-Five Years.

The oldest working journalist in Canada is Sir Mackenzie Bowell, of The Belleville Intelligencer.

When on a western trip in 1885, during the time that he was Premier, he called at the office of The Calgary Herald to see the plant and observe the working of the Mergenthaler typesetting machines.

The Premier of Canada sets type in The Herald office. Another good story which Sir Mackenzie loves to tell is that, when Minister of Customs in the administration of Sir John A. Macdonald, he was on a horseback tour through the West.

Roughly attired for the long journey when he got to Revelstoke he sauntered leisurely into a printing office and asked for a job, telling the proprietor, who did not recognize him, that he was a tramp printer and wanted to get a little money to go east.

The boss sized him up and said rather regretfully that he had no position vacant. The Cabinet Minister thanked him and left. It was only a few hours after that the newspaper man learned of the identity of his caller.

He hunted him up, and the two had a hearty laugh over the episode.

Saskatchewan's Premier. The Premier of Saskatchewan, Hon. Walter Scott, began life as a printer's "devil" in the early days of Regina when it was a small town and its only claim to note lay in being the headquarters of the Territorial Government.

Young Scott applied for a job one day and got it. He swept the floor, pulled proofs, washed rollers and lighted fires in the office of a country weekly. He did the work faithfully and had ambition. No one in that early period, however, dreamed that one day he would be the chief adviser of His Majesty in a great Canadian province.

To find the secret of his success one must know the man. If asked to name the qualities that have led to his advancement, his friends would say that courage and stick-to-it-iveness, along with an affable disposition, are his predominant characteristics.

He is a vigorous campaigner, speaker, and never hits below the belt. He is not a man to trifle with on the platform as many an interrupter knows to his sorrow.

During the last provincial campaign he was speaking at Lumsden, where some opposition was in evidence. As Mr. Scott was talking a heckler yelled, "Basta." Quick as a flash came the retort: "Has my young friend over there got them in his pocket or in his head?"

No further interjections were heard after the laughter had subsided, and the meeting went on peacefully until a late hour.

Father Lacombe. On September 8, Rev. Father Lacombe for the twenty thousandth time celebrated High Mass in the cathedral of St. Albert, near Edmonton, Alberta.

The occasion was also the fifth anniversary of the establishment of the Gray nuns in the place. The town, the convent, schools, cathedral, and the palace of Bishop Légal were all beautifully decorated.

The cathedral was crowded at the services, and Father Lacombe, in his early pioneer days, at the luncheon which followed the services, Bishop Légal presided, and on his left were Lieutenant-Governor Bulsey, on his right Hon. C. W. Cross, Attorney-General of the province.

Among the other guests were Rev. Father Lacombe, Senator Roy, several members of the local Legislature, and others.

Rev. Father Lacombe, who is now over eighty years of age, was ordained on June 13, 1849, by the then Bishop of Montreal, and almost immediately thereafter he went to the west, where he has labored ever since.

He mastered the Cree language and published a dictionary and grammar of that language, as well as traveling thousands of miles each year, and establishing several new churches.

Needed an Engineer. A good many years ago a prominent railway contractor was in Sir William Van Horne's office at the C.P.R. headquarters at Montreal talking over some work that was in progress.

The contractor and Sir William had a pretty lively discussion, and the former suddenly said: "Who is your chief engineer?"

"Who is the chief engineer?" said Sir William.

Life A Funny Proposition.

Man comes into this world without his consent and leaves it against his will. During his stay on earth his time is spent in one continuous round of contraries and misunderstanding by the balance of our species.

In his infancy he is an angel; in his boyhood he is a devil; in his manhood he is everything from a lizard up; in his old age he is a damn fool; if he raises a family he is a chump; if he raises a small check, he is a thief, and then the law raises the devil with him; if he is a poor man he is a poor manager and has no sense; if he is rich, he is dishonest, but considered smart; if he is in politics, he is a greaser and a crook; if he is out of politics, you can't place him as he is an undesirable citizen; if he goes to church he is a hypocrite; if he stays away from church, he is a sinner and damned; if he donates to foreign missions, he does it for show; if he don't, he is stingy and a tight-wad.

When he first comes into the world, everybody wants to kiss him—before he goes out they all want to kick him. If he dies young, there was a great future before him; if he lives to a ripe old age, he is simply in the way in living to save funeral expenses. Life is a funny road, but we all like to travel it just the same.

DYSPEPSIA, HEARTBURN, GAS AND OTHER STOMACH MISERY VANISHES.

Relief in five minutes awaits every sufferer. Nothing will remain undigested or sour on your stomach if you will take a little Diapiesin occasionally.

This powerful digestive and antacid, though as harmless and pleasant as candy, will digest and prepare for assimilation into the blood all the food you can eat.

Eat what your stomach craves, without the slightest fear of indigestion or that you will be bothered with sour risings, belching, Gas on Stomach, Heartburn, Headaches on Stomach, Nausea, Bad Breath, Water Brash or a feeling like you had swallowed a lump of lead, or other disagreeable miseries. Should you be suffering now from any stomach disorder you can get relief within five minutes.

If you will get from your pharmacist a 50c. case of Pape's Diapiesin you could always go to the table with a hearty appetite, and your meals would taste good, because you would know there would be no Indigestion or Sleepless nights or Headache or Stomach misery all next day, and, besides, you would not need laxatives or liver pills to keep your stomach and bowels clean and fresh.

Pape's Diapiesin can be obtained from your druggist, and contains more than sufficient to thoroughly cure the worst case of Indigestion or Dyspepsia. There is nothing better for Gas on the Stomach or sour odors from the stomach or to cure a Stomach Headache.

You couldn't keep a handle, or more useful article in the house.
