A TRIBUTE OF VALUE.
Mr. Willison once published a life of Laurier, and in it delineated the virtues of the man in glowing language. It has not been quoted much of late because its author has been spending his energies, as editor of an opposition paper, in delineating the premier as a political failure. Another man has risen unexpectedly to do honor to Sir Wilfrid—the historian J. Castell Hopkins. He was formerly the editor of the Mail, but since withdrawing from journalism has been cultivating the judicial spirit. He has written for the National Monthly an appreciation of the premier, and these concluding lines are suggestive of the whole: "Sir Wilfrid Laurier has been a great Canadian in the sense of personality and oratory and idealism, a great politician in tact and forcefulness and knowledge of his people, a great leader in his faculty of winning and holding opposing elements in harmonious action." We hope Mr. Hopkins will not, like his contemporary, have occasion to repent of his tribute. It is not the offering of a partisan follower, but the unprejudiced opinion of one who desires to be absolutely just and fair.

VIRTUE OF THE BOYCOTT.
The three labour leaders—the President, Vice-President and Secretary of the Federation of Labour—must report at Washington on Monday, and failing to get a respite of two weeks, or an appeal to the supreme court, go to jail.

The men cannot afford to be any less determined than the women in the assertion of their views, and the suffragettes of England went to prison and refused its fare, preferring to starve than give a sign of weakness. The labour men prefer imprisonment to the abandonment of their principles.

John Mitchell, in Toronto, enunciated his position, and for the first time since the court trouble has been brewing. He defends the boycott. He says it can be used advantageously in the interest of labour. He claims it is an inalienable right that he can bestow his patronage as he pleases. No one will dispute that. The question is, Can he listen, offender against unionism? The boycott is an Irish expedient, and it is not upheld in the British courts. Mr. Mitchell gave his definition of personal liberty, the liberty for which he stood. But there are differences of opinion with regard to what true liberty is. The individual cannot do as he likes. The law prescribes what he can and cannot do. Does it interfere with the prerogatives of any one? Does it deny him the opportunities he should enjoy with other citizens? It needs elaboration, or interpretation, and by the highest court. Mr. Mitchell referred to the American war. It cost six hundred thousand lives and about three billions of dollars, and the emancipation of slaves meant what some contended was an interference with their rights.

The courage of the men who stand up for their opinions, who, in defence of a free press and free speech, will go to prison, is to be admired, but their incarceration will not settle the questions at issue. The soundest judgment of the highest courts should give them deliverance, and as soon as possible.

THE ROAD TO RUIN.
Byron E. Walker, president of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, just returned from England, says the old age pensions will relieve some people of their poverty, but that it is relief at the wrong end. His idea is that education, and suitable social conditions for the young, will lift people eventually above the awful degradation to which the present social conditions tend.

One gets an idea of the brand of heredity by reading the crimes of Thomas Jefferson Hall, a representative of the wild and woolly west, boy hand and tough, to whom the papers have devoted a very large part of their space. The lad, to get the legitimate reward of his crimes, should be hung. To let him go at large is to invite some new tragedy, since it is long since he had any idea of moral responsibility, if it ever had a place in his mental make-up. He is the by-product of the street, a fair sample of what may be expected when the human passions are allowed to go unbridled.
People will ask in affected surprise, What is to be done? There should be compulsory education, not occasionally, but to the limit of school age. There is now only a sham compliance with the law. Scores of children, in Kingston, leave the schools at the third hour. Some of them go to work, deceiving their employers by lying certificates of age. Some of them go on the streets, and, like young Hall, start on the broad road that leads to perdition.

Is society doing its whole duty to the rising generation? Not unless it is hedging the young people about with every reasonable protection; not unless it saves them from immoral and degrading shows; not unless it sees that their homes are pure and healthy; not unless it sees that there is no evasion of the law, and that education is given to every one under school age. The number of children who rove about the streets at night, who consort with evil companions, who are becoming eternally spoiled, is amazingly large. So long as this goes on the prisons and asylums will be filled with degenerates.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The Montreal Herald has it that Canada's nucleus of a navy "will cost only $7,250,000," which is quite enough, considering that its baby ap-

Typhoid fever is disappearing from Ottawa. Which is another way of saying that the people have stopped taking microbes in their, that the people avoid the water of the Ottawa when it moveth or stirreth itself.

The Montreal Star wants Canada to contribute to a British navy in which she shall have a voice. And Canada proposes, through her government, a navy in which the admiralty shall have a voice. Which is the more popular proposal?

A story from the coast—that the C.N.R. deal is really in the interest of the C.P.R., that the companies are working with a perfect understanding, and that eventually the C.P.R. company will be the owners of the whole outfit. Do you believe it?

Rev. William Steacy—a former Kingstonian—proposes to unite the Protestant denominations of the world, with headquarters at Jerusalem. He has not taken into account the grip of the Mohammedans in the holy city, and it is exceedingly tenacious.

Some people don't know when they are well off. Here's Mrs. Stetson, Christian Scientist leader, of New York, at $5,000 a year, who became too gay for her sect, and has been excommunicated. She will look around a good while for so good a job.

It will soon be in order to inter-act and save the life of every murderer, on the ground that he may be insane or imbecile. There is the danger of some of our people giving away to maudlin sentimentality, and it is not conducive to the suppression of crime.

The governor-general-in-council could not reprove Dillon, condemned murderer in Montreal, but a superior court judge did it, and now people want to know what the government is going to do about it? What is the use of the royal prerogative if any judge can act independently of it?

Goldwin Smith, retired from journalism, has come out of his retreat long enough to say that he is against a Canadian navy. "We have no enemy," he remarks. "The United States is really a protecting power." Is it, really? Another version of the story. "The Tiger and the Mouse." It's simply heavenly to sit for a night while the company sings its choruses in Italian or French. Some one has said that music has a language of its own, and that it speaks directly to the heart. Next to music without words is music with words that only two per cent. of the people can understand.

The imperial idea is all right. There are some people who regard it with uneasiness. Why? All Canada has, in the life and spirit and independence of her people, she owes to the mother of nations. What would Canada amount to without British connection? The imperial idea is something we should be proud of.

Notice To Intending Patrons.
The Eastern Dairy School will open as a creamery November 30th and continue as such during the month of December. Milk will be received three days a week, Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays, and the skim-milk will be returned to the patrons. A charge of three cents per pound of butter will be made to cover cost of manufacture.

During the months of January, February and March milk will be purchased outright as usual.

Dear Sir,
Just a line to let you know what a great benefit I have derived from your excellent course. I may say that a person in conversation with me now would never imagine that I ever stammered, and I owe my present condition wholly to your instructions. I sincerely believe that any person, no matter how badly afflicted, may be cured in a very short time if they will but follow your instructions, and I will certainly recommend to you any stammerer that I may come in contact with.

CONSTIPATION

"For over nine years I suffered with chronic constipation and during this time I had to take an injection of warm water once every 24 hours before I could have an action on my bowels. Happily I tried Cascarets, and to-day I am a well man. During the nine years before I used Cascarets I suffered untold misery with internal piles. Thanks to you, I am free from all that this morning. You can use this in behalf of suffering humanity. B. F. Fisher, Rosnoke, Ill.
