FIRE PROTECTION

Taking other countries, more advanced in that line, as standards, Canada has much to learn regarding fire prevention.

Improper building ordinance, faulty laws and lack of fire prevention are among the chief reasons given why the fire waste in this country is far in excess of that of other countries.

In the meantime the fire insurance business is growing for foresighted people will have protection.

This agency's business has been built up by the fair treatment it accords to the public and the promptness with which the companies it handles meet their fire losses.

FOR MISSIONARY WORK IN CHINA.

Bishop-Elect White, of Honan, China, Speaks of the Work Accomplished—Strong Appeal for Support in New Work Which is to Be Undertaken.

The story of missionary work in China was told in St. James' church, on Sunday evening, by Rev. William C. White, B.Sc., B.D., D.D., bishop-elect of Honan, China. The fact was emphasized that China now had her doors wide open for missionary work, and a strong appeal was made in support of the new work, which is to be taken up in the northern part of China by the church in Canada.

The speaker, in his opening remarks, referred to the time, eighteen years ago, when he had attended Bible class here and afterwards launched out into missionary work. The reports he had to give of the work were all of an encouraging nature. The early days, when missionaries had to dress the same as the Chinese, and had many obstacles thrown in the way of their work by the burning of buildings, with attacks upon the workers, were referred to. These days were all now passed; there was now an open door. All that was necessary now was to reach the hearts of the people. All classes were ready to receive the missionaries. The many good results from the school work and distribution of Bibles, were referred to. Also the growth of the church, and the character of the Christianity. We in Canada had a poor idea of the class of Chinese. They turned out to be fine Christians, and when they became Christians carried the gospel to others, and it was in this way that the greatest amount of good was accomplished. One told the other, and it was the working through them that the missionary work was carried forward. The Chinese, when converted, considered it their duty to spread the gospel, and in this way rapid progress was made. In times of temptation they were found to live true Christian lives.

In the taking up of this new work in China it was desired that the workers receive the prayers and support of the church in Canada. Tribute was paid to the work of women missionaries in the field. They had accomplished a great deal through their schools, and more were needed in the work. Men were also needed who would be good leaders and organizers—men who would instruct the Chinese how to go about their work. There were people who were in favor of missionary work, wanted to see all possible good done, but yet would not consent to have one of their family go into the work in China. This was very hard to understand. When God called a person to the work it was not right for any person to interfere with his going. The support of everyone was asked for in the work.

Bishop-Elect White also preached in St. George's cathedral in the morning.

STRUCK HER IN FACE.
A Drunken Husband Abused Wife in Store.

Complaint was made, to-day, about the brutal conduct of a Kingstonian towards his wife, on Saturday night. It appears that the wife entered a corner butcher shop, on one of the side streets, and was just in the act of paying an account to the shopkeeper, when her husband, under the influence of liquor, walked in, without any provocation whatever, struck his wife a blow in the face with his fist, at the same time telling her that if there were any bills to be paid, he and she alone, was the person who could attend to that part of the business. Several people were in the store at the time, and they were angry enough to interfere, and give the man a good trouncing, just what he deserved, and the one fact that saved him from getting all that was due him, was that he did not offer to strike a second blow. The poor wife paid her bill, and walked out of the store, followed by her husband, but announced that he would not have a chance to treat her in such a manner a second time. Whether or not she will seek a separation is not known. Her position was a most pitiable one, and everyone in the little store felt sorry for her.

According to report, it is the old, old story of what strong drink will do. The husband, so it is stated, is not troublesome when sober, but when in his cups, is simply terrible. The best advice that can be given him, is that he secure a good firm grip on the water-wagon, or place himself on Inspector Wright's "prohibited list."

TRY THE MONEY-BACK CURE FOR INDIGESTION.

Nine times in ten stomach derangements are responsible for sallow complexion, dull eyes and thin body. It is the stomach that supplies nourishing blood to the muscles, the nerves, and skin. If the stomach is healthy, plenty of nutritious matter will be absorbed by the blood. If it is not healthy, the food will ferment, and undigested will pass along through the bowels, furnishing so little nutritious matter that the blood becomes impoverished, and the glow of health vanishes.

If you suffer from nervousness, sick headache, belching of gas, sour taste in the mouth, heaviness after eating, or any other miserable stomach disturbance, you need HYOMEI, and the sooner you get it the quicker you will be healthier and happier.

It will relieve any distressed stomach condition almost immediately. This "cure" is used according to directions. G. W. Mahood sells it for 35c a large box, and he thinks enough of it to guarantee it to cure indigestion.

The Man On Watch.

The street car company has received pretty nigh everything the town council can hand it, the Lampanman thinks. There's scarcely anything more the councilmen have to give away, unless they present the street car, runners with the electric light and power works and also hand over the town buildings to them. The councilmen might also pass a grant to buy a few new cars for the road, and instruct the town engineer to put his men at work on the tracks whenever they require a little fixing. In return for these extra concessions, he thinks the company might give the town the bears and the mules at Ontario park, and a free ride on the merry-go-round to the mayor and Councilman Elliott when they feel like taking a little recreation. He really can't suggest anything else, as the town might give, in view of the refusal of the company to accept a straight "bonus."

The Lampanman says he was surprised to learn that one tavern in the town is responsible for the great majority of the drunken men who appear in police court, and the place he refers to is not a mere saloon but a well-kept tavern. He supposes this is just because so many people of a certain class congregate there. As to the liquor license reduction question, he thinks that if some of the places that have licenses were forced all the year, to comply with the law as to providing bed and board, there would be fewer taverns in the town. He has no doubt that some of the so-called taverns can give a bed in the shape of a bench to sleep on. When the inspector pays his visit the beds are certainly there, put in for form sake. It's places like these, he says, that should be cut off as they're not taverns but saloons.

The town council, the Lampanman thinks, should accept the offer of Lawyer Macdonald to prove that eight places holding tavern licenses are not taverns, but drinking places. That is sufficient answer to the statement that there is not sufficient tavern accommodation in the town. The Lampanman heartily agrees with that statement, but why is there not accommodation? Why are so many of the twenty-eight places that have licenses as taverns are only excuses for hosteleries. If there were twenty genuine taverns in Kingston there would be twice as much accommodation for the traveller as is needed here.

QUEEN'S THEATRE NIGHT.

The Grand in Their Possession Saturday Night.

Queen's University students had their annual theatre night on Saturday, and the Grand was in their possession for the production of "The Wolf," a strong melodrama, with the wilds of Hudson Bay territory as a setting. There was a very large audience. The boxes were draped with Queen's colors, and the time-honored skeleton performed acrobatic work in front of the stage curtain. The principal and professors of the university and their families, and the general hospital nurses occupied the boxes. Between acts college choruses were draped with Queen's colors. Compared with Queen's theatre nights of some years past, this one was rather flat, the between-act entertainment being very mediocre.

"The Wolf" was admirably produced by a company of six, each of whom was an artist. The leading roles were taken by Carl Anthony, as "Jack Beaubien," a young French-Canadian, and Marion Pollock Johnson, as "Hilda McTavish," daughter of the Scotch settler, and both won warm applause. A fine piece of character acting was that of Joseph Chaille, as "Bastide LeGrand," Joseph Greene, as the Scotch settler, William Norton as the American engineer, and "Jack" Deveraux, as his assistant, were equally good. The stage settings were excellent. At the close of the second act, the students in the balcony, through the medium of their skeleton, passed down to Miss Johnson a huge bouquet of chrysanthemums, and to Mr. Anthony a box of Kingston's famed cigars.

"Two Women And That Man." An entirely new and unique story of an almost new country "Alaska" is to be found in the play of "Two Women And That Man" by Henry D. Carey. As the title implies the story deals chiefly with the question of two women being in love with one man, and at the same time depicts the country and its people to a fine degree. The play is laid in a small town up in the northern part of Alaska, during the year 1898, at which time there was a great influx to that country. All kinds of men and women meeting and fighting all the many hardships and conditions that were there, and on these people and times the author has built his play. It comes to the Grand on Thursday, November 25th.

The Practical in Studies.

A fountain of usefulness in early training is Dr. A. P. Knight's "Hygiene for Young People," one of the best condensed and most practical of text books, recommended by the ministers of education in all the school libraries. It is intended for middle-course pupils, to follow up junior studies in physiology and hygiene, for which the author's three primers are admirably designed. This last work is due to a call for application of the subjects of hygiene in an introductory primer. It treats of sunlight effects, air and ventilation, care of the hair, skin, teeth, ears and eyes; treats of foods, narcotics and the blood; sleeping and exercises; disease and the alcohol habit. The lessons and illustrations are very simple, but sane and effective. They have not, apparently, descended below the margin of common sense for adults as well as the young, and can find a useful constituency in other libraries than those of the schools.

THE SPORT REVIEW
WILLIAMS' GREAT WORK WON FOR OTTAWA.

Hamilton Tigers Defeated By 14 to 8 in Toronto—Jack Williams Outkicked Simpson—General Sporting News.

The victory of Ottawa over the Hamilton Tigers in Toronto on Saturday afternoon for the interprovincial rugby championship pleased Kingston, which received the news with decided satisfaction. Everybody in the west and many in the east declared that the Tigers would have a walk-over. Those "wise" prophets on several Toronto papers must feel about as cheap as goods at a rummage sale. They figured it all Tigers. Their prophecy was like the one they made in 1849 when they called Ottawa Rough Riders to beat the Kingston Granites in Toronto for the championship, but Granites won by 8 to 0. The rugby experts here, while recognizing that Tigers had a remarkable team, thought that Ottawa would display the dash and they were right.

The story of Ottawa was recorded by the Toronto papers to their captain, "Jack" Williams, the Kingston half-back. "It was to Capt Williams' great work," says the Toronto World, "that Ottawa owes its victory." Williams outkicked and out-generalled the great Simpson, of Hamilton. Every point Ottawa made was due to Williams' fine kicking. Next to Williams came Stronach, the big Scotch athlete who plays outside wing for Ottawa. Stronach played a dashing game, following up Williams' kicks over Tigers' line like lightning; nailing the Tigers' backs before they could get rid of the ball. Both Williams and Stronach were given tremendous ovation by the Ottawa supporters after the game.

Ottawa led all the way through. The quarter scores were: First quarter, 9 to 0; second quarter, 9 to 5; third quarter, 13 to 6; last quarter, 14 to 8.

Next Saturday Ottawa will meet Varsity in Toronto for the dominion rugby championship and will win without a doubt.

After the game on Saturday afternoon, J. T. Sutherland wired as follows to Capt. Williams, of Ottawa: "Congratulations, 'Jack.' A Kingston boy shall lead them."

The book dealt with the worship of idols, sins of weakness and willfulness and also devotes a chapter to deathbed repentance.
