ANSWER OF F. R. ANGLIN TO QUESTIONS RAISED BY W. PETERS.

The Liquor Report of Canada Shows Decrease in Liquor Consumption in This Country Last Year.

Kingston, Nov. 30.—(To the Editor)—In reply to the letter of W. Peters (who, by the way, is not W. P. Peters, the flour and feed merchant), I cannot presume to answer fully all the questions he raises, as that would involve a great deal of time and space. I will simply touch upon a few of the most prominent features mentioned, as I am sure the public is not interested in an unending controversy.

In the first place he says that the United States government reports show a large increase in the consumption of intoxicants during the last fiscal year. As I have not these figures at hand, I will refer you to the government report of Canada during the last fiscal year as printed in the Wine and Spirit Journal, shows a large decrease in the transactions of liquor. The quantity of proof stuff or malt on hand, in the warehouses, has increased more than one million pounds. The aggregate duty on imports is less while exports to the United States have decreased. There was a decrease of one million gallons in the quantity of whiskey manufactured in Canada during the year.

He says that Mr. McParland does not want "blind pigs" in Kingston. This is an unjust reflection upon our law and police departments, who can be trusted to put down any such lawlessness. The provincial government has set them a good example in this respect, prosecuting and punishing (as they have done) offenders of this class in New Ontario. Furthermore, it is the experience of local option municipalities that there are fewer "blind pigs" under local option than under license. It is safe to conclude that under reduction the results will be similar.

Yes, the city council has the whole handling of this question, and for some mysterious reason did not want the people to have a chance to express an opinion on it. Its handling of this question has produced a widespread feeling of indignation, which must result in strengthening the cause of temperance in this city.

Mr. Peters contends that the closing of eight saloons will not reduce drinking, but he said it would reduce the sale of cigars. It is not good logic to say that it will effect one article and not another. Now, Mr. Peters, come, be candid, which do you mean?

In the matter of hotel accommodation, I will first pause to remark that Mr. Peters has misquoted me. The great need is not for more accommodation, but better.

His statement that I "branded the farmers as drunkards is very far-fetched and quite misleading. I am delighted to hear him speak of them as "sober, good living, etc.," but while he praises their character he attacks their principle in a great cause, of which they are the champions; and I repeat it is a crying shame that our fellow-countrymen, who have banished the bar from their own townships by a three-fifths majority, should be obliged, by force of circumstances, when they come to trade with us, to put up at places where the bar and its devotees are most in evidence.—F. R. ANGLIN.

SWALLOWED UP SHACKS.

Mine Caves in—Threatens to Do More Damage.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Nov. 30.—A score of men are working in an effort to save from complete demolition a score of houses in the vicinity of Butterworth road, as the result of a caving in of the gypsum mine workings that honeycomb the earth beneath that section.

A dozen Polish families narrowly escaped death when the old mine caved in directly beneath their shacks. Without warning the earth began to tremble under them. As the shacks began to totter about on their foundations the frightened Poles fled, leaving their belongings. Some of the houses disappeared shortly. A further caving in is expected.

STRUCK MINERAL BED.

Gold, Silver, Copper, Iron and Nickel.

Dunsmuir, Man., Nov. 29.—While boring for water, Thomas Wells struck a mineral bed which is a virtual King Solomon's mine, if the assay can be taken as being correct. Gold, silver, copper, iron and nickel, were discovered in the ore, and it is supposed to be the remains of some antediluvian volcanic eruption. Before striking this ore, the bore ran through a layer several feet in thickness of sand, which is suitable for making glass. Wells is about to organize a company to work the claim. He did not strike water.

HER EYE PIERCED

A KINGSTON LADY'S SIGHT LIKELY GONE.

In Passing Her Hat to Her a Sharp Pin Struck Her Eye With Serious and Painful Result.

A hat pin figured in a very serious accident, and as a result, a Kingston woman may lose the sight of her eye. She is now undergoing treatment.

The accident occurred in a very simple manner. It appears that the lady's hat was being handed to her, by a friend, and as she was about to receive it, the pin, which had been left in the hat, caught her in the eye. It is not yet known, but it is believed that she will lose the sight of the member. The accident was a most regrettable one, but goes to show how easily an accident of this kind might occur. It is usual for women to leave pins in their hats, and this case should serve as a warning, and precaution taken in the future.

THE SUNNY OKANAGAN.

Development of Fruit and Tobacco Industries.

The recent success of the Kelowna fruit growers at the International apple show, held at Spokane, Wash., from Nov. 15th to 20th, is another evidence of the wonderful possibilities of the fertile Okanagan Valley. The exhibit was in charge of Mayor DeHart, and reports to hand indicate that the victory was as sweeping as a year ago, when Kelowna apples took nearly $5,000 in prizes, including first prize in all but one class in which entries were made.

Kelowna has a population of nearly 2,000, and is beautifully situated on the shore of Okanagan Lake, and has a daily C.P.R. mail service, and connection through Vernon with the main line of the C.P.R. at Siamon Junction. The railway programme of the British Columbia government includes a line to penetrate the valley, which will provide the needed transportation facilities for handling the rapidly increasing export trade.

An article in a recent number (October) of "Canadian Life and Resources," deals very instructively with this section of British Columbia, and offers very suggestive reading for all interested in the development of the western provinces.

While fruit growing is at present one of the most important industries, other branches of agriculture yield most profitable returns. One that offers perhaps the greatest possibilities, and is yearly growing in importance, is tobacco-raising. This industry has been carried on for the past twelve or fourteen years on a conservative scale and can be considered well out of the experimental stage. Since the adoption of the new protective tariff on tobacco, enormous possibilities are opened up for the Canadian grower, to supply the home market. Nowhere, perhaps, in Canada are the conditions of soil and climate so well adapted for the growing of a high-grade leaf suitable for cigars as in the Okanagan Valley.

Kelowna grown Havana leaf is becoming well and favorably known, and secures a ready market at good prices. The Canadian government, through the department of agriculture, is giving every encouragement to this important home industry, by the establishment of experimental stations, where methods of culture and curing are demonstrated under the direction of an expert from the tobacco division.

The tobacco crop is not only an exceedingly profitable one (giving net returns of $200 to $250 per acre), but is also a clean, easy crop to handle, and not subject to loss, from either late or early frosts.

Aside from its commercial possibilities, Kelowna offers many attractions, because of its climate and situation, not only as a place of residence, but to the tourist, who will find a visit there one of the most delightful experiences of a western trip.
