At THE POLICE COURT.

Cases Before the Magistrate To Day.

"I was drunk, and I am very sorry for it," James Love, on the "prohibited list," made this statement in the police court, to-day. When asked where he had been served with the liquor, he gave a name, and then the case was adjourned for a week, to allow for further investigation.

George Mason, Princess street confectioner, was charged with putting up a sign in front of his shop, without securing the necessary permission from the city engineer. He was given only thirty-eight years of age, called the chief officer to his cabin and said if he complies with this request all he will have to do is to pay the costs of the court.

One drunk was fined $5 and costs, or one month, and another $1 and costs, or ten days.

ALDERMEN RETIRING.

Alfred Nickle, Free and Angrove Are Dropping Out.

Ald. W. F. Nickle is retiring from the city council, his three-year term expiring at the end of the year. His legislative duties take him away from the city for three months, and hence he cannot attend the winter meetings of council. Ald. Free is also retiring, after serving three years in Rideau ward. Ald. Angrove, it is understood, will not run again in Victoria ward.

If he does not enter that mayoralty contest he will retire from the council. Ald. Hoag may possibly run in Rideau ward, leaving Dr. Ross to enter the field in Frontenac ward. It is expected that Ald. Henley will again contest Sydenham ward. Ald. Tewell, Cataraqui ward, and Ald. Givens, St. Lawrence ward.

Drama Of The Pacific Coast.

The Pacific coast has a romantic flavor for all Canadians and to-day and to-morrow they will be able to see something of life there at The Bijou. The play is entitled "A Fisherman Of The Far West And His Heroic Bride." The scene opens at sea and the heroine's father is big men that are caught in those waters. The old man wishes to marry his daughter to young Hiram.

Pro-But, big John Todd objects to this and after two battles with his rival carries the girl off and makes her his wife. Young Hiram hatches a plot to Shanghai his rival and after another hard fight the young husband is carried out to sea on a pilot boat to be shipped on an Oriental tramp steamer. The young wife discovers the plot and appeals to the harbor police.

A pursuit is organized and a thrilling race is the result. The boats are seen running side by side, exchanging rifle shots, and at last the capture is made. There is also a fine biography drama, "The Open Gate," and illustrated songs.

With The Wind And The Road.

Kindergarten Review.

When the day is young and the sun is in the east.

And the world awakes and goes to work.

Then I put aside the work that you think I never share.

And I laugh as I lock the door.

For 'tis joy, joy, when the road is calling me.

And the winds are all at play;

They may whistle and shout, as they buffet me about.

But my heart is as free as they.

There are secrets still of the road before me.

That I never yet have heard.

But I think to day's the day when the winds will have their way.

And I will tell you every word.

For it's joy, joy, joy, when a day is blue and gold.

And the air is crisp and keen.

To listen to the beat of a music wild and sweet,

And follow the paths unseen.

The archbishop exacted from each candidate a pledge to abstain from all intoxicating drinks until they reach the age of twenty-one.

Postal Service Of 250 B.C.

How the ancient Egyptians conducted a state postal service more than 2,150 years ago is shown by a papyrus on view at the Imperial Postal Museum in Berlin. It dates from the time of Ptolemy Philadelphus, who reigned from 283 to 247 B.C., when postal deliveries were confined to stations along the Nile. The papyrus is of the nature of a waybill and bears the signatures of five postal officials who would correspond to the present sorters, postmen and branch superintendents. The document reads somewhat as follows:

"On this, the 16th day . . .

I, Alexander, received the following:

For Ptolemy, the King, 1 letter packet;

for Appollonius of the Exchequer, 1 letter packet and 2 letters;

for Antiochus the Cretan, 1 letter packet;

for Mendoros, 1 letter packet;

for Chelos, 1 letter packet, delivered the above into the hands of Nicodemus, the 17th day . . . . Signed, Alexander.

This morning, the . . . .

Phoenix, junior, son of Herachitus the Macedonian, have delivered to Ammon, 1 letter packet and paid expenses to Phanias, the carrier. I, Ammon, delivered the above to Theocrestus, etc., etc., etc.

It is noteworthy that the time of the despatch of parcels is given with routine-like regularity. Mention is further made of letter packets to the chief of the elephant hunt; to Theogenes, the tax collector; to Zollos, the chief of the exchequer at Hermopolis, and various other departmental chiefs.

Gives Up Command; Dies.

A dramatic story of the sea was told at Liverpool, recently, when the steamer Aria, trading between Tunis and the English port, arrived without her captain. A few hours after the vessel left Tunis her captain, who was only thirty-eight years of age, called the chief officer to his cabin and said he wished to surrender his command.

For some time past he had appeared moody and melancholy and apparently ill at ease.

He said he was too unwell to go on with his responsibilities. He remained passive and uncommunicative until the vessel was off Holyhead. Then before any one could interfere, he leaped overboard, a heavy sea was running at the time and there was also a thick fog. A boat was lowered in search of the unhappy commander, but he was lost in the fog, and the rescue party returned to the ship.

May Extend Certificates.

Hon. Dr. Pyne, minister of education, has issued a circular permitting the extension of third class, city board, extended third-class and extended district teachers' certificates,

which expire
