Dainty Gifts for the HOME NEEDLEWORKER.

Most of us resolved last Christmas to begin on another year and get the gifts for our dear two score of friends out of the way before the holiday rush begins. But most of us, alas! find ourselves early in December in just the same desperate state of mind, with Christmas only a few weeks away and not a thing ready.

There are so many friends and such short purse strings to meet the demand, that just about this time the nicely printed and illuminated Christmas remembrance cards look tempting as a way out of the perplexity; but even if such a card be thoughtfully sent unmarked so that it may be passed on to another season, some trifle in one's own handwork will be much more prized by an appreciative friend.

Dozens of useful little gifts there are which take but a few moments in the preparing, and which may be contrived from odd bits of silk or ribbon from the piece drawer.

Several gift hints are given. The "sewing kit" is a dainty and novel remembrance for the friend who does fancy work. In a ribbon wound embroidery ring sits a little white pussy built of caution flannel and equipped with shoe button eyes and pink silk lined ears. The puss supports a spool of No. 60 cotton, that always useful weight, and thimble, wax and emery are suspended from the ring by ribbons.

The heart-shaped sewing kit is made of pompadour ribbon, four half hearts lying at the centre, and in the four angles thus formed are fastened spoons of thread, pincushion, thimble case and the like.

A fancy needlecase and vanity outfit are illustrated in another photograph. The needlecase imitates a daisy, with petals made of white ribbon, and the centre of yellow silk is painted with water color to represent a little face. The scalloped flannel leaves, filled with needles, ready threaded, and various sizes of safety pins, will be appreciated by the woman who travels.

The variety outfit shown in the same photograph is just large enough to be carried comfortably in an opera glass bag or handbag, or it may be slipped in the pocket in an evening coat lining. The little case is made of two circles of cardboard, one provided with a shirred pocket in which is tucked a chamois case filled with talcum powder, and the other bearing a tiny round mirror, set in behind a ring of the cardboard over which is a shirring of silk.

The bridge score bag makes a charming gift for the friend who likes a rubber. Broad satin ribbons are used for the bag—or rather two bags, formed by loops of the ribbon. One bag holds the long score pad, the other a pack of playing cards. Extra loops are added as a finish at the top of the bag and the ribbon may be decorated, as suggested, with water color flowers, or with the card emblems of spades, clubs, diamonds and hearts.

Glove mending sets are easy to make and are usually acceptable. Small scissors, darning and one of the braided strips of colored mending silk are attached by ribbons to a celluloid ring. A thimble and needle case containing fine glove mending needles will add to the usefulness of the gift. In the same photograph with this glove mending set is shown an always practical if humble gift—a safety pin holder. Nothing like pins to go astray in the most exasperating fashion, and safety pins, despite their size, seem to disappear with wonderful rapidity. Black and white safety pins in several sizes may be attached to the little bone rings which swing from the ribbons, and the gift, while very inexpensive, will surely prove most acceptable.

Pincushions are appreciated by one's bachelor friends. For some strange reason men disdain pin trays and when they do have infrequent need for a pin, like to find it in plain sight on a cushion where it need not be fumbled for. Pin-cushions in a man's room seem to have a talent for becoming soiled and dilapidated, so the woman who knows a man with a penchant for dainty pincushions may make him a new one each Christmas and thus easily solve a usually vexing question.

A ring pincushion is a novel idea for a woman friend. In the centre of an ordinary round or heart-shaped cushion is set a tall, slender cone of cardboard covered with silk matching the cushion. Over this cone the rings may be slipped, resting on the soft cushion at the base of the cone.

An apron bag for fancy work makes a charming gift. Such a bag may be made of dotted swiss or of any other desired material. A very practical apron bag, seen recently at a church fair, was of coarse cream colored scrim laid over pink silk, the scrim being darned in a bold, geometrical pattern with pink floss. The bag was as wide as an ordinary lap sewing apron and nine to ten inches deep, and was drawn up around the top with a silk ribbon run through a casing. The apron portion, of sheer white lawn, embroidered with pink forget-me-nots was attached to the inner edge of the top of the bag and could be either turned up and tied about the waist, or tucked, along with the fancy work, into the bag when the sewing hour was over. It is always well, when making an apron bag, to line the bag portion with light silk, for the work within will be better protected from dust when the apron is not in use.

A paper and string bag, last Christmas, delighted a busy housekeeper who was always being asked for these needfuls and had never possessed a definite receptacle for them. The bag was a large one, made of creton, with gussets at the side so that plenty of wrapping paper could be stowed away.

For the woman of the girl prizes dainty belongings, sachet bags made of loops of three-inch satin ribbon, make a pretty gift. The little bags are stuffed with cotton and tied around the top with baby ribbon of the same shade. Before the bag is closed up, a pinch of some delicate sachet powder is dropped into the cotton. A set of these little bags, designed to slip into the sleeves of bodices laid in dresser drawers, may be accompanied by a corset sachet, also of the ribbon; this sachet bag to be pinned to the front of the corset. Corset sachets are in various shapes, the heart-shaped sachet being one of the daintiest. For a very slender friend the corset sachet may be of long loops of the ribbon, filled with the perfumed cotton and covered with a little slip of dotted swiss or hand-embroidered batiste, which may be removed frequently and laundered.

Strange Occurrence in Church.

A peculiar accident happened in a church at Hford, Eng., one Sunday recently, which created no little stir amongst the congregation. While Mrs. Isabella Lucas was sitting with friends in a pew near the end of the organ, one of the massive pipes fell out and struck her on the head, inflicting severe injuries. The doctor who attended her said that but for the force of the blow being broken by a thick bonnet which she was wearing the lady would certainly have been killed.

ABOUT WOMEN.

At the frequent archery contests in England there were over three hundred women contestants. In England the women are also very prominent in rapier exercises, not a few of them being able to handle the sword better than many men.

This is the first year there has been no hazing of the girl students at Bryn Mawr, the well-known woman's college. The hazing was stopped at the first of the season by the president of the school, Miss M. Carey Thomas, who delivered a severe address against the practice.

Ventriloquism in Nature.

While pioneering in South Brazil, Mr. Wilber was struck by the low and plaintive cry of some creature calling in the night. He was at first impressed with the idea that it was the cry of a child, but the tones soon convinced him that this could not be the case.

"I had never heard," he says, "a more pure and liquid musical sound than this was. The pleasing effect upon the ear was but little diminished on learning by what animal it was produced. The vocalist was a frog; and soon another from a more distant spot took up the strain, and the two sang together, now in solos, now in chorus.

"Curious to see this musical frog, I took a torch from the fire, and went to look for him. I arrived at the spot whence the sound was proceeding, but as I stooped to search the grass, the music seemed to float away to another place some yards distant.

"I followed, and still the sound moved, and nowhere could I discover whence it came. I searched for nearly a quarter of an hour, without being able to fix the spot, and then I gave up in despair.

"The fact is, this frog is recognized to be a ventriloquist of no common order. I have many a time since heard him crying in broad daylight; and the power of ventriloquism is no doubt given him as a protection against the numerous cranes and other frog enemies that would otherwise be guided by the sound, and soon render the species extinct."

Scared To Death By Pet Coon.

A curious case of an old woman being frightened to death by a pet coon occurred near Greensboro, Ala., a few nights ago. After she had retired to her bed, and while there was no light in the room, the old lady saw an object crawl over the bed toward her. She slapped it and pushed it back, but it came again. The woman then became frightened and got out of her bed, when, to her dismay, she discovered that the thing as still pursuing her. Thinking surely that it was a "haunt," she screamed, and other people on the place ran to her. By the time that any one got there she was so overcome with fright that she could scarcely speak, and died shortly after. It was learned that the object that had been following her was a pet coon.
