Let the Other Fellow Assume The Risk
What is the use of carrying a risk upon your shoulders when it costs but a trifle to be relieved of it?
What sense is there in a person just in order to save a few dollars, running chances of losing everything he possesses?
Let the other fellow do it if he chooses. You be safe. Get insured.
Perhaps your home, or your furniture, or your stock of goods is insured, but only partially protected, if such is the case, the first of the year would be a good time to take out an additional policy.
You'll feel better about it if you do. You'll sleep more soundly and you'll never miss the little premium it costs you.
We sell Fire, Life and Accident insurance.

WALKER BEING TRIED FOR STEALING FROM G.T.R. FREIGHT CARS.

Detective Grogan, of Montreal, Re-counted His Experiences With the Prisoner, and How the Latter Entered the Cars.
The theft case against William Walker was heard at the court of general sessions, this morning, J. McE. Mowat appeared for the prisoner and J. L. Whiting, K.C., for the crown. The prisoner was brought in from the jail by Constable Smith and did not show any signs of his long sojourn while awaiting trial. The following was sworn: Robert J. Bows, Frederick Balls, Charles Potter, William Raneous, John R. McGill, Edward Whitty, William Wallace, Donald Fraser, Amos E. Kingsbury, William Murphy, William Watts, Cornelius Hewson. Mr. Mowat challenged four jurors and they retired.
The first witness was Charles Grogan, the Thiel detective, who was the cause of Walker's arrest. He told practically the same story as in police court, but this time making sure of his facts by referring repeatedly to a little red book in which he had kept his notes, telling just where he was and what he did during his stay in the city. He told a clear, straightforward story, bringing out every point. Parts of his story were in a way amusing, when he referred to the dates with Kingston girls, and also of visits to a house, which he well described. He told of visiting the street railway employees' picnic, and also of getting a few drinks in town, that would have been a surprise to Inspector Wright. The witness also identified a pair of pincers and a revolver which Walker carried with him, and used in opening the cars.
He told clearly of how they went to the outer station, how the cars were opened by the prisoner and how Walker took the stuff, what he did with it, and what precautions he took against being caught.
The witness told of the car which contained candy, that Walker opened and finding what was in it, the prisoner took out a box of candy and put it over on another track near to boarding cars, saying, "When they find that the car is opened and find the candy over here, they will blame the dog." Grogan told of going to Walker's house after his arrest and the prisoner's sister handed the witness over the five shirts stolen a few nights before, and also the pincers that Walker used in opening the cars.
Mr. Mowat put the witness through a rather rigid cross-examination, going minutely into every detail, but failing to break him down on any main facts. At first the prisoner's counsel went along easily, but still leaving no point uncovered. Through-out the examination Walker appeared greatly interested in the testimony, especially in the cross-examination. The witness kept the same quiet manner as at the first hearing, answering every question, but always being careful to think well before speaking.
At Grogan's examination was concluded Frederick Newton, bartender at the outer station, was called and told of seeing the men at the station. John Hewton, shipper for the Hosiery company, was next called, and identified the stolen under-shirts, giving the same evidence as at the first hearing. The witness was followed by Henry Wilder, conductor on the suburban train, who remembered seeing the prisoner and Grogan at the outer station.
Mr. Whiting then called Charles Robinson, conductor on the train that was run by the prisoner, and told of receiving the stolen cars at Belleville and finding them open by the time he got to Montreal. John Cunningham, Joseph McMahon and James McAvor, three slippers and checkers employed by the Grand Trunk railway at Montreal, followed, and told of some goods missing and the methods used to trace such goods.
The next witness called was Mrs. James Melroy, sister of the prisoner, who handed over the goods to Grogan when he called for them the day after her brother's arrest. She was put through a stiff cross-examination but very few new facts were unearthed. She was closely questioned about the fur lining for a coat that her brother sold some time ago but did not know much about it other than that it was in her house for some time.
At 1:45 o'clock court adjourned until two o'clock for lunch.

A Strong Attraction.
An extra strong vaudeville act is being presented at Wonderland this week, entitled "The Choir Girl," and company. The act is presented by these people, headed by Mr. H. Arnold. The electrical effects and transformation scenes were greatly admired by large audiences at every performance. The company remains for the balance of the week, and any person missing this refined turn is certainly missing a rare treat.

EXECUTIVE HELD MEETING
Social and Moral Reform League.
The executive of the Social and Moral Reform League held a meeting last night, but this morning the president, D. G. Latlaw, had no new announcements to make regarding the candidates.
It appears to be practically a case of one side waiting to see what the "other" is doing. However, he time is getting very short, and the candidates will have to announce themselves.
"We have not all our candidates in the field yet," said one member of the league this morning, "but you depend upon it that when the time comes we will be in the race. We have men who have volunteered to go into the field, and we are in the light to stay."
In all likelihood the league will hold a series of meetings just as soon as all their candidates are in the field.
An Excellent Publication.
The Canadian Courier has entered upon its fourth year prosperously and many years Canada was without a national illustrated weekly, and then The Courier was started few believed the country big enough to support such an expensive publication. It was recognized, however, that John A. Cooper, who had been editor of the Canadian Magazine for more than ten years, was not likely to embark on such an enterprise without due consideration, and he had to produce a periodical which finds a ready sale from coast to coast, national periodicals are an important feature in the growth of national literature and the development of national unity, and The Courier serves a long life and continued influence.

HAVE ONLY TWO GAMES IN THE O.H.A. SCHEDULE TILL FEB. 19TH.

Frontenacs Will Arrange Exhibitions in January—Will Make Another Effort to Have Constantine Re-Installed.
The executive of the Frontenac Hockey Club met Tuesday-afternoon, with George Richardson (president), George McKay, W. W. Gibson, J. Augrove, J. T. Sutherland, and R. Crawford in attendance.
It was reported that arrangements had been made with the Kingston Skating Rink for the season's play. The rink company has granted the Frontenacs the free use of a room and also given them two practice nights a week from 8 to 9 o'clock on Mondays and Wednesdays.
The executive decided that the club's colors shall be royal blue and white, and sweaters and stockings are being ordered.
H. Swaine was appointed manager of the Junior Frontenacs, which are grouped with Platon, Belleville, and Trenton.
It is not known definitely whether "Eddie" Hiscock will play with Queen's or Frontenacs. The latter would like to have him back, but will try and look pleasant if he decides to play for the university champions.
The executive also discussed the question of again trying to have Lieut. Constantine reinstated by the O.H.A. The speedy artillery officer was unfortunate several years ago to play with the Quebec seven team in an eastern hockey league against professionals, and the O.H.A. has refused to allow him back into the amateur fold. Lieut. Constantine is an amateur, but the holy men of the west don't want Kingston to have him. However, another attempt will be made to have him reinstated, and Lieut. Constantine is just the player the Frontenacs need.
The Frontenac seniors will have only two O.H.A. games before Feb. 19th, as they are grouped with Toronto Argonauts. No doubt this was the best arrangement the executive could make. The Frontenacs will not play the first league game until the first week in February. They will be in good shape, as the executive will endeavor to bring the Ontario Victorias and other fast eastern amateur teams here for exhibition games.

HAS SECURED BERNIER.
The Canadian Team, of Montreal Gets Kingston Hockeyist.
Montreal Star.
Bernier, of Kingston, it is said, has been finally lured by "Jack" Laviolette for the Canadian team.
Bernier is a celebrated athlete, and Kingston already mourns his loss, because he was one of the foremost athletic figures there. He has a gold watch and a gold medal as mementoes of hockey championships won in 1906, 1907, and 1908. Upon the occasion of one of these victories, although he had just arisen from a sick bed, he scored seven goals.
During his military career, he was looked upon as one of the best all-round mounted men with sword and lance.
The Kings of Art
Raphael Tuck & Sons' Company, who have a branch at 9 St. Antoine street, Montreal, are not only great in the line of artistic production of cards and books, but keep mark with the times, or rather in the vanguard. The styles of Christmas, Easter, and birthday cards change quicker than the fashions, and each year's production bears scarcely a shadow of relation to its predecessors. This year there is less illustration and more use of antique papers, with room for individual improvised sentiment. The talent of novelty is splendidly displayed in the general output for the happy season near at hand. If it is Tuck's it is in the style.
A Very Fine Number.
The Globe's Christmas number is up to the high standard it has attained of late years. Other newspaper establishments have got out magazine numbers for the happy season and have done finely. But it was only a spurt and then a quitting. The Globe has kept right on, enabling our people to advertise their land by sending the Christmas number everywhere. And virtue has its own reward. The special Globe issues pay well.

SELLING GOODS AT HALF PRICE
A heading like this must of course attract your attention, especially if the advertiser is a responsible firm. Your first thought is HOW CHEAP but on second thought you begin to wonder HOW AND WHY HE DOES IT. IF THE GOODS ARE SALEABLE and the cut in price bona fide you are naturally forced to the conclusion that this merchant's margin of PROFIT is ENORMOUS; because, IF SALEABLE, there is no reason why they should be sold BELOW COST, and if bona fide his margin of PROFIT on all goods is figured far above reasonable limits.
Were we to advertise SALEABLE GOODS AT HALF PRICE someone would be bound to be stuck, either our creditors or you, the public. Our percentage of profit, fixed previous to our opening, is figured on the manufacturers (from whom we buy direct) and not the wholesalers (whose 25 to 40 per cent. profit we refuse to pay) prices, and is such that we would be unable to give a bona fide HALF PRICE SALE.
We hold our advertising to be as sacred as our bond and our ever increasing trade proves the confidence the public has in our statement. We are commended from all sides daily for bringing down the high prices on stationery and should our trade continue to increase, and we have every reason to believe that GOOD GOODS AT REASONABLE PRICES will tend to increase it, we shall be obliged to seek larger quarters.
