Safety!

The man who keeps his property well insured is treading on firm ground; he who assumes his own fire risk, on thin ice.

Statistics are dry things as a rule, but we could show you some on fire losses that would at once convince you that it is foolhardy not to be well protected.

Owners of factories usually have their own private fire fighting apparatus ready for instant use. How do those conditions compare with the conditions pertaining in your home or store?

Are you safe? That is the question to ask yourself. If you feel that you should add some insurance, interview

THE LATE H. P. DRIVER.

Accountant of The Oddfellows' Relief Fund.

There are many sad hearts in the city, to-day, because of the death of Harry P. Driver, who has been for many years one of the staff of the Oddfellows' Relief Association, and for some time its accountant. How much he lived in the affections of his friends, has been attested by the many solicitous enquiries which were made during his illness, and the numerous kindly messages which have this day been left at his home.

The one who could speak most clearly with regard to his work, as the secretary-treasurer of the Oddfellows' Relief Association, and Mr. Meek said: "I feel that I have been personally and very deeply bereaved. Mr. Driver joined the staff of the association about fourteen years ago. He came to our office with a modest bearing, which he preserved throughout all our dealings. He was a thoughtful man, and a man of few words. He said little during office hours, but he was devoted to our business, and he could be trusted to attend to every detail of the expanding service with the utmost fidelity. He was faithful in the little things as well as the big, and could be depended upon to accept any responsibility, and to discharge any duty fully and promptly. Best of all, was his calm and placid temperament. He must have had his worries like the rest of us, but there was no sign of them in his demeanor, or in his dealings with a few words, under him. Summed up in a few words, this was his character: Zealous, high-minded, honorable, honest, faithful and true. We shall miss him very much, and we shall cherish his memory very dearly."

Mr. Driver was the second son of Thomas Driver, of the customs' department, who, with the surviving members of the family, a mother, two sisters and a brother, have the sympathy of many friends. His young wife, a bride of only a few months, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Reid, will be especially remembered in these trying hours of her great sorrow. The late Mr. Driver was about thirty-five years of age, and a model citizen.

Died in Hospital.

SWEET BRIDAL MUSIC

FOLLOWS ON THE ECHO OF CHRISTMAS STRAINS

In St. George's Cathedral—Dr. S. MacCallum and Miss Elsie Tandy Married To-day—The Cathedral Beautiful in its Festive Dress.

Bridal music resounding through the aisles, and echoing about the pillars of St. George's cathedral, a few moments after ten o'clock, on Monday morning, betokened that a wedding party would soon enter. The church, in its Christmas dress of green, the high altar and recesses massed with flowers, looked beautiful, and the light was a pretty one, as the bridal procession came up towards the chancel steps, the choir singing the marriage hymn, "The Voice That Breathed O'er Eden." Leading was the small page, Master Arthur Williamson, aged three, the bride's nephew, in a suit of brown velvet, the wide collar of white silk edged with gold braid, and the shield bearing a gold anchor. In his hand was a basket of pink roses, and he was as good as gold. Following her son came the matron of honor, Mrs. A. R. B. Williamson, the bride's sister, wearing a beautiful gown of pink satin duchess, the skirt made in graceful tulle effect, a rather high girde, pearl sewn, confining the folds of the bodice. A rosette with heart of pearls, caught the satin drapery at the left of the corsage, and the yoke of chiffon was studded with pearls, a fringe of pearls outlining it, fringe also edged the elbow sleeves of the satin, and below this an undersleeve of pink net, over white, and embroidered with pearls, went down to the wrist. A particularly handsome border of white silk applique, in scroll design, thickly strewn with pearls, was at the foot of the skirt, and appeared also on the corsage. Mrs. Williamson's hat was of black panne velvet with black plumes, her bouquet of pink roses, and her ornament a star of pearls, the groom's gift.

Last came the bride, Miss Elsie Tandy, leaning on the arm of her brother, Dr. Herbert Tandy, who gave her away. Her bridal robe was very graceful, of heavy Liberty satin, the long train falling in a double cascade, pearl-edged, and the slightly draped skirt caught in front with two dahlias formed of the satin, with pearls in their centre. Bias folds of satin latticed, filled the front of the corsage and bands of satin, heavily embroidered with pearls, went over the shoulder from the waist line. At the belt, both front and back, was a large diamond-shaped medallion, of Honiton lace, sewn with a cluster of large Roman sequins. A dahlia caught the fullness upon the corsage, and a chiffon yoke with lace applique, was concealed in pearls, and the lower part of the sleeves were made of the chiffon lace and pearls. The winsome little bride carried a white prayer-book and her bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley, her ornament was the groom's gift, an amethyst pendant set about with white pearls, and her veil lovely fell from a chaplet of pearls, with a knot of orange blossoms at either side.

At the chancel steps the groom, Samuel MacCallum, B.A., M.D., Niagara Falls, son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter MacCallum, Brewer's Mills, was waiting, with his best man and brother, Peter MacCallum, The Dean of Ontario and Canon Starr performed the ceremony, the service being full choral. While the register was being signed Rechab Tandy, the bride's uncle, sang the hymn, "O Perfect Love," and the beautiful tune in Hymns Ancient and Modern.

The ushers were: Dr. E. J. Williamson, and Stuart Polson, and to them and to the small page the groom gave pearl stick pins.

The breakfast was laid at the home of Mrs. Williamson, the quaint old pretty cottage being decked with fir and holly. Pink and white carnations also added brightness to the dining-room, where the many wedding gifts were set out, and in the dining-room, pink roses hung from the mantelpiece, and white roses and candles (the room being darkened), decked the table, a large bow of pink satin giving an effective touch to a charming tout ensemble.

Many are the good wishes for the bride and many the regrets that she is going to leave us, and the groom comes in for his share of the felicitations and kind thoughts, for he was much liked in his days at Queen's, and his winning of the medal in chemistry at graduation was a great pleasure to all.

Heed Persistent Backache.

Dull, heavy pains in the back or side, as well as a sudden "catch" or "stitch" in the back shows some congested or irritated condition of the muscles or kidneys. The trouble is usually called lumbago and may disappear at times. But these troubles are signs of a poisoned condition of the blood that are apt to lead to chronic rheumatism or serious kidney disease. The remedy needed is Dr. Hall's Rheumatic Cure. It removes the source of the trouble. It expels uric acid from the system, helps the kidneys and enriches the blood. Dr. Hall's Rheumatic Cure is a great blood purifier and spring tonic. In bottles, 50c., at J. B. McLeod's Drug Store, corner King and Brock streets (Wade's old stand), and corner Princess and Montreal streets.

The Wellingtons Defeated.

The Wellington hockey team went to Belleville for a friendly game on Christmas day, and were defeated by 5 goals to 4, after a very hard game. At half time the score stood one goal all, and a minute before time was called the score stood four goals all, Belleville scoring their last goal when two Kingston men were off the ice. The game was witnessed by a large crowd. The locals expected to play the Belleville juniors, but found themselves pitted against the intermediates. The Wellingtons lined up as follows: Marchand, goal; Little, point; Nicholson, cover; Brouse, rover; Grattan, centre; Hunt, left wing; Reid, right wing.

to all. Mrs. MacCallum went off in a travelling dress of seal brown cloth, the coat trimmed with panne velvet reverse of the same shade, and very large topaz buttons. Her blouse was of brown silk, with touches of gold and her hat was a tricorne shape of brown, with crown of gold and gold mount, and her furs were mink.

The bride's mother, Mrs. Tandy, wore black peau de soie, with yoke of white chiffon, and a toque of black silk and jet.

Mrs. MacCallum, the groom's mother, also wore heavy black silk, trimmed with jet, and a velvet hat.

Mrs. Herbert Tandy wore white mesaline silk with touches of burnt orange, black panne velvet hat and plumes.

Miss Florence Williamson was in white silk, small with coat of white broadcloth, and white satin hat, with uncurled ostrich feathers.

DRUG STORE ROBBED.

Thief Secured $16 at Hoag's on Saturday.

Early on Saturday evening, a thief secured an entrance to the drug store of F. J. Hoag, Princess street, and made off with the sum of $16. There was money in two small boxes, kept for a special purpose, and the thief got track of these and emptied the contents, with the exception of ten cents, which, no doubt, he left for good luck. Mr. Hoag left the store shortly after six o'clock, locking up, and did not return until about midnight.

The thief secured entrance by smashing in a pane of glass at the rear of the store, near the door, and then it was an easy matter for him to unlock the door.

Loughboro Resident Dead.

Last week, George Kemp passed away at his residence, a few miles north of Sydenham. He had been a sufferer for about six months with a virulent type of cancer in the face, which developed very fast. Last spring he was enjoying the best of health, with a happy future before him, when the dreaded disease made its appearance and although given the best of medical aid, its ravages could not be stayed, and he died a very patient and resigned sufferer. He was one of Loughboro's most respected citizens, a man of very gentle character, highest integrity, quiet disposition, and a prosperous farmer of the most industrious kind. He was but a young man, of fifty-seven years; a member of the Methodist church, at Sydenham, and a conservative in politics. He will be very greatly missed in his home, where he was looked up to, and was ever gentle and kind. He leaves to mourn a wife and four children, Mrs. Henry Vanlaven, Maple Grove; Ethel, Flossie and Burton, at home. To his widow and children the whole neighborhood extend the sincerest sympathy.
