Simple Cure For Itchiness.

The tantalizing skin itchiness that plagues men and women arises from the invasion of germs. Washing won't relieve—cleanliness certainly cannot cure—only a soothing germ killer like Dr. Hamilton's Ointment can do the work. By soothing the parts with Dr. Hamilton's Ointment relief is afforded at once. The soothing balsams and healing oils in this ointment make a perfect food for the skin. You find this out in one application. 50c boxes at all dealers.

GRIANDFATHERS WITH WOLFE,

Mrs. Edwards, Ottawa, Celebrates Ninety-Second Birthday.

Ottawa, Jan. 13.—Yesterday, Mrs. William Edwards, 21 Nicholas street, Ottawa, both of whose grandfathers fought under Wolfe at the battle of the Plains of Abraham and helped to capture Quebec, celebrated her ninety-second birthday. She has over a hundred living descendants, including ten sons and daughters, forty grandchildren, many great-grandchildren. One of the nobis is Senator Edwards, a member of the senate.

Two years ago the venerable lady was tendered a unique reception when there were presentations from the second, third, and fourth generations. To-day they renewed their good wishes. Mrs. Edwards enjoys excellent health. She was born at Fort William, Scotland, on January 12th, 1818.

The Lady's Dilemma.

Sir Charles Stanley, the famous baritone, can tell of many humorous incidents in connection with his long career. On one occasion he gave a concert at which he was to sing a duet with Mrs. Sartoris. He arrived early, being followed shortly after by the lady. The concert hall was filling rapidly, and the two stood by the piano when suddenly Mrs. Sartoris exclaimed, "Good heavens! What shall I do?"

"What's the matter?" asked Sir Charles.

"My petticoat's coming down," was her response.

"Well," said the veteran baritone, "I don't see how I can help you."

"I do," she replied, standing before him and spread out your coat-tails as wide as you can!"

Sir Charles obeyed, and pretended to be absorbed in the study of a song which was lying on the piano. Presently Mrs. Sartoris whispered: "It's all right, but what on earth am I to do with it?" Looking up he saw that she had a bundle in her hands much too large for him to put in his pocket. At that moment her brother made his appearance carrying his hat in his hand. "Just in time to save me," exclaimed Mrs. Sartoris. "Here, put that in your hat and keep it till we get away!" "What is it?" he asked in astonishment. "My petticoat." The brother's face was a study as he gave vent to a long-drawn "Oh!"

Harper's Magazine.
Vice-Admiral Uru, of the Japanese navy, was a member of the class of 1881 at the Naval Academy at Annapolis, and has recently been here visiting his classmates and celebrating a reunion with them.

"At a dinner given to the vice-admiral when he was in this country one of his classmates told a story on the progress of the Japanese in the past thirty years."

"Uru was the most correct and proper person in our class," said the story-teller. "He was prime and precise and very resourceful. I met him once"

"Good morning," I said enthusiastically. "Isn't this a splendid day?"

"It is, indeed," Uru responded gravely, "and I thank Heaven, I am here and permitted to enjoy it."

"When I met Uru this time, after a lapse of nearly thirty years, I recalled this conversation and said: 'Good morning, isn't this a splendid day?'"

"It is, indeed," Uru replied, "and will you, for Heaven's sake, kindly tell me where I can get a drink?"
