NO CHARITY EXISTS

OUTSIDE OF THE RELIGION OF JESUS CHRIST.

Sermon in St. Mary's Cathedral by Rev. Father Nash, S.J., of Montreal—The Church is God's Poor-house.

Rev. Father Nash, S.J., Montreal, preached in St. Mary's cathedral at vespers, on Sunday evening to a large congregation, on behalf of St. Vincent de Paul society. The text was "The poor ye have always with you, but he ye have not always." Father Nash delivered a forcible sermon on behalf of charity. The text he said, was both a prophecy and a warning. It was a prophecy that the church was to be the church of the poor and the afflicted and it was a warning that in our charity we must never lose sight of Him, the source of all charity.

Philanthropy without Christianity is not able to satisfy the eternal longings of the human heart, said the preacher, who showed that the human nature left to itself could not bring forth the fruit of love. Only in Christianity were love and charity to be found. Christ was crucified, murdered, because the Jews feared their money bags. Jesus stood in the way of greed, rapine and cruelty. What thought they of the poor? There was no charity in the world till Christ came. Philanthropy is the child of Christianity, and the two cannot exist apart.

In some centres there has been an attempt to revive the old method of letting the stronger rule, of letting the boot heel on the can. Father Nash was glad that in Canada the people had not yet bowed the knee to Baal. He hoped that Catholics and Protestants alike would keep the Christian ideal of loving their fellowmen. That's the only way of following Christ to death and victory.

Father Nash pointed to the social element in the Catholic church, which he said was the author of hospitals for the poor and sick. What struck him most when he arrived in Kingston was the strong evidence of Catholic charity in a community in which Catholics were in the minority. The Catholic church was God's poor house, the home of the poor and the afflicted. Let us know no charity not given in the name of Christ.

In conclusion Father Nash made a strong appeal for further aid to the local St. Vincent de Paul society, a charitable organization that has spread all over the world. It had its origin nearly a century ago, and came into being in France, as a means of overcoming infidelity. It was that in order to fight infidelity, the church had to do more than talk. It had to do something more for the poor and so this society was inaugurated, and to-day its work is marvellous.

At the conclusion of the sermon a collection was taken up and $216.75 was placed upon the plates. Under the direction of Prof. Denis the cathedral choir sang with marked effect. N. O'Connor was soloist. The choir of little boys in the chancel is a fine addition to the cathedral's musical services. A voice that was noticeable for its strength and sweetness was that of Harry Foyers, a very little chap.

Death of Elisha Chapman.
An old resident of the city passed away, on Sunday afternoon, at 4:20 o'clock, in the person of Elisha F. Chapman, grocer, of 337 Queen street. Deceased had been ailing for about six months, but had only been confined to his bed for a couple of days. Mr. Chapman was eighty-five years of age, and for thirty years had been a resident of the city. For twenty-eight years he kept store, in the same place where he died, and was well-known throughout the city. He was born at Stonington, Connecticut. Deceased's wife died about ten years ago. He is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Alice Davis and Mrs. Bella Little, both of this city.

A Druggist's Great Day.
Best, the Princess street druggist, reports that on Saturday 1,000 ladies secured souvenir boxes at his store before 6 p.m. The rush was so great that he had to secure extra help. The boxes contained talcum powder, cold cream, etc., things which delight the ladies. Mr. Best advertised three days in the Whig and the women fell over each other in getting to his store.

A few local sports went up to Belleville, to-day, to see the Pictou-Belleville junior O.H.A. game there this evening. The locals hope that the Belleville seven will put it over Pictou and give Frontenac the section.
R. B. Nelles occupied the pulpit at Calvary church, on Sunday evening, and preached a fine sermon for young men.

A GENEROUS NOTICE.

A More Than Representative Journalist.

The New York Herald the other day paid a compliment to Canadian journalism by publishing an appreciative article on one of its very highest exponents, the Kingston Whig, and its chief, E. J. R. Pense. There will be few jealousies in Canadian newspaper offices at the Whig being thus selected. The Whig enjoys a reputation such as has been won by few Canadian dailies, for continuous excellence and the rigid probity of its conductor. Indeed, very few Canadian papers have enjoyed advantage of extended control by the same individual, as has the Whig. Founded in 1834 by Edward John Barker, he added the daily in 1849, and in 1872 the paper passed to his grandson, Edward John Barker Pense, the present proprietor. The first owner conducted the paper for thirty-eight years, and the second has so far conducted it for another thirty-eight years with prospects of controlling the paper for many years to come. The effect of such continuous control, when the controlling mind is in a man of the Pense stamp, means much to a paper and the community which is fortunate to possess it. The Whig enjoys a leadership in Kingston and in Eastern Ontario, which it is hopeless for anyone to try to rival, at least while Mr. Pense lives and commands it. And probably for many years after, for the impetus which envelops it now will wield an influence that will not soon waver. It is a pleasure to Canadian publishers to speak well of the Whig and Mr. Pense, whether they are in agreement politically or not. For instance, the Herald does not agree politically with Mr. Pense, but it doffs the hat to him as a model journalist just the same. The citizens of Kingston should prize the Whig and Mr. Pense among the worthiest of their institutions. Mr. Pense has been many things besides editor and publisher—he has been school trustee, alderman, mayor, M.P.P., and a leader in benevolent, religious and patriotic movements. His life has been busy, is still busy, and probably always will be busy.

IF THERE IS NO HELL

For Gossipers, There Should be One Built, Said Rev. C. A. Sykes.

On Sunday evening Rev. C. A. Sykes preached a strong sermon to a large congregation in Sydenham street Methodist church, choosing as his text, "Gossipers, Male and Female." The speaker took the text from the first chapter of Romans, and the twenty-ninth verse: "Being filled with unrighteousness, fornication, wickedness, covetousness, maliciousness, full of envy, murder, debate, deceit, malignity, and whisperers." He also read scripture lessons bearing on the same subject.

The speaker said that St. Paul had a striking illustration of gossipers and backbiters in the Greeks and Orientals and could hear the letter 's' in gossip hissing like a serpent. Gossipers are heard all over, in every business and social life, and one of the nation's greatest evils. St. Paul suffered from gossip as long as he could stand it, and then spoke back, using the words of the text.

Mr. Sykes said that male gossipers were merchants who spread slander to undermine their competitor's business. In closing he said: "If there is no hell for gossipers there should be one built."

THE HALLS OF QUEEN'S.

At Convocation Hall—Boxing and Wrestling Instruction.
Rev. C. A. Sykes, M.A., preached the Sunday afternoon sermon at Queen's, yesterday. He spoke at length of the unity of the world nations in science, commerce and religion, and in outlining the problems presented in the Orient made a splendid appeal for a lively missionary enterprise.

Year '11 arts won the inter-year debate championship, Saturday evening, before the Alma Mater Society by obtaining the decision over year '12 by a narrow margin. Messrs. Stewart and Smith debated for '11, while '12 was represented by Messrs. North and Matheson.

The annual session of the arts court will be held on Wednesday evening.

PUTTING A NEW JACKET
Around Former Leaky Joint of the Waterworks Intake Pipe.
When asked, this afternoon, what was being done about the suction pipe, Ald. Craig, chairman of the waterworks committee, stated that Superintendent Hewitt was having a new jacket placed around the joint of the pipe where leakage was discovered seven years ago. It was thought that this joint had been disturbed again. The Donnelly company will do the work, which will take a couple of days to complete. It is thought that the trouble is more likely at the old place, and it is being attended to first.
