A MONTH IN JAIL

YOUTH FOUND GUILTY OF VAGRANCY.

Magistrate Said he Would Give Him Chance to do Some Real Hard Work—Had Been Loafing Around The Street Corners and Given Shelter at Police Station.

Do not loaf around the street corners. It does not look very well, and besides, it may get you into trouble. Charles Stephenson, an English youth, who came out to this country a short time ago, played this role, and as a result he was placed under arrest on a charge of vagrancy, and Magistrate Farrell gave him a chance to do some real hard work, by sending him to the county jail, for a month. Several complaints had been made about Stephenson loafing around and idling his time. Monday night he was given shelter at the police station, and when he went out of the station, in the morning, he made no attempt to get employment, but instead, took up his old role of helping to hold up the street corners. It was not long before he, himself, was held up by a police constable, and taken to the lockup, where a charge of vagrancy was made out against him. "Just as lazy as ever," asked the magistrate of Stephenson, when he appeared, his worship being aware of his behaviour.

"I tried to get work," said the accused, "but could not find any."
"That's a sad case," came from the magistrate.
Then came the story of the police, which was to the effect that Stephenson would not work, and only the other day, had to be put out of his boarding house. He would not look for work. It was stated that Stephenson had money some time ago, but that this was now all gone.

"Well, I'll give you a chance to do some real hard work," said the magistrate to the accused. "I will send you to jail for one month."
"I would rather go to jail than work for a farmer any day," said Stephenson, as he passed out of the court room.
A drunk, gathered in during the night, was remanded to jail for a week.

FOLEY-GIBSON.

Wedding Ceremony in St. James' Chapel, Tuesday.

The marriage took place in St. James' chapel, at 8:30 o'clock, on Tuesday morning, of Miss Mary Ellen Gibson, daughter of Mrs. Hugh Gibson, Kingston, and Richard Foley of Howe Island, son of John Foley. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Father Hanley. The bride was attired in a suit of ivory voile, with trimmings of satin and lace, and was assisted by Miss Hazel Foley. Hugh Gibson was the groomsmen. Mr. and Mrs. Foley left, at noon, on a trip to Montreal and other points, and upon their return will take up their residence on Howe Island.

Finger Was Amputated.

Gunner Guy, of "A" Battery, met with a painful accident, while with a class at practice. He was working at one of the guns, when through a mistake, it was pushed, so as to jam his finger against a wall. The little finger of his right hand was so badly injured that it had to be amputated. He was cared for at the station hospital.

Thrown Out of a Rig.
