

FATE OF LORDS

Extremists Favor Attack on Veto Power.

BARRING FEW PEERS

UNIONISTS FAVOR CHANGE IN UPPER HOUSE CONSTITUTION.

Put an End to Plural Vote—Liberals Will Reform Election Law Before Going to the Country Again.

London, Feb. 8.—Of even greater interest than the possible changes in the cabinet is the course the government is likely to pursue upon the reassembling of Parliament. Thus far on this, as on all other matters, Mr. Asquith has kept his own counsel, and the views of the liberals vary according to their shade of Radicalism.

Extreme members of the party, like the laborites, and even some of the more moderate men, strongly favor an immediate attack upon the veto power of the House of Lords, leaving the budget and all other legislation until the party has settled its account with the Peers, who are held responsible for all the political troubles that have arisen. The Irish members, too, are believed to support his view, although John E. Redmond, leader of the nationalists, who since his election has been in retirement at his country home in Ireland, has not yet made any announcement of his intentions.

The more moderate Liberals, seeing the possibility of the disorganization of the finances of the country by this course of action, are urging the government first to introduce the budget, which, the Lords accepting the result of the election as an endorsement of the government's financial policy, are already pledged to pass.

On the question of the future status of the House of Lords opinions differ almost as widely. The laborites and extremist members are for the abolition of the Upper Chamber. Another section of the ministerialists demand the abolition of the Lords' right to veto on financial legislation, so that, in the words of the resolution passed by the House of Commons when the budget was held up by the House of Lords, "the will of the people as expressed by the House of Commons must be adopted by the House of Lords within the limits of a single Parliament."

In other words, this means that any measure passed by three successive majorities of the House of Commons must be adopted by the Lords. The views of the moderates are expressed by Sir Edward Grey, the foreign minister, who said:

"No reform of the House of Lords can be a real reform unless it provides for the abolition of the hereditary principle and the substitution of popular election."

The Spectator follows up this with the suggestion that the upper house consist of 200 members, chosen under a system of proportional representation from equal electoral areas.

In the meantime the unionists, with the exception of a few peers who under the circumstances would find a place in the reformed chamber, are practically unanimous for a change in the constitution of the House of Lords. Many schemes are being put forward, the most popular probably being that embodied in the report of the Hombury committee, which provides for the election by the hereditary peers of 200 of their own number, together with 250 peers qualified by service to the nation, 10 bishops, 5 judges and 40 life peers.

The imperialists among the unionists look with considerable favor on the suggestion made by Norton Griffiths, a new member, who has had great experience in the colonies and elsewhere. He has proposed, when the moment is opportune, to establish a senate of the empire, to include representatives from the colonies.

Premier Asquith can count on a majority for the curtailment of the lords' veto, but on the budget the attitude of the nationalists is still uncertain. Many members of the party strongly oppose the clause imposing whiskey duties. Several liberals are in the same position.

William O'Brien, who holds the independent Irish members, writes:

"There is no doubt that the Irish party contemplates the blackest treason perpetrated against the Irish since the act of union. The nationalists propose to assist the government in passing the budget, which will impose on Ireland $10,000,000 in taxation per annum."

The first formal meeting of the ministry will take place on February 10th, and the changes in the cabinet, the wording of the king's speech for the opening of parliament and the course of business for the commons will then be decided upon.

Election Reform Bill.

London, Feb. 8.—There is one measure for the passage of which the liberals will expect nationalist support, before precipitating the home rule crisis, which it is agreed must involve another election. This is an election reform bill. If it can be passed the liberal chances of winning the next election will be enormously increased. Whether or not the Irish will grant this concession is as yet uncertain. If the liberals pledge themselves to continue their home rule efforts in the next parliament the Irish will probably be acquiescent. Otherwise, probably not.

The election reform bill is designed to accomplish four particularly important things:

1. To put further obstacles in the way of election bribery and intimidation, and to increase the penalties for both.
2. To re-district the country, so that all parts will have equal representation in parliament, according to population.
3. To modify the residential qualifications, which at present practically disfranchise a large proportion of the working population.
4. To end the existing system of plural voting.

A PROGRESSIVE WOMAN.

Owens Twelve Ranches and 60,000 Head of Sheep.

Ogden, Nev., Feb. 8.—Mrs. William Jenkins, of Battle Mountain, Nev., owns more sheep than any other woman in the world. She is a prominent member of the delegation from the Sagebrush States, and is taking an active interest in the convention. She arrived in Ogden accompanied by her three daughters, Misses Mary, Dorothy and Margaret Jenkins, who are also wool growers, with extensive interests in Nevada. Several years ago at the death of her husband, Mrs. Jenkins found herself in possession of 22,000 head of sheep. Now she is ranging 60,000 head of the wool products on the Nevada ranges, and is counted as one of the richest women in the west. She owns twelve big ranches.

MILLION DOLLARS

ALL DEPENDS UPON BIRTH OF SANE CHILD.

Curious Provision in Will of A. Woolfan Who Made Large Fortune in South Africa.

London, Feb. 8.—Few more curious conditions have ever been attached to wills than that of A. Woolfan, M. P., Woolfan of Tunbridge Wells, and formerly of South Africa. The estate is valued at some $2,500,000. After providing for some pet charities testator placed in trust over $1,000,000 for his son, attaching the following conditions thereto:

"That if said son should have a male child, who should during said son's lifetime attain the age of three years, and such child should then be certified by two physicians of good standing as of reasonably sound mind and body, this trust shall be revoked, and the whole of the testator's residuary estate was to pass to said son, the father of this sane and healthy child, absolutely."

Failing the fulfillment of the curious condition as to his son's son, the money is to go to form a "woollen trust" which shall have for its objects:

- 1.—The education and maintenance of wool children.
- 2.—The providing of old people with relief, income, or shelter.
- 3.—The making of advances of from $500 to $1,000 at not more than three and one-half per cent. to young persons, of either sex starting in business, such advances to be on their personal security and that of two securities.

AND HE UPBRAIDED THE PARLIAMENTARY ATTACHE.

Brig.-Gen. Tootée, Chief Secretary of the Minister of War, Was Removed From Office by Gen. Brun for His Misconduct.

Paris, Feb. 8.—Brig.-Gen. Tootée, chief secretary of the minister of war, after the minister himself, the highest official in the war office, lost his temper, and as a result his job, yesterday. While the Chamber of Deputies was debating the military budget, yesterday, Capt. Savoureaux, the parliamentary attache of the war department, handed to Gen. Brun, the war minister, certain papers without going through the ordinary formality of first giving them to Tootée. The latter meeting Savoureaux in the corridor, shortly after, harshly upbraided him. He was ordered out of the chamber, but refused to go. The outcome was his dismissal from office by Gen. Brun.

WILL PROTECT COASTS

Both by Wireless Telegraphy and Canadian Navy.

Ottawa, Feb. 8.—At the opening of the commons, yesterday, E. N. Lewis drew the attention of the government to the fact that the passengers and crew of the sinking steamer Kentucky off Cape Hatteras had been saved through the operation of the American government's wireless telegraphy station on the coast. Mr. Lewis urged the government to take steps to protect all the Canadian trade routes both on the Pacific and Atlantic coast and on the great lakes by the installation of wireless stations.

"It is the intention of the government to protect our trade routes not only by wireless telegraph but also by a Canadian navy," replied Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

Mr. Lewis also introduced a bill to prohibit the immigration into Canada of all immigrants from Europe living south of the fortieth parallel and also providing for the non-admission of any immigrants carrying concealed weapons.

The rest of the afternoon was spent in committee on private bills.

THE KING A SUFFERER.

He Has Been Operated on For Appendicitis.

Stockholm, Feb. 8.—King Augustus was operated on, last night, for appendicitis, and it was officially stated that the operation was a success. The king had been suffering from continuing pains, since early Sunday evening, but it was not until last evening that the physicians diagnosed the case as one of appendicitis requiring an immediate operation. The physicians first diagnosed the king's illness as cancer of the stomach, and the matter was taken with such little seriousness that several members of the royal family attended a concert last evening.

The petitioners also seek to join the existing writs of taxpayers against any warrants for expenditures by the city until its floating indebtedness is cared for, and injunctions are asked for against the heads of the various departments of the city government to prevent them from procuring the performance of work or the delivery of supplies without a previous appropriation having been made.

New York, Feb. 8.—Rev. John Fox, secretary of the American Bible Society, announced that $1,000,000 of the half million that is being raised to guarantee a like sum from Mrs. Bassell Sage had been collected. Dr. Fox said that in the last sixteen months the subscriptions to the endowment had averaged one thousand dollars a day. A Michigan man has written, offering to be one of ten to give $1,000 each for the remainder. Mrs. Sage has twice extended the limit for the collection of this fund.

THIS WOMAN HAS DUPED MANY.

Receives Short Sentence for Remarkable Frauds.

Geneva, Feb. 8.—A "prophetess," calling herself Zenita, has just been sentenced to fifteen days' imprisonment and a fine of $50 for a series of most remarkable frauds, out of which she had cleared $12,000 within twelve months.

Zenita settled at Ferney, near this city, and began to advertise her occult powers in French and Swiss papers. She dealt in love and hate philtres, sold amulets and talismans, asserting that she derived her powers from the ancient Egyptians, from the Indian fakirs, and from the sorcerers of the middle ages. She even went so far as to advertise "medicines" which ensured success at cards, and which would kill a person without the person administering it being found out.

Letters from her dupes arrived by the hundreds, until the authorities took a hand in the matter.

BURGLAR'S HELPFUL WIFE.

Was Aiding Him When Police Came Along.

Newark, N.J., Feb. 8.—Elizabeth Karcher is a wife who believes in sharing her husband's business. Elizabeth and her husband, William, were both arrested, charged with robbing a local post office at Essex Falls, near here.

The post office is in the Erie railroad station, which closes at seven o'clock at night. Shortly after midnight the chief of police and a railroad detective saw a light in the building, and went up to a window.

Inside were Elizabeth and two men, busily rifling the safe. At the command of "hands up," one of the two men turned sharply and fired three shots at Chief Eyoldt. They went wild, but in the confusion the man who fired succeeded in escaping. The girl, who is only nineteen, was not so prompt, and when she found herself covered by two revolvers, surrendered with her husband. Both were brought here and locked up in default of $2,000 bail each. The robbery netted only a few stamped envelopes.

Philadelphia, Feb. 8.—Asserting that more than $5,000,000 in excess of the income of the city has been expended during the past three years for the current expenses of the city and that preparations are being made to expend more than the income of the city during the present year, a bill in equity was filed by taxpayers against the mayor and other officials, asking that they be enjoined from making expenditures or incurring any liabilities on behalf of the city in excess of the income from its tax levy and other sources (exclusive of bond issue).

The petitioners also seek to enjoin the existing writs of taxpayers against any warrants for expenditures by the city until its floating indebtedness is cared for, and injunctions are asked for against the heads of the various departments of the city government to prevent them from procuring the performance of work or the delivery of supplies without a previous appropriation having been made.

A DEADLY POISON

SPECTRUM REVEALS THE PRESENCE OF CYANIDE.

So Far as Known the Earth Has Passed Through the Tail of a Comet Only on One Occasion.

Boston, Mass., Feb. 8.—Although the astronomers at the Harvard observatory have not yet made a photographic spectrum of Halley's comet, which is rapidly approaching the earth, a telegram received from the Yerkes observatory states that a spectrum of the comet obtained by the director and his assistant show very prominent cyanogen bands.

(Cyanogen is, perhaps, the deadliest poison known, a grain of its potassium salt touched to the tongue being sufficient to cause instant death. In the uncombined state it is bluish gas very similar in its chemical behavior to chlorine and extremely poisonous. It is characterized by an odor similar to that of almonds.)

The fact that cyanogen is present in the comet has been communicated to Lamille Flammarion, the distinguished French scientist, and many other astronomers, and is causing a great deal of discussion as to the probable effect on the earth should it pass through the comet's tail. Prof. Flammarion is of the opinion that the cyanogen gas would impregnate the atmosphere and possibly snuff out all life on the planet.

Only once, so far as known, has the earth passed directly through the tail of a comet, and at that time no unusual phenomena were noticed except that there were abundant showers of meteors. Most astronomers do not agree with Flammarion, inasmuch as the tail of a comet is almost inconceivably rarified, and believe that it would be repelled by the mass of the earth as it is by the light of the sun.
